Dear Mrs. Borgese:

Please accept my thanks for taking time at the end of a long day to visit students from my class and from the International Law Club. We valued the opportunity to hear your views and very much hope that when you are next in Boston we might have the pleasure of a return visit to The School of Law.

If I am able to arrange to be in Caracas this summer, I would be most happy to offer to help in your work at The Law of the Sea Conference. In any event, you have my admiration and best wishes for success.

Sincerely,

Dear Professor Partan:

Thank you for your letter of February 15. I am sorry my answer is somewhat delayed but it is only now that my rather complicated schedule for mid-March is beginning to take shape. I am planning to arrive in Boston on the 13th at 6:30 p.m. At present it looks as though most of the 14th will be occupied by the League of Women Voters' annual meeting. I wonder whether it would be possible after the afternoon session and before dinner, or whether you could squeeze me in on the evening of the 13th. I shall have to proceed to Toronto early on the morning of the 15th.

I certainly would like to meet with your students but as you see my schedule is rather crowded.

With all good wishes,

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mrs. Borgese:

I was pleased to hear from Gregory Smith of the United Nations Association of Greater Boston that you will be coming to Boston to participate in the League of Women Voters' annual meeting this year.

Would it be possible for you to meet with students at the Boston University School of Law at any time during your visit? Both the students in my course in the Law of the Sea and the members of the International Law Club and the Environmental Law Society would be most interested in meeting with you if it can be arranged. We could, for example, set up a luncheon meeting or a special class meeting for one or two hours at any time on either March 13th, 14th or 15th. A great many of these students hope to work in legal jobs dealing in some measure with ecology and the environment and it would be of great value to them to have an opportunity to meet with you. I hope that you might find it possible to fit this into your schedule.

With my thanks,

Sincerely,
