Dear Doctor Radall:

I wish to extend my belated greetings of appreciation for the wonderful afternoon and evening I spent with you and your charming wife during our recent visit to your beautiful city. The trip through the countryside and the wonderful dinner at your home will always be some of my fondest memories of Liverpool.

I also wish to thank you again for your autographed novel, "The Nymph and the Lamp." I have read the book, and I have enjoyed it thoroughly. In fact, practically all the officers on the ship have read this beautiful love story and they too have enjoyed it very much.

Most sincerely,

H. N. POULSEN
