A message from your president

A welcome, and some thoughts on inflation

First, I would like to extend a warm welcome to Miss Heather Sutherland, our new Director of Alumni Affairs. At the same time I wish to extend hearty thanks to Bruce Irwin, who has served so faithfully over many years. The duties of fund raising in these difficult times have become so heavy that a separation of alumni affairs from the fund raising function has become necessary.

Miss Sutherland comes to Dalhousie from Mount Saint Vincent University, where she was housing and financial aid officer. Her education at the University of Maine at Orono prepared her well for her new responsibilities. She holds a BSc in Business Administration, and an MEd in Student Personnel Services.

As I said in my last letter in Alumni News, the Dalhousie Alumni Association is not the chief fund raising body of the university, but we have a natural interest in it, as in all matters relating to the welfare of Dalhousie and its graduates.

The effects of inflation are well known to us all, and they are being felt by Dalhousie. The magnitude of the change in recent years was forcefully brought home to me last winter at the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) conference in Montreal. One large institution that had raised $175 million in a capital campaign reported that this huge amount, when converted to "constant 1976 dollars," barely maintained the previous rate of growth. I have made a similar calculation for Dalhousie University.

The consumer price index has now reached 267.5 compared with the average of 100 for the year 1971 when the "clock" was last "adjusted" backward. (This now happens at ten-year intervals. The 1981 calculations will soon be complete, and the CPI will start a new cycle beginning at 100). The expenditures of Dalhousie University for 1981-82 amounted to $89,515,837. This looks like a large amount. However, it was equivalent to $34,831,065 in 1971 dollars, and in that year the university spent $26 million. The ten-year increase has therefore been $8 million — a 2.2 per cent increase — instead of the apparently huge $55 million. And during that period enrolment increased from 6,000 to more than 9,000, an increment of about 50 percent. I think these figures speak for themselves. Dalhousie University has done very well, in spite of inadequate government grants.

Yours sincerely

Chester B. Stewart

(B.Sc. '36, M.D., C.M. '38)

P. S. - I hope to see a large number of alumni at branch meetings during my term of office.

WOMEN'S DIVISION WELCOMES NEW DIRECTOR - The Women's Division of the Dalhousie Alumni Association recently welcomed Director of Alumni Affairs, Heather Sutherland, with a luncheon at the Dalhousie Faculty Club.

A big job ahead

Dalhousie's new director of Alumni Affairs, Heather Sutherland, already has a long list of things to do. After all, she's got 26,000 alumni to reach.

There's a lot of work to be done but the momentum is there, Ms. Sutherland says. The alumni board of directors, she says, wants to get things moving. And, she's well prepared to lead the way. She studied business administration, received a Masters degree from the University of Maine and spent three years as housing and financial aid officer with Mount Saint Vincent University.

Ms. Sutherland, who joined Dalhousie in mid-October, succeeds Bruce G. Irwin, who was the first full-time Director of Alumni Affairs (and later of Alumni Affairs and Fund).

Recent reorganization of the Alumni and Fund Office is designed to broaden alumni programs and to strengthen development (fund raising) programs. Mr. Irwin, who joined Dalhousie in 1959 as Director of Alumni Affairs, is now concentrating on fund raising as Director of Development.

Ms. Sutherland says she's pleased with recent alumni activities such as the orientation it ran for new students and its well-attended student leadership conference.

But she knows the alumni can do more for the university in this belt-tightening period. The Alumni Association, she says, "is virtually an untapped resource in terms of what they have to offer in time and expertise." She wants alumni to lend time to the university, serve on advisory committees, and help in other ways.

A native of Woodstock, N.B., Ms. Sutherland is a member of the executive of the Atlantic Association of University Student Services.

Her father, Jed, graduated from Dental School in 1943.

Times are tough, but not impossible

Times are changing, and people are on the move. That would be a concise description of the mood in the Dalhousie Alumni Office, and with the Board of Directors.

As the new alumni officer at a large university, I find that one of the "perks" of the job is the opportunity to meet a wide range of interesting people. I am finding our nucleus is quite a remarkable one, solidly packed with a core of hard working and truly interested Dalhousians, all concerned about the relationship between the university and its greatest resource — its alumni.

I believe it is time for all of us to have a closer look at the total picture of Dalhousie University, to watch with interest all that happens on the campus and with our extended family throughout the world.

Granted, these times are not easy, but that is not to say we will not reign supreme in the field of research, human resources and leadership. I like to keep in mind the old saying, "When the going gets tough, the tough get going," and while the times now are undeniably tough, they are not impossible.

Optimism is a marvellous thing to see displayed. There is no lack of it among the alumni I have met, and all seem to have the common spirit to get out there and really start to pitch in.

This issue of Alumni News, the first since my arrival at Dalhousie, contains reports about some university activities. Some of the things you will read about include an orientation which saw the alumni doing a bang-up job of impressing new students with their fellowship, and a student leadership conference where former students passed on some pointers on leadership and being involved in campus activities. Also, you will read about fall convocation, and the two Dalhousians who received honorary degrees, and, of course, there is the opening of the new Memorial Arena on the site of the old rink, lost to fire four years ago.

On the local scene, we are working on programs and seeking ways to diversify our alumni programs. These programs are all constructed to benefit not only the local members of our association, but also those across the country and, in fact those around the world.

I have learned about the active branch associations located in such major centres as New York and Toronto, as well as virtually every centre of populace around the Maritimes and around the world. This serves to emphasize the fact that Dalhousians are among those helping to shape the world, through their positions as business leaders, government policy makers, medical practitioners, educators, legal thinkers, and standard bearers in key fields of research.

Alumni want to get involved. Members of our association are concerned with the student population on campus, as well as with working with fellow alumni. One way of becoming involved is to keep in touch with the Alumni Office.

This Alumni News is but one small part of our overall plan to fulfill the mandate our founders gave us in 1871: that the Alumni Association exists for "the fostering of an affection for one another and for Dalhousie among the alumni."

Yes, times are changing, for the better and the busier in the Alumni Office. What will my calendar unfold next month? I know one thing: It won't be dull.

President declares state of apprehended financial constraint

Dalhousie University faces a state of financial constraint.

The president, Dr. W. Andrew MacKay, announced in October that because of diminishing real resources, he was declaring that a state of financial constraint, as defined in the collective agreement with the Dalhousie Faculty Association (DFA), was apprehended.

A memorandum from the president, which included procedures for review of programs and services and an immediate freeze on hiring and replacement of faculty and staff, came after several weeks of deliberations by the president's senior advisors and the Deans' Council.

"We must change delivery of programs and services and we must begin to set priorities for programs and services that will be maintained and developed and those that should be phased down or abandoned," said the president.

"From the continuing financial difficulties of the university and the dim-prospects of revenue increases in the near term, I concluded that it is imperative that we at Dalhousie begin in earnest that process of reviewing our programs, services and operation to ensure that such resources as may be available to us sustain the programs that seem the most important, of highest priority as may be defined by Senate, and permit their development to meet the changing interests of students and the changing needs of the wider society we serve through teaching, research and services.

"We at Dalhousie face a continuing situation of diminishing real resources. We could, perhaps, muddle along and gradually weaken further the support for all or most programs. However, that would hardly be worthy of an institution with a commitment to excellence in the programs that it conducts. The commitment to excellence has marked Dalhousie's past and it should mark our future in the short term as well as the long."

The first phase of the review process gives all Deans, directors and chairmen and heads of departments, as well as members of Senate and the Faculty Association, up to Dec. 20 to provide advice on how to deal with the situation.

"Therefore plans for next year will be formulated and steps will be taken to develop priorities for developing certain programs and terminating others in order to ensure that the available resources are directed in support of excellence," said Dr. MacKay.

Why financial constraint?

High interest rates and high inflation in the past three years, coupled with declining revenues (particularly from government), have all put Dalhousie in a serious deficit position.

"We cannot now realistically avoid a further operating deficit this year, and our accumulated operating deficit will approach or even exceed $12 million at the end of the fiscal year."

No, it wasn't a case of "Cry wolf"

By Derek Mann

"Members of the University face the fact that our resources are going to be less tomorrow than they are today... We must continue to emphasize excellence."

That statement was made by the President, Dr. W. Andrew MacKay, at a meeting of Dalhousie's Deans' Council, when the desirability of invoking financial constraint was discussed.

Financial constraint — or at least "apprehended financial constraint" — is now a fact. Its declaration came at a meeting of the University Senate on Oct. 15, when the president spoke briefly on the matter and, at the same time, circulated a long memorandum to all members of the university. The memorandum described what financial constraint meant — a comprehensive review of all academic programs and all services, as well as a freeze on hiring except in essential cases — and why it had come about.

While not everyone in the university had been convinced of late that the financial situation was serious — indeed, some still argue that Dalhousie has pots of money salted away — the Deans of the faculties and others in senior and middle management, and many members of the faculty and staff, do believe it is serious.

Some members of the Deans' Council referred to the presence of the non-believers. "There is," said one Dean, "a widely held view that things are no worse than they have been in past." Another member commented that "last year, there was a big hue and cry about the Arts Centre, the Art Gallery, athletics and the so on. No one believes anything has been cut back."

In other words, was it a case of "Cry wolf"?

The message for the President and his most senior advisors was, clearly, that unless "there is some clear signal, the situation appears to be no worse than it has been."

The clear signal has been given. Financial constraint is apprehended. Comprehensive reviews of programs and services will be made. Anything mediocre or worse will vanish. Excellence is the goal.

As the president himself has said on more than one occasion in recent weeks, first, it is now up to everyone in the university to work with less and, second, that whatever they do must be first class.

380 graduates, 2 honorary, at fall convocation

Dalhousie University graduated 380 students and honored two former members of faculty at fall convocation in October.

Highlights of the event included the conferring of honorary Doctor of Law degrees to Dr. Basil Cooke, renowned geologist and a former Dean of Arts and Science at Dalhousie, and Dr. Clennel van Rooyen, former head of the medical school's microbiology department, and presentation of a Master of Law degree to the first student from mainland China to attend the Dalhousie Law School, Quingnan Meng.

In his convocation address, the President, Dr. W. Andrew MacKay, said that 1982 marked a milestone in the history of Dalhousie in several ways: the total enrolment, at 9,865 in mid October, was the highest in the university's history; the Dental School, recently settled in its newly renovated facilities, celebrated its 75th anniversary; the Law School, the oldest institution of higher education in the Commonwealth dedicated to the teaching of common law, was preparing for its 100th anniversary next year; and a new School of Occupational Therapy, the only one east of Quebec, accepted its first class of students in September.

The president also referred to the difficult financial situation Dalhousie was facing, pointing out that the university "is not immune to the problems afflicting our society."

Dr. Cooke urged members of the graduating class not to forget their status as world citizens, responsible for the sensible management of the globe's limited resources. "You are the people most likely to be affected. Think of the consequences when administering resources."

Dr. Cooke, who taught geology for many years, said that convocation day was a beginning of further learning, not an end of education. "University has given you the tools to learn."

He urged the class to remember Dalhousie as they travelled through life — D for daring ("Take risks to make progress in life."); A for achievement ("The ability to do something for others as well as for yourself."); and L for liberty ("To realize that freedom is one of the greatest things in intellectual life.").

DAL MEMO is a new Alumni Association newsletter for alumni living in the Halifax-Dartmouth metropolitan area.

The first issue of MEMO — a reproduction of the titlepiece appears alongside — will be mailed to the 9,000 local alumni in January. Four or five issues will be published a year.

Non-local alumni should not feel "left out" because they will not be receiving DAL MEMO. The newsletter, says acting editor Derek Mann, is intended to be of interest to alumni who live close enough to Dalhousie to attend events on campus. All Alumni will continue to receive the magazine, the Alumni News, three times a year.

"The difference is that DAL MEMO can be regarded as a preview of Dalhousie events, while the magazine is more of a review," says Mr. Mann.

NEW YORK, NEW YORK

The Dalhousie Club of New York will meet at 12 noon on Sunday, February 6, 1983 at the Innood Manor.

Leadership conference well received

The student leadership conference organized in October by the Alumni Association was a success.

More than 60 students, twice as many as in 1981, were on hand to take advantage of the experience of former students in areas such as student organization, financing, budgeting, what services are available to students on campus, and other topics useful for successful leadership.

The day-long conference began with an address by Alumni Association president Dr. Chester B. Stewart. He was followed by Student Union vice-president John Russell.

The first session of the day was conducted by Lance Hale, executive director of Voluntary Planning for the province of Nova Scotia.

Dean of Student Services, Dr. Edward Marriott, gave students a summary of what the university offered in psychological counselling and other services.

For a session on budgets and finance, valuable advice was given by student union representatives Leon Steel of the grants committee, Shawn Houlihan, treasurer, Robbie Shaw, Dalhousie's vice-president (administration and finance) and John Graham, manager of university services.

For a session on Student Union services, John Graham was joined by John Russell and Marie Gilkinson, activities director.

With the success of this year's leadership conference to build on, Alumni Association planners are looking forward to next year to develop an even more extensive program.

SHARING EXPERTISE - The annual student leadership conference, sponsored by the Alumni Association, was well attended by members of the alumni, eager to share with students some tips on leadership, and student leaders. Above, from left, chatting during a break in the sessions, are: Lance Hale, executive director of Voluntary Planning for Nova Scotia; Peggy Weld, vice-president of the Alumni Association; John Russell, vice-president (Internal) of the Dalhousie Student Union and Marie Gilkinson.

Orientation program a success

Orientation 1982 at Dalhousie was an experience. Dalhousie student council, student services, administration and alumni, working together over a period of several months provided an orientation which I found interesting, informative and fun.

Teaching excellence rewarded

Three formal photographs and a plaque now adorn the corridor wall in the Arts and Administration Building opposite the President's Office. They are pictures of the Dalhousie professors honored with the 1980, 1981, and 1982 Alumni Awards of Excellence in Teaching.

During a short unveiling ceremony President MacKay paid tribute to the alumni for making an important contribution to the university through the award project.

Dr. Chester B. Stewart, president of the Alumni Association, was also on hand to congratulate the recipients: Murray Beck (1980), Basil Cooke (1981), and Jim Pincock (1982). Professor Leslie Balogh also received the 1982 award posthumously.

Dr. Donna Curry, past president

The Alumni Association and the university recognized the achievements of three recipients of the Alumni Award of Excellence in Teaching by hanging photographs of each of the professors in the Arts and Administration Building. Above, from left, in front of their photos are: Dr. James Pincock, Chemistry, 1982 recipient; Dr. Murray Beck, formerly of the Political Science department, winner in 1980; and Dr. Basil Cooke, formerly of the Geology department, winner of the 1981 award. Dr. Cooke also received an honorary doctorate at Fall Convocation.

of the association, invited each winner to join her in unveiling his photograph.

The citation on each of the plaques said: "An award for teaching excellence presented by the Dalhousie Alumni Association to those professors who in the eyes of their students and peers have displayed the qualities of superior teaching enthusiasm for their subject and interest in the needs of their students."

ation formed a quality of student life committee last year, little did we realize its implications for so many areas of student life. Such a committee was formed because we were concerned that some areas of student life needed improvement. We felt that we might help in some way. This turned out to be the understatement of the year!

Orienting new students to Dalhousie was felt to be an important part of university life, as it should set the tone for a student's life of study for four or more years. Therefore, we met representatives of the Student Union, student services and the administration, to see how we could help.

A meeting with the Student Union was productive, with many ideas bounced around. Finally a program was established, and it was agreed that a special Fall Convocation would be a good way of welcoming students.

Alumni participation in the special convocation consisted of remarks on the role of the Alumni Association from the vice-president (yours truly) as one of several speakers welcoming students to the university. Following convocation, alumni donned "skimmer" hats and helped to serve lunch to students on the boulevard outside of the Dalhousie Arts Centre.

Following the open air repast, tours of the campus were conducted to make students feel part of their new home.

Overall, the attendance at the convocation and all other orientation events was excellent.

There seems to be a new spirit at Dalhousie this semester. One senses a mood-change when one walks through the campus. It is this alumna's hope that Alumni participation in orientation had something to do with this change, and that a similar orientation will take place again in 1983.

Dapper trio: Dr. Chester B. Stewart, president of the Alumni Association; Robble Shaw, vice-president (administration and finance) at Dalhousie; and N. S. Education Minister, Terrence Donahoe. All alumni, they warmed themselves with chowder and sherry before the official opening of the arena.

Good alumni attendance at Memorial Arena opening

Alumni turned out in force for the official opening on Remembrance Day of the Dalhousie Memorial Arena.

The arena replaces the Memorial Rink that was destroyed by fire in 1978.

Alumnus Sherman Zwicker, who was president of the Dalhousie Student Union in 1950, the year the original rink was built, said that the opening ceremony was a nostalgic occasion for him. The new rink would be a constant reminder of Canada's war heroes.

The president, Dr. W. Andrew MacKay, said the arena would honour not only Dalhousie alumni who served in defence of Canada, but all those who had given their lives for the freedom that Canadians enjoyed.

Vice-Admiral J.A. Fulton, Commander, Maritime Command; Dr. A. Gordon Archibald, chairman of the Board of Governors; Premier Buchanan and Ronald G. Bedgood.

Government, military, university officials and alumni gathered to witness the unveiling of the plaque, the stone of which was taken from the old rink's cornerstone.

Ronald Bedgood, past Dominion vice-president of the Royal Canadian Legion, said that the new arena would stand as a "living tribute" to all those who had served in the defence of Canada, some of whom had paid the supreme price.

Other remarks were made by Neil Erskine, vice-president (academic) of the Student Union; Dr. Chester B. Stewart, president of the Alumni Association; Dr. A. Gordon Archibald, chairman of the university's Board of Governors; and Nova Scotia Premier John M. Buchanan.

Built for $2.5 million, the arena features an unusual roof which is of wood and has a series of curving cones. The arena has a seating capacity of 1500, limited to the east side of the building to provide greater useable space under the bleachers.

Because of a shortage of funds, seats are not yet installed on the concrete bleachers, and landscaping remains to be completed around the entrance to the arena on LeMarchant Street.

Brian Noiles, arena manager, said that the rink would eventually be used 20 hours a day, seven days a week, for varsity and intramural ice sports, recreational skating, and convocations, concerts, and expositions.

Goalmouth action in the abbreviated game following the Arena opening. The teams were mixed — Current Tigers and Alumni Tigers.

Leader of the pack: President MacKay performed a quick change from morning suit to bulky sweater to take part in the public skating after the opening of the arena and the friendly hockey game.

Profile

Alumni president Dr. Chester B. Stewart

One measure of the strength of a university lies in the accomplishments of its graduates.

This year's president of the Alumni Association, Dr. Chester B. Stewart, is a good example of those graduates who have helped to maintain the reputation of Dalhousie.

Dr. Stewart also displays the kind of enthusiasm that university presidents, alumni directors and fundraisers wish all alumni had.

He attends most meetings of committees of the Alumni board of directors and almost daily is in touch with university officials. In addition, he is writing a history of the medical school, of which he is a graduate and a former Dean. He also serves on a number of university committees and the university's Board of Governors.

Dr. Stewart was born in Norboro, P.E.I. He received his early education there and after attending Prince of Wales College he became vice-principal of Kensington High School on the island. He returned to Prince of Wales College and then to Dalhousie for pre-medical training and entered the medical school in 1933. By taking extra classes and doing research with Dr. Donald Mainland, professor of anatomy, he earned his BSc in 1936; two years later he obtained his MD, CM.

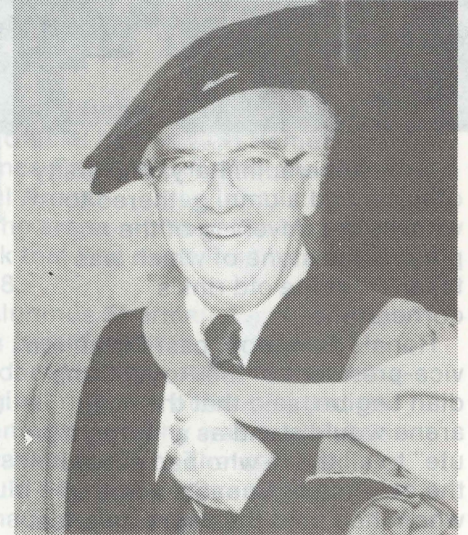

His medical career began in a research appointment with the National Research Council, where he worked with Sir Frederick Banting, the co-discoverer of insulin.

From 1940 to 1945 he was medical officer in charge of research units of the RCAF, retiring with the rank of wing commander. His primary research interest was in decompression sickness, and he helped to develop a standard test for high altitude aviation. He was a pioneer in aviation medicine research.

After the war Dr. Stewart did post-graduate work at Johns Hopkins University, and was graduated with the Master of Public Health degree. He joined the Faculty of Medicine of Dalhousie in 1946 as professor of epidemiology, and in 1951 returned to Johns Hopkins as a research associate, earning the degree of Doctor of Public Health.

On his return to civilian life and after post-graduate work at Johns Hopkins, Dr. Stewart's research was on histoplasmin and tuberculin sensitivity, and BCG (anti-TB) vaccination. This was followed by pioneer studies on the adaptation of epidemiological methods to the estimation of medical and hospital requirements before the introduction of the Canadian hospital and medicare insurance plans.

In 1954 Dr. Stewart was appointed Dean of Medicine. His seventeen years in that position saw the planning and construction of the Sir Charles Tupper Medical Building, a complete modernization of the medical curriculum and a tremendous growth in medical research. In addition, Dalhousie developed one of the most extensive programs of medical education in Canada.

In 1971, Dr. Stewart was appointed vice-president (health sciences) at Dalhousie. His term as vice-president ended in 1976, when Dr. Stewart reached retirement age. He was for a time thereafter a special consultant.

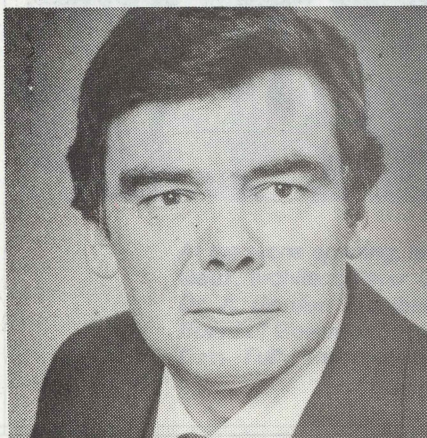

He was awarded a Fellowship of the American Public Health Association in 1952 and an honorary Fellowship of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada in 1961.

In 1972 Dr. Stewart received the award of Officer of the Order of Canada from Governor-General Roland Michener for his contributions to medical education, research in aviation medicine and the planning of national and provincial health and hospital services.

In 1973 he received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the University of Prince Edward Island, and in 1979 a similar degree from Dalhousie.

He is past-president of the Association of Canadian Medical Colleges and of the Canadian Public Health Association. He was awarded senior membership in this Association in June, 1976.

Dr. Stewart is married to the former Kathleen French of Regina, and they have two married daughters, both graduates of Dalhousie.

Alumni Appreciation

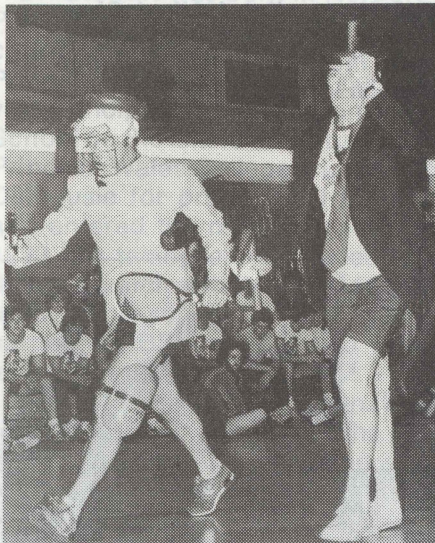

The program committee of the Alumni Association, under the chairmanship of Dr. Joe Hyndman, has been busy.

On Jan. 19 at the new Memorial Arena, there will be an alumni appreciation night when Dalhousie hockey Tigers play Saint Mary's. This game promises to be a great spectator event, given the traditional rivalry.

On Jan. 21, invitational men's and women's volleyball games are being held at Dalplex, and another alumni appreciation is planned. The women's game is at 6:30 p.m., and the men's at 8:30.

On Feb. 8, another appreciation is planned with the Dal-Acadia basketball game. The women are on the court at 6:30 p.m., and the men at 8:30.

Tickets for the alumni appreciation nights are available from any member of the board, or through the Alumni Office.

The President's Festival of Sports, an annual event held in October, again attracted some unusual and occasionally sartorially splendid specimens. Here the president, Dr. W. Andrew MacKay, takes part in the President's Strut (a fast walking relay race), competing against an equally strange looking walker. What you don't see in the right hand of the president — he's the one in the top hat and tails — is a hatchet, the possession of which, we are assured, had no hidden meaning. The event attracted a record 20 teams, mostly of students and non-academic staff.

SILVER SERVICE PRESENTED — A silver service was presented to Shirreff Hall women's residence last May, in memory of Nathan Crawford, D.F.C., R.C.A.F., from Mr. T.W. Crawford. Above, left, presenting the service is Mr. Crawford's niece, Mrs. P. Burchill, while Dean of Women Christine Irvine accepts on behalf of the university.

Dr. J.P. McGuigan

Dr. James P. McGuigan, a former member of the part-time teaching staff in the Faculty of Dentistry at Dalhousie, died in Halifax in September.

Dr. McGuigan (D.D.S., '39) was on the teaching staff for 20 years and was active in the promotion and planning of the expanded facilities in the Faculty of Dentistry.

He was a fellow of the International College of Dentists and past president of the Halifax County Dental Society, the Nova Scotia Dental Association and the Nova Scotia Provincial Dental Board.

In memoriam Judge Nathan Green

Judge Nathan Green, Chief Justice of the Nova Scotia Provincial Magistrates Court, a long time friend of Dalhousie University and for many years a member of the Board of Governors as well as a past-president of the Dalhousie Alumni Association, died on October 13 at the age of 69.

Born in Glace Bay in 1913, he received his early education in Cape Breton. He graduated from Dalhousie University with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1934, and completed his law degree in 1936.

He practised law in Halifax from 1936 to 1959, becoming a Queen's Counsel in 1958.

Judge Green served widely in Nova Scotia on labour matters in the role of conciliator, mediator, arbitrator and industrial inquiry commissioner.

In 1971 he was appointed a member of the National Academy of Arbitrators, and more recently was a charter member of the Professionals in Dispute Resolution.

As a one-man commission conducting a public inquiry into the Nova Scotia Police Act and the regulations of that act, Judge Green's recommendations, made after lengthy hearings are now changing the face of law enforcement in the province, as well as the structure and function of municipal boards of police commissioners.

Judge Green was active in many community groups. His record of voluntary service to organizations includes serving on the boards of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, the Halifax Senior Citizens Association, the University of Kings College school of journalism, Neptune Theatre, and the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

He served as chairman of the Canadian Jewish Congress, Atlantic Region in 1940, and had been actively associated with the organization since then.

associated with the organization since then.

Judge Green served the Dalhousie University Alumni Association as president, and as well took a special interest in the Law School.

He was also president of the Nova Scotia Provincial Magistrates Association, and as a part-time member of the Dalhousie faculty, he contributed a section on divorce practice and procedure in Nova Scotia for the Canadian Law Book Company textbook.

Judge Green also served Dalhousie as a member of the Board of Governors and was a trustee of the Institute for Research on Public Policy.

Dr. W. Andrew MacKay, President and Vice-Chancellor of Dalhousie University, said that Judge Green's interest in the general welfare of the University and its students would be missed.

"His active role in other aspects of the provincial community will also be missed" said Dr. MacKay.

"He was a valued member of our Board of Governors, having served two terms as an elected Alumni Association representative and, since 1976, as an appointee of the Provincial Government.

"In recent years he was chairman of the Board's Staff Relations Committee, and was also a member of the Executive Committee of the Board.

"A man of compassion and of broad interests, he was always concerned about all aspects of the university."

THE DALHOUSIE BLACK AND GOLD CLUB

The Dalhousie Black and Gold club is a private and non-profit organization which provides the support necessary for the Dalhousie athletic program to compete successfully in Canadian university athletics.

In 1982-83, more than ever before, competition within the Atlantic Universities Athletic Association will be very demanding and Dalhousie needs your involvement.

The twenty-seven AUAA Titles and one National Championship in the last three years indicate the positive attitude our TIGERS will be exhibiting when they meet SAINT MARY'S, ST. FRANCIS XAVIER, ACADIA, MEMORIAL, NEW BRUNSWICK, MOUNT ALLISON, ST. THOMAS, MONCTON AND PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND in the strongest and most competitive conference in Canada.

There are three levels of membership available in the Black and Gold club. Each club member receives numerous benefits which vary according to the level of contribution.

WHITE TIGER ($50.00)

- special entrance to game facilities
- the right to purchase season tickets in reserved section prior to general circulation
- admission to specially scheduled post-game receptions with one guest
- membership card
- newsletter (quarterly)

BLACK TIGER ($100.00)

- free parking at home games in reserved section
- 10% discount on season tickets
- priority on purchases of special event tickets and play-off games
- athletic calendar + White Tiger benefits

GOLD TIGER ($300.00)

- gold card
- two all game passes to all Dalhousie regular season home events in reserved section
- tax benefits
- year books
- +White and Black Tiger benefits
