Dear Dr. Macmechan,

I like the unflinching optimism on my behalf with which you insist that my fellow Canadians shall know about me. It was more than kind, that article, that lifted the fog of a winter breakfast-table months
- I am ashamed to think - ago, but I'm afraid you can't - peacefully persuade them. I have two readers in Canada - yourself and my father. I constantly pray that nothing may happen to either of you.

This is mainly to tell you (as the spring is advancing and somebody is surely coming over) that I am moving to Kensington Square
- number 39 - next week.

where it is my intention to dwell until July. Then I shall my husband to India - he went out a month ago - and I hope we come back together a few months later for good.

We have been horribly rushed lately, with a book of his which came out against time, and then his song, and finally and all through flat hunting I feel that no inducement would induce me to move again, were it to Windsor or to Buckingham Palace.

London is enthusiastically over-feeding the Colonials. None of them seem to have succumbed yet. I met Kipling here today and he said there was a good deal of criticism of our Laurier's attitude of judicious reserve as to Imperial Defence. The impulsive Jameson calls him a dancing-master even. But Laurier never upset anybody's "apple cart" with a fatuous raid. I have seen nothing of anybody yet, but hope to in a day or two.

I've had a nice letter from Sean and must write to her again. Forgive this short and stupid scrawl. I find nothing in the back of my head but patterns of wall-paper. And again many thanks for the cordial good word, and more still for the luminous article about Home which I am carefully perusing
