PRESIDENT OF DALHOUSIE UNIVERSITY.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Dear Mr. Editor:—

In answer to your invitation to write for the forthcoming number of the Gazette about something that may be of interest to all members of the University, past and present, I am restricting my attention to two matters.

The first has to do with athletics. We all know that our record in football last year was not such as to make us supercilious, but at the same time the work of our men on the field was not anything to be ashamed of, but decidedly hopeful. A certain needed spirit was lacking, but is growing, and I look for a return to championship form next season. A most hopeful sign of the times is the decision of the students to play none but student material hereafter. One of the main causes of our failure to develop the highest form of athletic spirit in Dalhousie has been the lack of a proper field of our own for practice and matches, as well as for the encouragement of track athletics. The announcement I have to make will, I know, be welcome news to every one: the Governors have decided to have an athletic field made at once, to be ready when we move to Studley a year from now. The work on it has already begun, and by the time College opens again, the levelling process should be well advanced. A pavilion, with lockers, shower-baths, etc., will be the next need, and the suggestion has been made that the Malcolm Memorial Fund be increased as rapidly as possible and utilized for this purpose. It seems to me a worthy one.

The second point is the pressing need of a centre for purely student interests. This need is all the more crying in a University that has no residential system, and will be decidedly felt when we get to Studley. Dormitories will, I hope, come in time; but in the meantime we want a building where students of all Faculties can get together in an easy, natural fashion, and which will be the focus of all purely student activities and social life. This will further serve to foster that esprit de corps which would make so much for Dalhousie solidarity, and add so much to the pleasure of college days. It could take the form of a Union with reading room, lounge, lunch room, billiard room, rooms for the various societies, etc. It might well be joined to the gymnasium, or even part of it. The money now in sight will not enable the Board of Governors to make any plans for such a building, much as they are impressed with its desirability. But it is an object that should appeal to all Alumni, and I would say to every student, tell your friends the need of a Union and a gymnasium, and see if you cannot interest some one to give all or part of the money required.

Faithfully yours,

A. STANLEY MacKENZIE.

“THE MOUTHPIECE OF A UNITED UNIVERSITY.”

HEREWITH produced and marked exhibit “A” is another attempt at a graduation number of the Dalhousie Gazette. We have tried to publish it so that the “morning after” would not see us in the bankruptcy courts, or in any other court. The exhibit has its limitations, its discrepancies and its faults, but we hope that it is the beginning of successive numbers of the same nature which will become more perfect, number by number, as the years go by. We say “the beginning” not unmindful of the 1911 number, which was a costly experiment, that we do not care to repeat, but we hope that the day will come when Dalhousie will be able to float an even better graduation number than that of 1911.

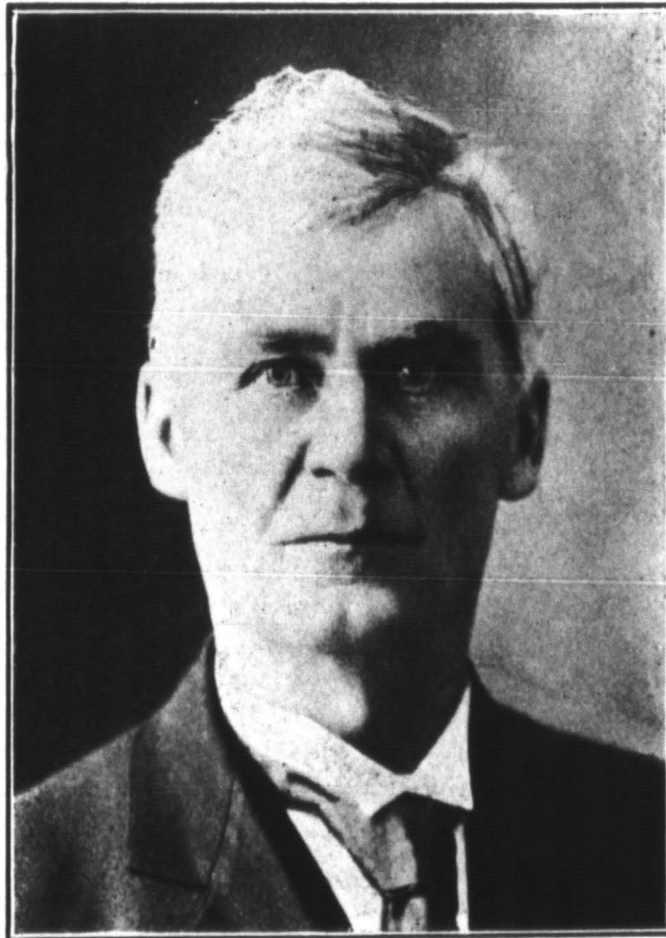

The object of this number is not only to make it of interest to our graduates but to give them, in however rude a form, some memento of the classmates with whom they lived and moved in their college days. The object is a worthy one, and our only regret is that we have not the wherewithal, financially or otherwise to make it much better. To our successors in office, we commend the serious consideration of a better number for next year.

THE time has now come for us to bid farewell to our readers. Others will now take our places to carry on the Gazette in a more approved fashion than formerly. We commend them to your tender mercies and pray that their burden will be lighter than ours. Help the new board along fellows and co-eds; they need it and only those who have been through the mill can fully appreciate just how much they need. The Gazette has great possibilities in the life of Dalhousie. It is a record of our doings and it ought to reach a very high standard. The present scribe realises only too well, where the present edition has fallen down and where the next edition will fall down. However, it is a case of "try again!" and we will succeed at last.

This paper should be published on a co-operative plan. It should have the co-operation of the students, which it does not get now. It needs the co-operation of the Senate, which it does not get now (except in one or two cases). It needs the co-operation of every editor, which it does not get now. It needs life, energy and enthusiasm to make it all that it ought to be. We do not apologise for our number, we have the done best we could under the circumstances. We set out with great ambitions, but like all ambitions they have been curtailed to suit our pockets. We now say farewell to the Gazette, henceforth we shall be but rank outsiders, common bystanders, though true Dalhousians. We shall not criticise but help, knowing from experience how easy it is to criticise, and how hard to perfect.

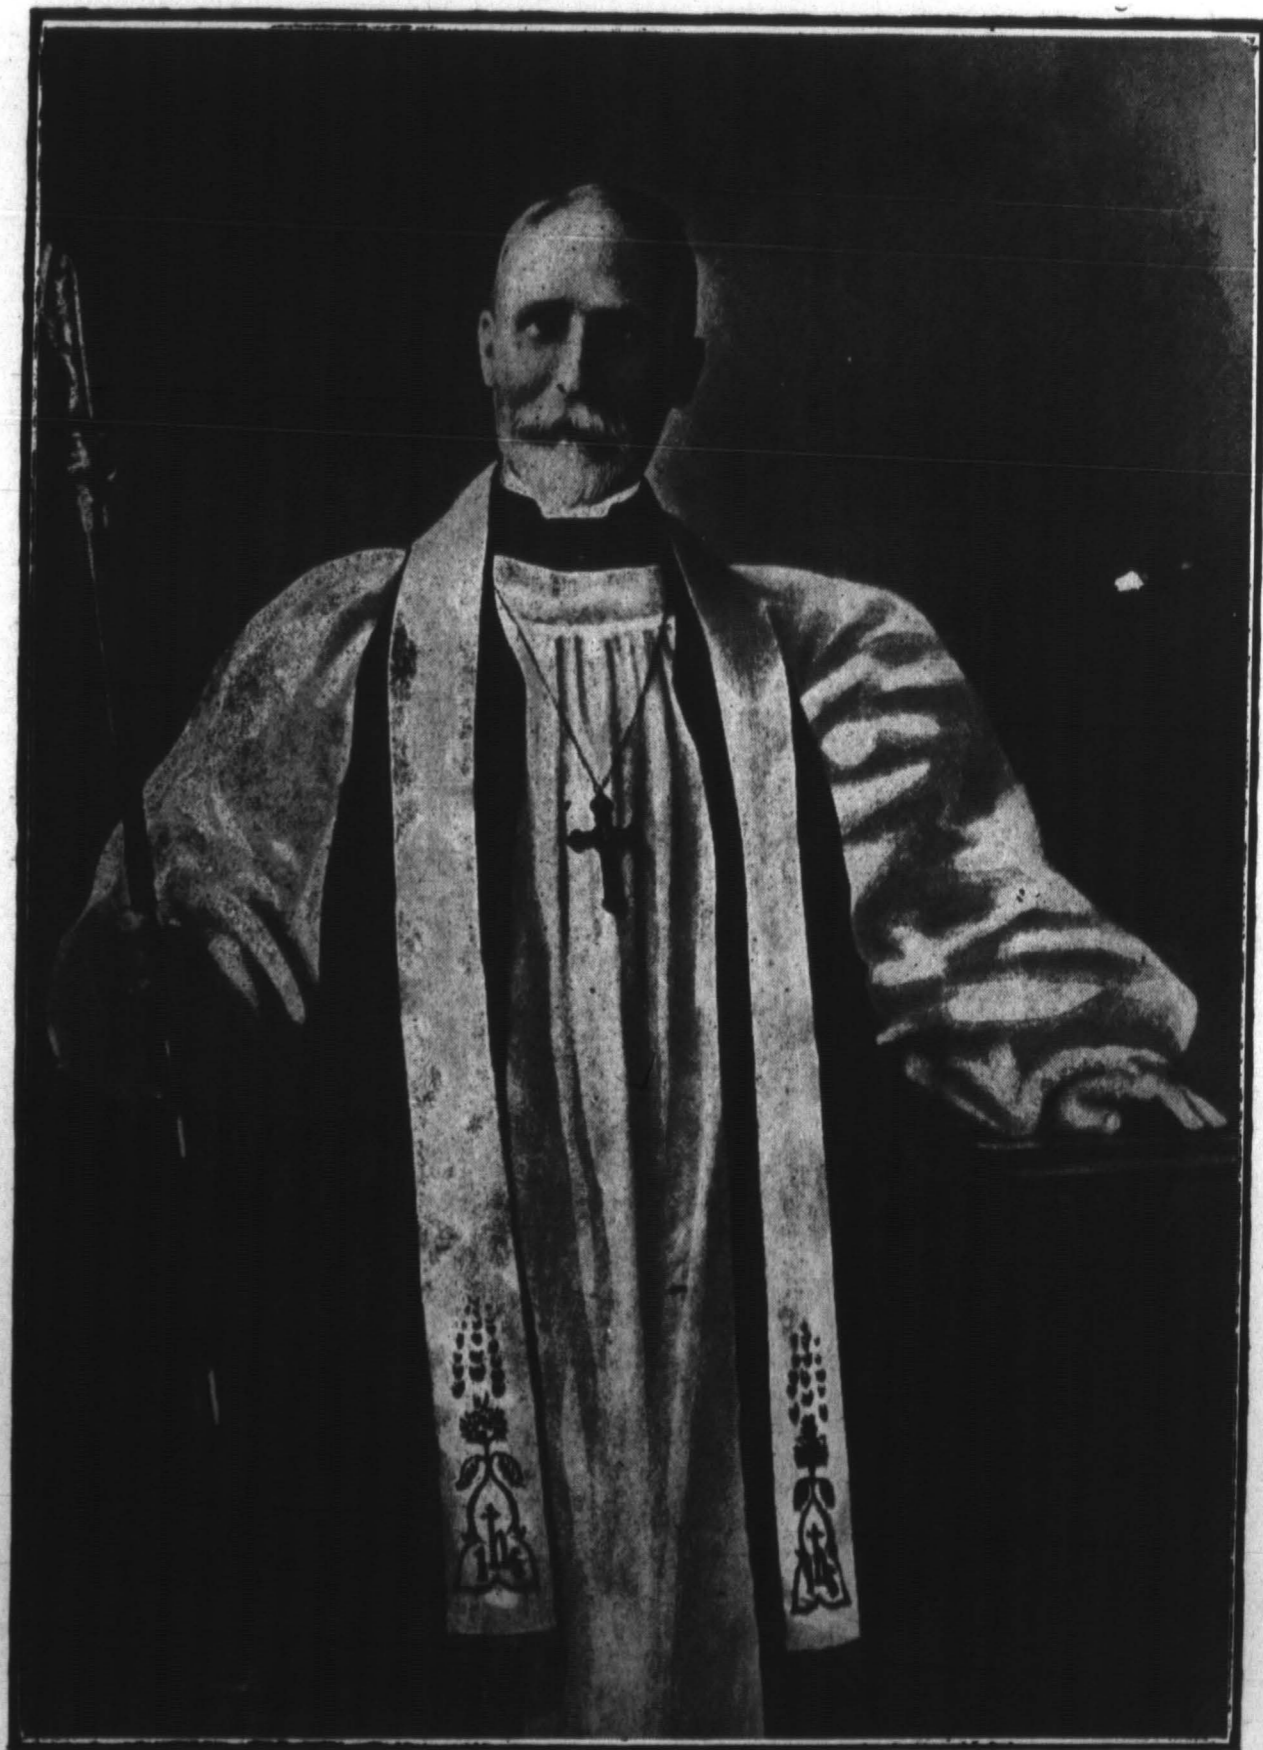

THE BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

On Easter Sunday evening, the beautiful Cathedral of All Saints was the scene of the beginning of the closing exercises. The Cathedral was filled to its capacity by our students and their friends. The sermon was preached by the Bishop of Nova Scotia, and was listened to with intense interest throughout.

Taking for his text: St. Luke 12:13, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth," His Lordship said in part:

There is perhaps no parable more familiar than that which is sometimes called the Parable of the Rich Fool. It is not a condemnation of riches or prosperity or of business or any worldly activity. It is rather a vivid presentation to us of the folly of the man who fails to grasp the idea of the right proportion of things, the relative value of the constituent, integral parts of life. The one thought of this man was to crowd his barns and extend his house and lay up all that might contribute to his own personal ease and sensual comfort and provide for himself as if mortal life were to last forever, or if not that there is nothing to follow, no such thing as a hereafter, no immortality of the soul, no judgment to come. He had no thought for others, nor of his corporate duty as one of the great family of man.

The event which forms the subject of thought for the Church today, the truth that life shall live for evermore, is at once at variance with this. It is the distinguishing characteristic of Christian faith as the basis of all that has transformed the world from a state of selfishness and inhumanity to a right and clear conception of the reality of the brotherhood of man and of our mutual relationship one to another. It is in view of the resurrection that a man feels he must shape his course with a broader vision than that which is confined to the boundary of a mortal horizon. He realizes the importance of a careful life because what he makes of himself now will determine the future for him. He believes that as he is to rise from the dead he will rise with that character he has formed here, that his life does not consist in what he can get for his own individual and immediate comfort and advancement but from which he must be separated at death. It consists rather in what shall last through both time and eternity. What a man takes with him when he leaves this world is not money or lands but his life, himself, with all that goes to make up his character. If then, says the Apostle, ye are risen with Christ so that ye are able to estimate at their true value the petty things of earth, the material, ephemeral things, seek those things which are above which are inseparable from Christ, which live because He lives. These are the things really worth while and any one who overlooks them or despises them can never make the most of himself or fit himself as a citizen to share in the development of the community in which he is but a unit.

The University of Edinburgh was founded by King James VI, in 1582, and it was to be an institution where sound learning was to flourish and abound. It was founded by a monarch who prided himself on his knowledge of the Scriptures and in a country which had ever shown its love for the same. It is a university which was to fit its students for citizenship under such a king and in such a country. In a word, it was to train men for life in a Christian land by making them true Christian gentlemen.

Dalhousie, which was to be 'on the same plan and principle as that in Edinburgh' has been true to its foundation and gives full liberty to its students to grow up, if they will, in accordance with the Christian faith. Its annual Baccalaureate sermon is one of the evidences of this, and I feel it is my privilege to urge upon the members of this great and growing university the thoughts connected with my text, which unerringly lead, not to a vague declaration of passive belief in something which is called Christ, but to a real acceptance of the faith which centres in and radiates from the God-man, Christ Jesus and to an honest endeavor to shape our lives in accordance with the principle laid down by Him. 'A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.' As we rise from the low conception of life as an animal organism and nothing else, we shall seek those things which are above where Christ dwelleth and leadeth us to all that is most elevating and inspiring.

"I speak to some who are just concluding the first year of their university life. You have all possibilities before you. Yield yourselves to the guidance of the Spirit of Christ, Who alone can guide you into all truth and lead you to gain the most from your course.

"I speak to others who have already spent a part of their time and who have some time yet to spend within their university walls. Look back and see where you have made mistakes and where you have been successful. Be honest and acknowledge your failures have come when you trusted most to yourselves and your own powers, to your own wills, forgetting that though it be true that 'Our wills are ours we know not how,' it is equally true that they are ours to make them God's, and see whether better things will not follow willing co-operation with the Spirit of God. This implies an active membership in some Christian church. Enter into the life and light you may get from such membership. Be true to it. Be loyal to it."

Just as I am, young, strong and free
To be the best that I can be
For truth and righteousness and Thee
Lord of my life I come."

"I speak to others who are just about to turn their backs upon what ought to have been the happiest and most satisfactory period of life, and are looking forward to active work in the wider university of the world. What are you setting as your ideal? Is it self-indulgence, ease, personal comfort? Is it in the commendation of the world? Is it in fact solely the things, the material things which you may be able to possess? Or is it that you may be a temple not made with hands eternal in the heavens? built not on the foundation of gold, silver, stone, wood, hay, stubble but on that one only foundation of Jesus Christ, the Rock of Ages. That alone can bear a superstructure of greatness worthy of the name. All your achievements won and earnings gained will be blessed with the consciousness that in the struggle after them you have formed a character without a flaw, fearlessly remembering that:

"Every man's work shall be made manifest, for the day shall declare it because it shall be revealed by fire and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is.

"I speak to all who are in the midst of life's activities, and I ask the question, Are you living and working for time or for eternity? Is there a living thought within you that if you do not get all you can here and now you will never have anything? Or do you believe that the real life is that which bears immortal fruit?

"In those great offices that suit the full grown energies of heaven." If this last be your belief, then follow it. Seek those things which are above with all the power of the Resurrection. Take up the Easter song in the richness of its meaning:

"Christ is risen, we are risen;
Shed upon us heavenly grace;
Rain and dew, and gleams of glory
From the brightness of Thy face;
That we, with our hearts in heaven,
Here on earth may fruitful be,
And by angel hands be gathered,
And be ever, Lord with Thee."

Wordsworth.

CONVOCATION EXERCISES.

April 25th, 1913.

Once more the Fates were kind, and gave the class of 1913 a good sunny day for their convocation. It was the jubilee of the rejuvenation of the University (1863-1913) and the friends of Dalhousie turned out in force to give the graduating classes a good send off. The Presidents' speech breathed a spirit of optimism which should always dominate Dalhousian gatherings. It told of the great success of the June Forward Movement and of the brilliant future which awaits our Alma Mater. It was full of promise and hope for a still greater movement in our behalf and one could not help feeling after hearing it that the day of our greatness was at hand. After the graduates had received their degrees and diplomas of honor, Dr. MacIntosh of Edinburgh spoke to the gathering. This learned speaker, who had charmed many audiences during that week, was never heard to better advantage. His theme was the debt of the Old Country student to the New Country student and vice versa. Dean Llwyd, Mr. G. S. Campbell and Dr. Forrest also took part in the proceedings.

ARTS.

Lady Graduates, 1913.

"From woman's eyes this doctrine I derive;
They sparkle still the right Promethean fire;
They are the books, the arts, the academes;
That show, contain and nourish all the world."

Shakespeare.

Kathleen E. Allen.

*"A smile for all, a welcome glad,
A jovial, coaxing way she had."*

When Kathleen E. Allen entered college, she seemed a very meek young lady for she had a pale face, gentle voice and soulful eyes. However, her looks belied her, for it was not long before she began to show signs of a very energetic nature. Kathleen is enthusiastic over every thing—Freschettes, dances, woman suffrage debates, etc. One of the most capable girls in the college, she has made a success of everything to which she has given her attention. She will long be remembered as the best president the Delta Gamma Society ever had, and her place in college life will be hard to fill.

M. Louise Clayton.

"Resolved—that the franchise should be extended to women."

M. Louise Clayton, a small girl with a big brain, and a wonderful capacity for work. Although she has preference for the physics department, and here her record is exceptional, she has done well in other subjects, and graduated with distinction. Louise has not taken a great interest in the lighter side of college life, but, in spite of this, her class owes many of its most enjoyable entertainments to her, and the '13 girls especially will long remember her graduation dinner. She is an ardent suffragette and is always ready to shout, "Votes for Women."

Clara Alice Crowe.

"She hath a natural, wise sincerity."

Clara Crowe, of Lower Truro, is the baby of the class, though she has done her best to grow up during her four years at college. You can't help liking her, for there is something sweet and wholesome about her, and an hour in her company is as good as a moral tonic. Clara has strong convictions, and is not afraid of expressing them, and is a good girl to have around when you want a decided opinion.

Velma Purvis Cunningham.

"Ever gentle and low was her voice."

Unless you have lived at the H. L. C. or "Forrest Hall" with Velma, you cannot realize what force of character underlies her quiet manner. Clever and unassuming, she has done good work, and has a record of which she may be justly proud. She is always ready for any fun, and is one of the girls who will be missed in college.

Mary Maud Currie.

"And, whatever sky's above me, Here's a heart for any fate."

Big, bonny "Mame" hails from that abode of the blessed, Tatamagouche. No one has ever been able to prophesy just what she is going to do next, for even those who know her best are given surprises, and Mame loves the unusual. She has been an active member of all societies, but the Dramatic Club, of which she was vice-president in her senior year, has especially claimed her attention. Frank, happy-go-lucky, and a good friend, "Mame" is big in more than a physical sense and the class expect much from her.

Catherine Jean Fraser.

"From thee, I learn all gentlemens."

From Westville comes Jean Fraser, another of our quiet girls, whose faculty for passing exams is the envy of her duller friends. Yet, Jean would scorn to be a mere plugger and manages to get a lot of joy out of the frivolous side of life at Dal. It is on record that she, like the other inmates of the big front room at "Forrest Hall" has never been known to miss a possible celebration from a Y. W. tea to a performance at the "Nickel." Jean was vice-president of the Skating Club this year, and her class has made her its permanent vice-president.

Janet Sutherland MacDonald.

"Her summer nature felt a need to bless."

Janet is the only girl of the '13 class to respond to the call of the Student Volunteer Movement, and we accordingly are proud of her. That she will make a success of her calling cannot be doubted for a minute by anyone who has heard her constant, "Don't forget Mission Study, girls." Besides, she has those qualities that would insure her success anywhere, and is most dependable and sincere. Good luck, Janet!

Mabel Irene MacIntosh.

*"The man worth while is the man that can smile
"When everything goes dead wrong."*

Mabel MacIntosh is blessed with one of the sunniest dispositions that it was ever the good fortune to possess. Nothing ever disturbs her, and she meets everything—good or bad—with the calmest of smiles. She is a good student, and is one of those happy people who always have their work prepared. Mabel made a splendid secretary for the Y. W. C. A. in her Sophomore year, and has since been a valued member of the committees.

Lois Christine MacKinlay.

"On with the dance! Let joy be unconfined."

Lois MacKinlay—dear lovable Lois? No one has won a warmer place in the hearts of the '13 class than this same happy-go-lucky, fun-loving maid from the "Garden of the Gulf." You may be angry with her a dozen times a day—while you are away from her—but, as soon as you are with her, your wrath vanishes. She has a deal of personal magnetism, has Lois, and has had a great influence in college during her course. Though capable of brilliant things, she has preferred to take her work calmly, yet in spite of her always full social programme, she has never known what it is to have a "pluck."

Katherine Morrison.

"A girl to do her duty, and where to find her equal, 'twould be very hard to tell."

Kate joined the '13 class in its sophomore year, and it was not long before its other members knew that she was to be a valuable addition. She is always ready for anything from picnics on the Dartmouth Lakes to helping a fellow sufferer with a Math. problem, and her artistic posters have been much in demand by the Y. W. C. A. and the Alumnae Society. Kate filled the post of girl Gazette Editor in her Junior and Senior years, and that of vice-president of Delta Gamma in her Senior year.

Margaret Wollard Nicoll.

"Fair as a summer's dream was Margaret."

"Where smiles the sea 'neath the sky ever blue" dwells Margaret Nicoll, vice-president of her class in its Senior year and member-of-course of all committees, whether

Y. W. or otherwise. Margaret is "canny" in so much that she never rushes into things, but when she makes up her mind, she is not afraid of her convictions. She is one of the girls in her class who will be very much missed, for her cheery, plucky disposition has won a big place for Margaret.

Gladys Marguerite Sibley.

"A place for everything, and everything in its place."

Who is the girl who always has her work done for each day, and her review for exams finished before anyone else has begun? Why, Gladys Sibley! That is probably why she always has time for any fun that comes up, and enters into things with such vim. She gets a lot of joy out of life, too, for her merry laugh is oftenest heard in the Waiting Room, and her bright manner has won her many friends.

Helen Gertrude Douglas Steeves.

"I will never desert Mr. Micawber?"

Prince of Wales College, P. E. I. did Dal a good turn when she graduated Helen Steeves with high honors and sent her to win fresh laurels under the old red tower. Win them she did, for she was the only girl of her class to obtain great distinction. However, she is not a mere book worm but is one of the best girls in the college. Helen never backed out of a thing in her life, and is always ready to help with dances, programmes, etc. She is witty, too, and her clever conversation is the delight of all who know her.

Annie Lucine Boak Umlah.

"Bid me discourse. I will enchant thine ear."

Ever since the day in her freshman year that she was elected vice-president of '13, Annie has taken an active interest in everything at Dal. A poet of no mean ability, her contributions to the Gazette have added not a little to that paper's popularity among the student body, and her accounts of suffragette dinners, etc. have been most interesting. Annie enjoys life to the uttermost, tho' she is a good worker, too. A charming hostess, her many little entertainments will long be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to attend them.

DELTA GAMMA.

"My fair one, let us swear an eternal friendship."—Moliere.

To give a sketch of Delta Gamma in 1913 worthy of the original, would require a master pen and reams of paper, for, undeniably, it has been a good year. Never have the girls been more united, and the results of their union have been apparent in everything they have done. from the way they have cast their votes at the U. S. C. elections to the manner in which they have paid their fees and attended the meetings. Thanks to the former, they have shown that equal suffrage pays, and it is due to the latter that the society has had the most successful financial and social year in it's history.

The programmes were always interesting, though we did not follow any regular plan, and you might find anything from a Friday afternoon in a country schoolhouse in one of the girls' drawing rooms, to a mock trial for murder in the Moot Court Room when you turned up at a meeting. Then, of course, we had an "At Home," but as the Society reporter of Gazette has already dwelt at length on the wonderful decorations, and the delicious "eats" there is little need for further description of it.

However, one thing is necessary in such an account, and that is an acknowledgment of the many kindnesses we have received from hostesses who have entertained the club. As usual, nothing seemed too much trouble for them, and the Saturday nights spent in their cheery homes have helped many a homesick girl. To the Alumnae also, are our thanks due, and our congratulations for the splendid way that they have carried out their ideal of "Forrest Hall."

The officers for the coming year are:—

President—Jessie L. MacDougall,
 Vice-President—Marion Smith,
 Secretary—Agnes Hall,
 Treasurer—Louise Power.

SODALES DEBATING SOCIETY.

*"Thence to the famous orators repair,
Those ancient, whose resistless eloquence
Wielded at will, that fierce democratic,
Shook the arsenal, and fulmin'd over Greece,
To Macedon and Artaxerxes' throne."*

The past year in Sodales can hardly be termed successful. After the Freshie-Soph Debate, interest began to wane and the Inter-Faculty League soon proved a fizzle. The Inter-Collegiate Debate with Acadia resulted in a defeat for Dalhousie but this was not due to our having a weak team for in the three men who upheld the honor of their Alma Mater we had good men. There were two new departures which the Executive this year made and which were most successful. The first was a Debate with a representative from the Delta Gamma Society on either side the other was the attending en force a Debate away from home. The Debating of this year showed that there is any amount of new material developing and next year Dal's Team should be good.

EXECUTIVE SODALES DEBATING SOCIETY, 1913.

CLASS IN ARTS, 1913.

"Arts and Science are not cast in a mould, but are formed and perfected by degrees, by often handling and polishing, as bears leisurely lick their cubs into form."

—Montaigne.

W. R. Auld.

"In his brain, which is as dry as the remainder biscuit after a voyage, he hath strange places cramm'd with observation, the which he vents."—As You Like It, Act 2, Sc. 7.

W. R. Auld joined the 1913 class in its second year coming to us from Prince of Wales College, Prince Edward Island. It does not take one long to find out that Auld hails from "The Island" and the little burg of Freetown has much to answer for. He was a member of Dalhousie's Debating Team and was President of the College Y. M. C. A. in his Senior year. During the summer months he will preach near Bathurst in New Brunswick and in the fall will attend Pine Hill. The best of luck to you Auld!

W. M. Billman.

"His locked, lettered, braw brass collar Showed him the gentleman and scholar,"

—Burns—The Twa Dogs.

W. M. Billman is a product of the Halifax Academy. In his second year he was Secretary of his class, and made a name for himself "behind the footlights." One of the first fifteen, a member of the U. S. C., Walter has taken an interest in all phases of University life. As Dalhousie's Rhodes Scholar for this year, he will attend Oxford in the fall accompanied with the best wishes of his fellow students.

Lawrence B. Campbell.

"The better part of valor is discretion."—King Henry IV.

Lawrence B. Campbell is something that Halifax has to answer for and we expect her to do so with eye flashing with pride at the name of a bold-hearted champion of right.

ARTS CLASS OFFICERS, 1913.

"Lawrie" has been a good classman and held the important position of secretary in his Junior year. He has much ability and though not qualified to shine in the role of Capt. Kidd, has everything to ensure success in his chosen profession—the ministry. Let him work to beat hell and may he be the victor is our wish for him.

Rudolf Alexander Clemen.

"I had rather than forty shillings I had my book of songs and sonnets here."—Merry wives of Windsor, Act 1, Sc. 2.

Halifax pleads guilty in the first degree when Rudolf Alexander Clemen is mentioned. The mentioning of this name is also said to cause a disruption in the real estate directly over the spot where a certain W. Shakespeare is reputed to be interred. "E'en in our ashes live their wonted fires" and jealousy probably causes Bill to stir a little. "Rook" bats .300 in the Literary League and has made impressions—favorable and otherwise on those who have read his efforts. Anyway he has evoked attention and that is the main question. "Rook"'s greatest achievement and the one on which he must base his claim to fame is the song book recently published "anonomously."

Rudolf writes well, is a good social and sociable fellow, possessing a large share of the culture which he claims Dalhousians as a whole lack. He is incidentally a good student and we venture to assert that in a few years the query "Who is this R. A. C." will be a mark of profound ignorance.

J. R. Cornelius.

"It will discourse most eloquent music."—Hamlet.

J. R. Cornelius is unique. At that he beggars description. "Julie" is a fine musician and a willing one and is always ready to help with his talent. Otherwise the College as a whole know little of him. A good student, he works hard and shares little of his time with his fellows. "Hustle" is written all over J. R. and this, with a decided tendency to abstain from other people's business and to keep his own to himself, is likely to carry him far on the road that our wishes point out for him.

J. B. Dickie.

"The advice of a skilful professor will adopt a course of reading to every mind and every situation, his authority will discover, admonish and at last chastise the negligence of his disciples, and his vigilant inquiries will ascertain the steps of their literary progress."—Autobiography of Edward Gibbon.

J. B. Dickie comes from Truro and you'd think that he was ashamed of the fact. Barry's most notable propensities are strolls on Barrington St. and lengthy discussions with the Professor of Classics. It is also rumored that he has had many a serrement-de-coeur and he has been seen lingering about Connolly's just previous to the 14th of February. Barry will never be arrested for creating a disturbance. As his profession is, so far as we know, in nubibus we would suggest poetry, with the observation that at the time of writing the laureateship is vacant.

Malcolm Ferguson.

"Hell grew darker at their frown."—Paradise Lost, Book 2.

Malcolm Ferguson hails from Glace Bay. He believes, along with the Professor of English Literature, that Gaelic was the language spoken in the Garden of Eden. A warm hearted, jovial fellow, Pine Hill will welcome such a chap in the fall where he expects to pursue his course in theology.

F. D. Graham.

"Sat by the fire and talked the night away."

F. D. Graham was the contribution of Halifax to the 1913 class in its second year and in return the class immediately elected him President. In his college course, "Crummie" has stood high in his classes and besides has occupied nearly every important office: Captain of the first Fifteen in his Senior year, a member of the Hockey team, Treasurer of the U. S. C. as well as other executive appointments. Few students have taken a greater interest all round in college societies, and the University is fortunate in securing his services as Tutor in Classics for the coming year. We wish for "Crum" the best of everything that is going.

W. A. Grant.

*"There is a silence where hath been no sound
There is a silence where no sound may be."*—Hood.

Pictou County has produced few more eminent examples of personified taciturnity than W. A. Grant. Whichever way you look at it, Grant must be clever. For if he is clever, he is clever and if he isn't, he is clever enough not to let anybody know that he isn't. At any rate Grant is a hard worker and has put a good share of the medical course behind him while studying Arts. Success surely awaits him, and he cannot have more than we wish him.

D. A. Guildford.

*"Sing again with your dear voice revealing, a tone
Where music and moonlight and feeling are one."*—Shelley.

D. A. Guildford is Halifax born and bred. Dave is a quiet and we were almost going to say an easy going chap but he showed a strain of stubbornness on one or two occasions which prevents the use of the adjective. He has a fine voice and is always ready to sing when called upon. If it were not a rather doubtful compliment we would suggest that the musical part of the services he will conduct when he is launched upon his career will be more entertaining than the oratorical. Whatever be the reason may he always have a full church.

C. R. Hawkins.

"Is not marriage an open question when it is alleged, from the beginning of the world, that such as are in the institution wish to get out and such as are out wish to get in?"—Emerson.

The Lord knows where C. R. Hawkins was born but as the Gazette has antagonized all the powers that be, our information could only be obtained from the Arch Enemy and it must be admitted he had a fairly large store of it. In the town of Lunenburg, Bob encountered the vicissitudes of childhood and as a callow, beardless youth with a look of seraphic innocence he entered college. Four short years and—no the aforesaid look of innocence is still there though its owner has borne the burden and heat of executive position in many societies as well as of the presidency of the class in his Junior year.

Bob has been interested in every phase of College life, has stood high in his classes, been a good social man, a jolly chap in any company, in fact a bit of all right. Law is his choice, may he take it from Dal and give it to the rest of Canada.

Foster A. Heffler.

"For there's nae luck about the house. There's nae luck at a'."

Foster A. Heffler is a product of this old city by the sea. He is the champion hard luck man and seldom goes more than a month or two without an accident. A quiet, hardworking student and a man who is well liked, he will make a worthy addition to the fraternity of sky pilots. The best of luck to him from now out.

John Duncan Irving.

"For solitude is sometimes best society."—Paradise Lost.

John Duncan Irving belongs to New Glasgow, N. S. After obtaining his "A" certificate there, he came to Dalhousie and entered upon the Engineering course.

Having covered the Preliminary course in two years, he went to the N. S. Technical College and is the only one of the class of 1913 who graduates there this year. He is very quiet and a hard worker and has taken little part in College activities.

William Sowerby Irving.

*"The rapt oration, flowing free
From point to point, with power and grace
And music in the bounds of law."*

William Sowerby Irving now makes his home in Shubenacadie, N. S. He has been noted chiefly as a debater, having been on the Inter-collegiate Debating for the last two years. On both occasions he won great applause by his eloquence. He has also been very popular in the mission fields where he has labored during the summer months. Outside of debating he has not taken a very prominent part in College affairs. He will continue his studies at Pine Hill next year.

W. S. Irvine.

"He will give the devil his due."—Shakespeare, Henry IV.

W. S. Irvine was the contribution of St. John to this class. A quiet and unassuming chap of decided opinions, he never failed to express his views but withal was well liked by his fellow students. He will attend Pine Hill in the future. We wish him the best of luck.

H. D. Kemp.

*"For thy sake, tobacco, I would do anything but die."
—Charles Lamb.*

H. D. Kemp hails from St. Peters, C. B. A quiet unassuming chap, he has made a host of friends. Of a very studious disposition, he will undoubtedly make for himself a name in his chosen profession—Law. Here's to it!

George Murray Lewis.

*"In arguing too, the parson own'd his skill
For e'en tho vanquished he could argue still
While words of learned length and thundering sound
Amaz'd the gazing rustics ranged around."
—Goldsmith, "The Deserted Village."*

George Murray Lewis is the representative of Yarmouth N. S. in the class. He first came to Dalhousie in the fall of 1908, but he decided to go back a year and wait until the class of 1913 came along. He is taking the affiliated course in Arts and Law and gained prominence in the Law School this year by his arguments with the professors and his refusal to accept as binding any decision, even of the House of Lords, which did not agree with his view of the case.

Dexter Scott McCurdy.

"Such and so various are the tastes of men."

Dexter Scott McCurdy is also a native of the Town of Truro, N. S. After having passed through the Academy there, he spent several years in teaching, and joined the class of 1913 as a Freshie-Soph in the fall of 1910. One remarkable thing about Dexter is the fact that his choice of a profession has varied each of the three years he has been at Dalhousie, ranging from Divinity to Medicine. He has finally decided on the latter. He has taken an active part in many of the College Societies, particularly in those which cultivate the social man. During the past year he was Vice-President of the Y. M. C. A. and Treasurer of the Skating Club, and has been promoted to the position of President of the latter Society for next year.

Peter Macdonald.

"Wears one universal grin."—Fielding.

Peter Macdonald is another of those Cape Breton Scotchmen, of whom we have so many at Dalhousie. He was born and brought up at Marion Bridge, wherever that is. Goodnatured and easy-going, Peter has not created a very great stir around College during his course. He stayed out during our third year but has returned this year.

Charles A. McKay.

*"An elegant sufficiency, content
Retirement, rural quiet, friendship, books
Ease and alternate labor, useful life
Progressive virtue, and approving Heaven."
—Thomson, The Seasons.*

Charles A. MacKay comes from Truro and a good ad. for the Hub he is. He has gray matter a plenty and is an agile athlete if he cared to do much at it. Charlie's greatest fault is a tendency to ease, but he can almost afford to indulge it. Not only has he great ability as a student but he is thoroughly well liked by the boys, though most of his time is spent with the other sex or a portion of it that has one for the numerator. The social societies consequently received more attention from him than the others but if he failed at times in attendance he showed no lack of interest in other ways. Success is certain for him and we can only wish it more abundantly.

Norman E. MacKay.

"The liberal soul shall be made fat."—Proverbs xi.25.

N. E. MacKay belongs to Halifax and has taken a prominent part in college life since his first year when he was elected President of his class. Normie has in turn been Secretary and President of the D. A. A. C., a member of the first Fifteen, and Captain of the College Hockey Team. He is known and liked by all the students and will be followed by their best wishes in whatever profession he chooses to enter.

F. F. McLellan.

"I, like thee am very fond of the company of ladies. I like their beauty, I like their delicacy, I like their vivacity and I like their silence."—Samuel Johnson.

F. F. McLellan comes from Great Village. He was a strong class man and seldom missed any of its affairs. Although few students enjoyed so well the social side of college life, Fred, nevertheless has always stood high in his classes, and unquestioned success awaits him in his chosen profession—Dentistry.

Everind Hall Milne.

*"Enjoy your dear wit and gay rhetoric
That hath so well been taught her dazzling fence."
—Milton, Comus*

Everind Hall Milne is another of the "theologs" of the class. He is a native of Cook's Brook, Halifax Co., N. S., and received his preparatory education in Truro Academy. He was chiefly interested in debating and the meetings of Arts and Science were often enlivened by his witty speeches. Unfortunately he was not able to finish his last year.

McIntosh MacLeod.

*"Good sense, which only is the gift of Heaven
And tho' no science fairly worth the seven."—Pope.*

McI. MacLeod came to us from Baddeck. Everybody knows "Tosh," and everybody likes him. He has held several important positions in the different college societies and next year sees him President of the College Y. M. C. A. Destined for Pine Hill, "Tosh" will make a valuable acquisition to the ministry. Everybody wishes the best for him in his chosen profession.

Harry Keith MacMahon.

"Leave all meaner things to low ambition."—Pope.

One of the representatives from the land of Evangeline in the class is Harry Keith MacMahon. He belongs to Waterville, Kings Co., N. S., and came to Dalhousie in 1909. At that time he thought of going into the ministry, but after two years residence at Pine Hill, he changed his mind, and turned his attention to Law. He was not able to come back to College this year but hopes to return next year to complete his course.

Waldron A. McQuarrie.

*"How charming is divine philosophy
Not harsh and crabb'd as dull fools suppose
But musical as is Apollo's lute
And a perpetual feast of nectar'd sweets
Where no crude surfeit reigns."—Milton "Comus."*

Waldron A. McQuarrie was born in Prince Edward Island in the town of Hampton. He came to the University with a scholarship and he has more than justified his selection. He has made a hit in philosophy and his logical arguments played an important part in his being chosen as leader of the debating team in his last year. He is a fellow of sound sense with a touch of genius for the abstract and should go far in the philosophical line.

W. M. Nelson.

"Seven hours to law, to soothing slumber seven Ten to the world allot and all to heaven."

Tatamagouche is the home of W. M. Nelson and we take off our hats to the town. Bill is the very best type of college man and deserves a tribute for his unselfish work. He has held offices in practically every society and he is a worker in them all. In his senior year he was secretary of the Council and when he comes next year to study law he will preside over the destinies of the Gazette of which he was business manager in the term '11'-12. "Bull" is always somewhere near the top when the results come out and his good sense and impartiality are qualities too that will take him far in the profession which he has chosen—the Law.

B. C. Salter.

"Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked."—Deuteronomy xxxii.15.

B. C. Salter comes from Chatham, N. B. A popular chap of a studious disposition, he is well liked by his intimate friends. He has held positions on the Executives of nearly all the College societies and has been a great worker. The prominent part played by him in the Sine Cura Society has made it the leading society in the college life. In the fall he will attend Pine Hill with the intention of entering the ministry where no doubt a brilliant future awaits him.

C. G. Smith.

"Quips and Pranks and wanton Wiles Nods and Becks and wreathed Smiles."—Milton L'Allegro.

C. G. Smith is the "only and original." He hails from North Sydney, and is one of the youngest members of his class. A genius for music, he is constantly in demand for the piano and he nearly always responds. He is a clever chap of very likeable parts and is a great favorite with all, Gordon will succeed in whatever profession he enters and will undoubtedly be popular in it.

Harold Archibald Smith.

*"Crisp as the foam of the waves that roar
On the barren coast of Labrador."*

Harold Archibald Smith claims Sydney as his home and Truro as his footstool. Smith is a clever chap, a good worker both at his own and at the students' business and is well liked by all his friends. He has been connected with most of the college societies and has filled many offices with the extreme of proficiency. He was class secretary in his senior year. He is to enter the ministry and is now in Labrador on missionary work. The Y. M. C. A. will miss him greatly as he has presided at the piano at all their meetings. We know that Smith will have success and take pleasure in wishing it for him more abundantly.

Lloyd Keating Smith.

"And short retirement urges sweet return."—Milton.

Lloyd Keating Smith of Londonderry, N. S. was one of the original members of the class of 1913. After two years at Dalhousie, he went to Washington, C. D., where he attended the Bliss Electrical School for one year. He intends to return to Dalhousie next year and go on with the Engineering course. He is generally to be found at any of the social functions of the College, and was a member of the Orchestra of the Dramatic Club this year.

Hugh Morrow Stairs.

"Armed at point exactly, cap-a-pie."—Hamlet, Act 1, Sc. 2.

Hugh Morrow Stairs, the only and inimitable "Pie" comes from Halifax. Hugh wears his cap as if one ear were frostbitten and he wanted to protect it. If Pie ever did any studying he has not yet been detected, but he bowls along and generally comes out on the right side of the score sheet. A hail fellow well met sort of chap, he is pleasant and popular and increasing years will never take away his buoyancy.

C. G. SUTHERLAND.

*"Vows with so much passion, swears with so much grace
That 'tis a kind of heaven to be deluded by him."*

It would be an awful calamity if C. G. Sutherland ever had a cracked lip. Collie has Sunny Jim lashed to the mast when it comes to cheerfulness. He is cut out for a matinee idol and is a regular riot with the skirts. He has breezed through his four years with the extreme of nonchalance and it is almost uncanny the way his name is posted every trip. Collie's strong point is speeches in Class meetings. He always starts his speech with words calculated to gain the attention of his audience and he never fails to employ the same device all through his talk. He is, or was the perpetual candidate for football honors but he has destroyed the title by his success in achieving them. Collie will make a great doctor, when we see him smile we would almost trust him ourselves.

John King Swanson.

"I don't know what I may appear to the world, but to myself I seem to have been only like a boy playing on the sea shore and diverting myself now and then finding a smoother pebble or a prettier shell than ordinary, whilst the great ocean of truth lay all undiscovered before me."—Isaac Newton.

Sodom and Gomorrah have nothing coming to them in comparison with Kentville which is recorded as the home of John King Swanson. Swanson was one of those born to have greatness thrust upon them. It is on record that he refused 39 offices in Dal societies and after declining the honor some six or seven times finally succumbed to the entreaties of the class and became its president in the Senior year. He is a charter member of the "Society of Seekers After Truth" but report has it that he has little aptitude for research work and has been singularly unsuccessful in this particular line. Swanson is the right kind of College Man, giving a share of his time and ability to all its activities, and withal giving his studies their due as may be ascertained by a peep at the exam results. Our very best wishes will follow his career as a disciple of Blackstone.

A. R. Yeoman.

"This bank-note World!"—Halleck.

A. R. Yeoman, after a short career in a bank decided to take a degree from Dal before entering the ministry. Richie is a well read, level headed chap who has taken no very prominent part in college activities but who has his own opinions, which he is not at all afraid to express. He is a bad man in argument and will make a fine theologian. Success to him.

R. F. Yeoman.

"And still I seem to tread on classic ground."—Addison.

R. F. Yeoman, a Halifax product, has made a scholastic record to be proud of in his University career. Bob must stand or fall on his record in studies as he has taken but a small part in college life other than to show his interest by attendance. In the languages he is about as near perfection as it is given to mortals to reach and he is no "piker" in other subjects. He inherits a tradition in the law, being a nephew of the late Judge Sedgwick of the Supreme Court of Canada. He will undoubtedly uphold it and our good wishes go with him in his course at Dalhousie Law School and later in the world.

SCIENCE.

James Brittain Carson.

"Our science only will one genius fit."—Pope.

James Brittain Carson was born in Pictou, N. S., but now claims Dartmouth as his home. He received his preliminary education at Pictou Academy, and entered Dalhousie in 1909 in pursuit of a Science degree. He was the only one of the original members of the class who took the course in Pure Science. Jamie is of a quiet and reserved disposition, not taking much part in class affairs or College Societies, and so is not well known even to his classmates, but he is a good worker and has made a very creditable record in his course.

G. D. Floyd.

"Sana mens in sano corpore."—Horace.

G. D. Floyd is known to fame as the original white hope and since the death of McCarthy may again come into the glare of the spotlight. A well liked chap is Floyd. His great ability and sturdy physique ensure his success in life. If wishes will further it he has all that we can give him.

J. Bertram Hayes.

"Let your lights be burning."—The Bible.

J. Bertram Hayes is usually in a quandary as regards his allegiance whether he should give it to Dal. or to Mt. Allison. He splits it up and roots now for the one, now for the other. Part of his Arts course he took at Dal. and part at Mt. A. but he received his B. Sc. with our own '13 class. He tried his best to leave this world via the air route but the chemicals imitated Elijah and his chariot of fire only so far as to burn the surface off a goodly portion of his map. Bert is a mighty decent chap, cheery and good natured, with a glad word for all. May he have the success he deserves.

Geo. Henderson.

"He reads much, he is a great observer."—Julius Caesar.

Geo. Henderson was received into the fellowship of the 1913 class in its Sophomore year, from Pictou. Taking a scientific course, his record has been an enviable one and we wish him the best of success. It is said he has developed a taste for "Bug," whatever that may be.

Alan M. James.

"Yet a little Sleep."—The Bible.

Starting at the ground floor the first yard and a half of Alan M. James looks like No. 11 on a front door. That is while this part is in repose for when it starts to move it looks more like 23.

"Sleep" started with the eleven class but decided to take his B. Sc. with '13 and no one can blame him for that. He is a hard man to beat in athletics and besides being an A1 footballist, is probably the best basket ball player ever developed in these parts and he has helped his class in their hockey triumphs. Though he has never shown any disposition to rob another chap of premier scholastic honors, few can talk more intelligently on their subjects. He is a great devotee of both Euterpe and Terpsichore and Cupid it is said has employed both these Muses to aid him in his designs on the lofty one. A quiet hardheaded likeable chap and a friend all the way, may he have all the luck we wish him.

UNITED STUDENTS' COUNCIL.

"In full tide of successful experiment."

Jefferson.

The year that has just passed saw the beginning of a new form of Student Government at Dalhousie. For some years it had been felt that the old U. S. C. had outlived its usefulness, and last Spring a new method was adopted, by which the central authority was placed in the hands of representatives elected by the students of the various faculties. This system was in its experimental stage this year and although there have been a good many criticisms of it, the general opinion is that it is a great improvement on former methods.

The Council meets regularly once a month for transaction of routine business, and a number of special meetings have also been held during the year. The most important Acts of the Council have already been reported in the Gazettee.

The idea of those who drafted the new Constitution was that an active central governing body recognized as such by students and Senate, and clothed with the necessary authority to enforce its edicts, would do much toward binding together the students, and supplying that unity among classes and faculties, which has to a large measure been lacking here in the past.

This is the aim which the present council have tried to keep in view and their most important acts were designed to promote this object, particularly the Resolution for the better financing of the various College Societies which was endorsed by a large majority of students and approved by the Senate, and which will be in force next year.

Another aim of the Council is to promote unity of feeling and action between Students and Senate, and the conferences held this year between the latter body and the Council helped to clear away mutual misunderstandings on various matters.

DALHOUSIE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

"Whatever makes men good Christians,
Makes them good citizens."

Daniel Webster.

The session just closed has been in many respects a successful one for the Young Men's Christian Association. Work has gone on much after the fashion of other years, Devotional Meetings, Union Meetings, Sunday Lectures, Bible Study and Mission Study. Many of the meetings were largely attended thus showing the interest of the students in the subjects discussed. Bible Study did not get the attention it deserved. The classes were late in starting and consequently there was not as much done as might have been accomplished. The class in Mission Study conducted by J. C. MacDonald, B. A., was much enjoyed and it is to be hoped that this branch of work will get more attention next year.

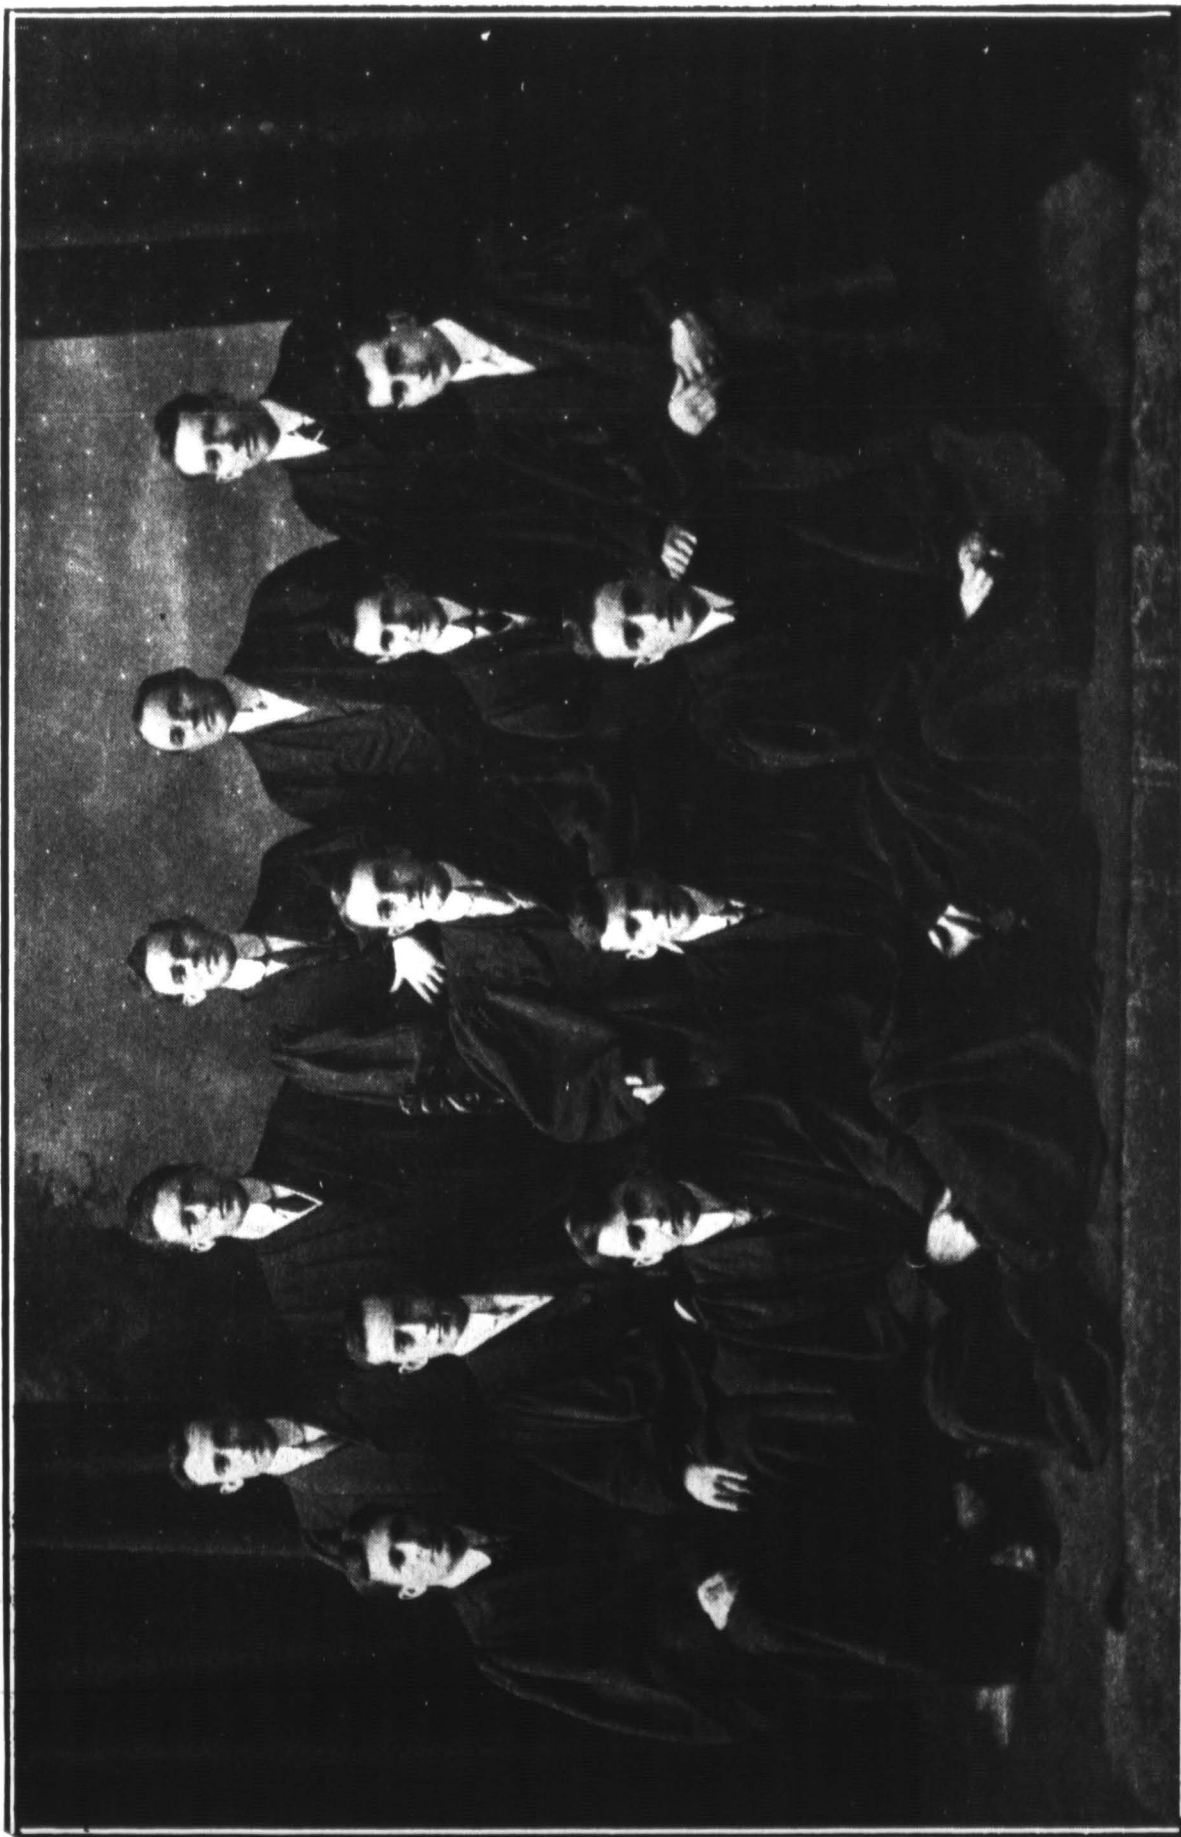

Some students object to the Association because its nature is such that only Theologues can enjoy it and consequently it can have no attractions for the Lawyer, Medical, Dentist, Engineer, etc. Others object to it because its meetings are conducted too much after the stereotyped prayer-meeting style. Possibly occasion has been given for both these objections. But these objections are really only criticisms of a method to obtain an end. To use the well-known Northfield expression, "the Y. M. C. A. does not, nor should not attempt to soft soap you with religious dope." Its aim is to bring men to a knowledge of the principles of Jesus believing that the religion of Jesus Christ offers to man a power for service which he cannot obtain from any other quarter. This it does, not by dogmatic assertion, but by open, frank discussion. It also attempts to assist the student in solving some of the problems of his student life. If short, it caters to his social, mental and spiritual natures. An organization which stands for such should recommend itself to every student, past, present and future of Dalhousie.

Y. W. C. A.

"Be not forgetful to entertain strangers for thereby some have entertained angels unawares."

It is never easy to sum up the work of such a society as the Y. W. C. A. in words, and yet, in this instance, the Dal association may be said to have had a very successful year. The meetings were well attended and whenever you made the Munro room by five o'clock Monday afternoon, you were sure to hear something that helped. Moreover, from a financial standpoint, we have not failed utterly, though our record is hardly as good as last year and we were able to have only one delegate represent us at the Muskoka conference. Choice fell on Eda Nelson of '14.

Perhaps the most outstanding event of the term was the visit, in November, of Miss Lucy Robinson, travelling secretary of the student volunteer movement. Miss Robinson was a revelation and an inspiration.

To the students who are coming back next year, the present cabinet urges "Excelsior." Much has been done, but there is much yet to accomplish. The executive for the following year is:—

President—Eda Nelson,
 Vice-President—Jean Craig
 Treasurer—Mabel MacKay,
 Secretary—Lillie I. Bayne.

With such a committee in charge, the coming term at Dal should hold many good things for the Y. W. C. A.

CLASS AT LAW, 1913.

"Of Law there can be no less acknowledged than that her seat is the bosom of God, her voice the harmony of the world. All things in Heaven and earth do her homage,—the very least as feeling her care, and the greatest as not exempt from her power."

Richard Hooker.

Charles Guy Black, M. A., Ll. B.

*"And then the Justice,
"In fair round belly, with good capon in'd."*

A product of Cumberland County, Black graduated from Dalhousie in Arts in 1909. In 1911, he received his master's degree and now he has added Ll. B. to his stock-in-trade. A good student, speaker and general all round man, he bids fair to make a success wherever his path may lie.

J. Bacon Dickson, Ll. B.

"A daughter of the gods, divinely tall—"

"Shorty" comes from Fredericton, N. B., where his best girl lives. His previous education was received at the University of New Brunswick. A great actor, comedian and good fellow, he was deservedly one of the most popular students at the University. Well up in his classes and possessing the faculty of putting first things first, he, no doubt, will make the legal talent in New Brunswick sit up and take notice.

G. Fred. H. Long, Ll. B.

*"Thou speak'st aright:
"I am that merry wanderer of the night."
"I jest to Oberon and make him smile."*

"Freddy" shone as a dramatic artist, dancer and collector of customs. Like the hereinbefore, in part recited, Dickson, he came from New Brunswick, but unlike "Shorty, his girl lived in Halifax, as was plainly to be seen on Saturday and other evenings. He was always as happy as the day was long and many a law student still bears on his back, the trade mark of Long's favorite method of salutation. We wish him luck in all he undertakes.

Murdoch Alexander MacPherson, Ll. B.

*"Mine eye hath well examined his parts,
"And find them perfect,—"*

"Murdo" was born at Grand Anse, N. S., not N. B., as has been erroneously stated. Early in his life, he pledged himself to liberty and law and in the Mock Parliament, he led a party which had for their motto, "No favor wins us or no fear shall awe." As leader of a victorious debating team, secretary of Sodales and Business Manager of the Gazette, he has filled a large place in the life of the University. Murdoch led his class in studies and his popularity was well testified to, when he was elected valedictorian. No one who knows him has any doubt but that a brilliant career awaits him in the wider Canadian life.

Thomas Alexander MacKay, B. A., Ll. B.

"A Liberal I was born, a Liberal I will remain."

MacKay hails from Pictou County. He graduated in Arts in 1911 and slipped over into law as an affiliated student. As a premier of the Mock Parliament, and a general agitator for its betterment, he did much in his Junior year to put that institution on the footing it now occupies. A constant warbler and a man of pronouncedly liberal instincts, "Allie" will probably fill a place in the serried rank of the Opposition, before many years have flown.

Clarence McD. Maloney, Ll. B.

"—of a free and open nature, that thinks men honest,—"

"All hail to the day" when Clarence came over from Trinidad and planted himself within the classic precincts of Pine Hill. His first speech, at the 1910 Law Dinner, gave Maloney a place in his class which made him popular during his whole course. As a wrestler, he gained great prominence during his second year and through the untiring efforts of "Bull Eggleston," he became an athlete of no mean prowess. Maloney goes back to Trinidad with the best wishes of every man in his class and every person with whom he ever came into contact, for a successful and brilliant career. Well done Maloney, you have started well, we look to you for still greater things.

Joseph Emile' Michaud, B. A., Ll. B.

"For he was a jolly good fellow."

Joseph Emile' Michaud, B. A., Ll. B. was a product of New Brunswick. He came to the Law School with an enviable record from St. Dunstan's and Laval and maintained it here. A good hard student he yet found time to take in the Hockey Games, etc.

Herman Clare Morse, B. A., Ll. B.

*"Tis the voice of the sluggard
I heard him complain
You have wok'd me too soon
I must slumber again."*

Herman Clare Morse, B. A., Ll. B. from Middleton, Annapolis County was undoubtedly one of the hardest and most consistent workers in Law. His first years here he applied himself to Law solely, but rumour has it that this year he applied himself as earnestly to something perhaps not entirely unconnected with Law. Truly Morse was a man who believed in the eleventh commandment—of minding his own business.

Eugene Troop Parker, B. A., Ll. B.

*"He was in logic a great critic,
Profoundly skilled in analytic;
He could distinguish and divide
A hair 'twixt south and southwest side."*

Eugene Troop Parker, B. A., Ll. B. also from the Valley had in him in all those qualities that go to make a gentleman. Active in all societies he was particularly strong in debating and was on Dal's Team in 1911. 'Gene was probably the most popular man in Law and justly so. Mock Parliament will miss him next winter but what is the Law School's loss is Windsor's gain.

John Shenstone Roper, M. A., Ll. B.

"Idle never is he but thrifty and thoughtful of others."

John Shenstone Roper, M. A., Ll. B., Haligonian through and through and content to remain one. He took his B. A. and M. A. here but it was not until he entered Law that he really came into his own. During the past two years he has held many important offices, during the past year being Editor-in-Chief of the Gazette and as such has written able and fearless editorials. "Jack" has a great deal of executive ability and will do well. In his last year he was a practical example of "fusser."

William Henry Skinner, Ll. B.

"Oh young Lochinvar has come out from the west."

William Henry Skinner, Ll. B., from Calgary, was particularly strong on three subjects—Calgary vs. Edmonton, Municipal Ownership and dancing the light fantastic step. Undoubtedly the society man of the Class, he was also a good student and much will come from Skinner in his own Great West.

James Douglas Vair, B. A. Ll. B.

"So fearless in love and so dauntless in war."

James Douglas Vair, B. A., Ll. B. came from Pictou and was one of the most prominent university men in college. In his last year he was President of the U. S. C. and was as such eminently competent. He was noted for his political propensities and Doug's future in politics is assured. He was librarian the past year and his powerful voice was a great factor in the maintaining of order in the Law Library.

THE DALHOUSIE SKATING CLUB.

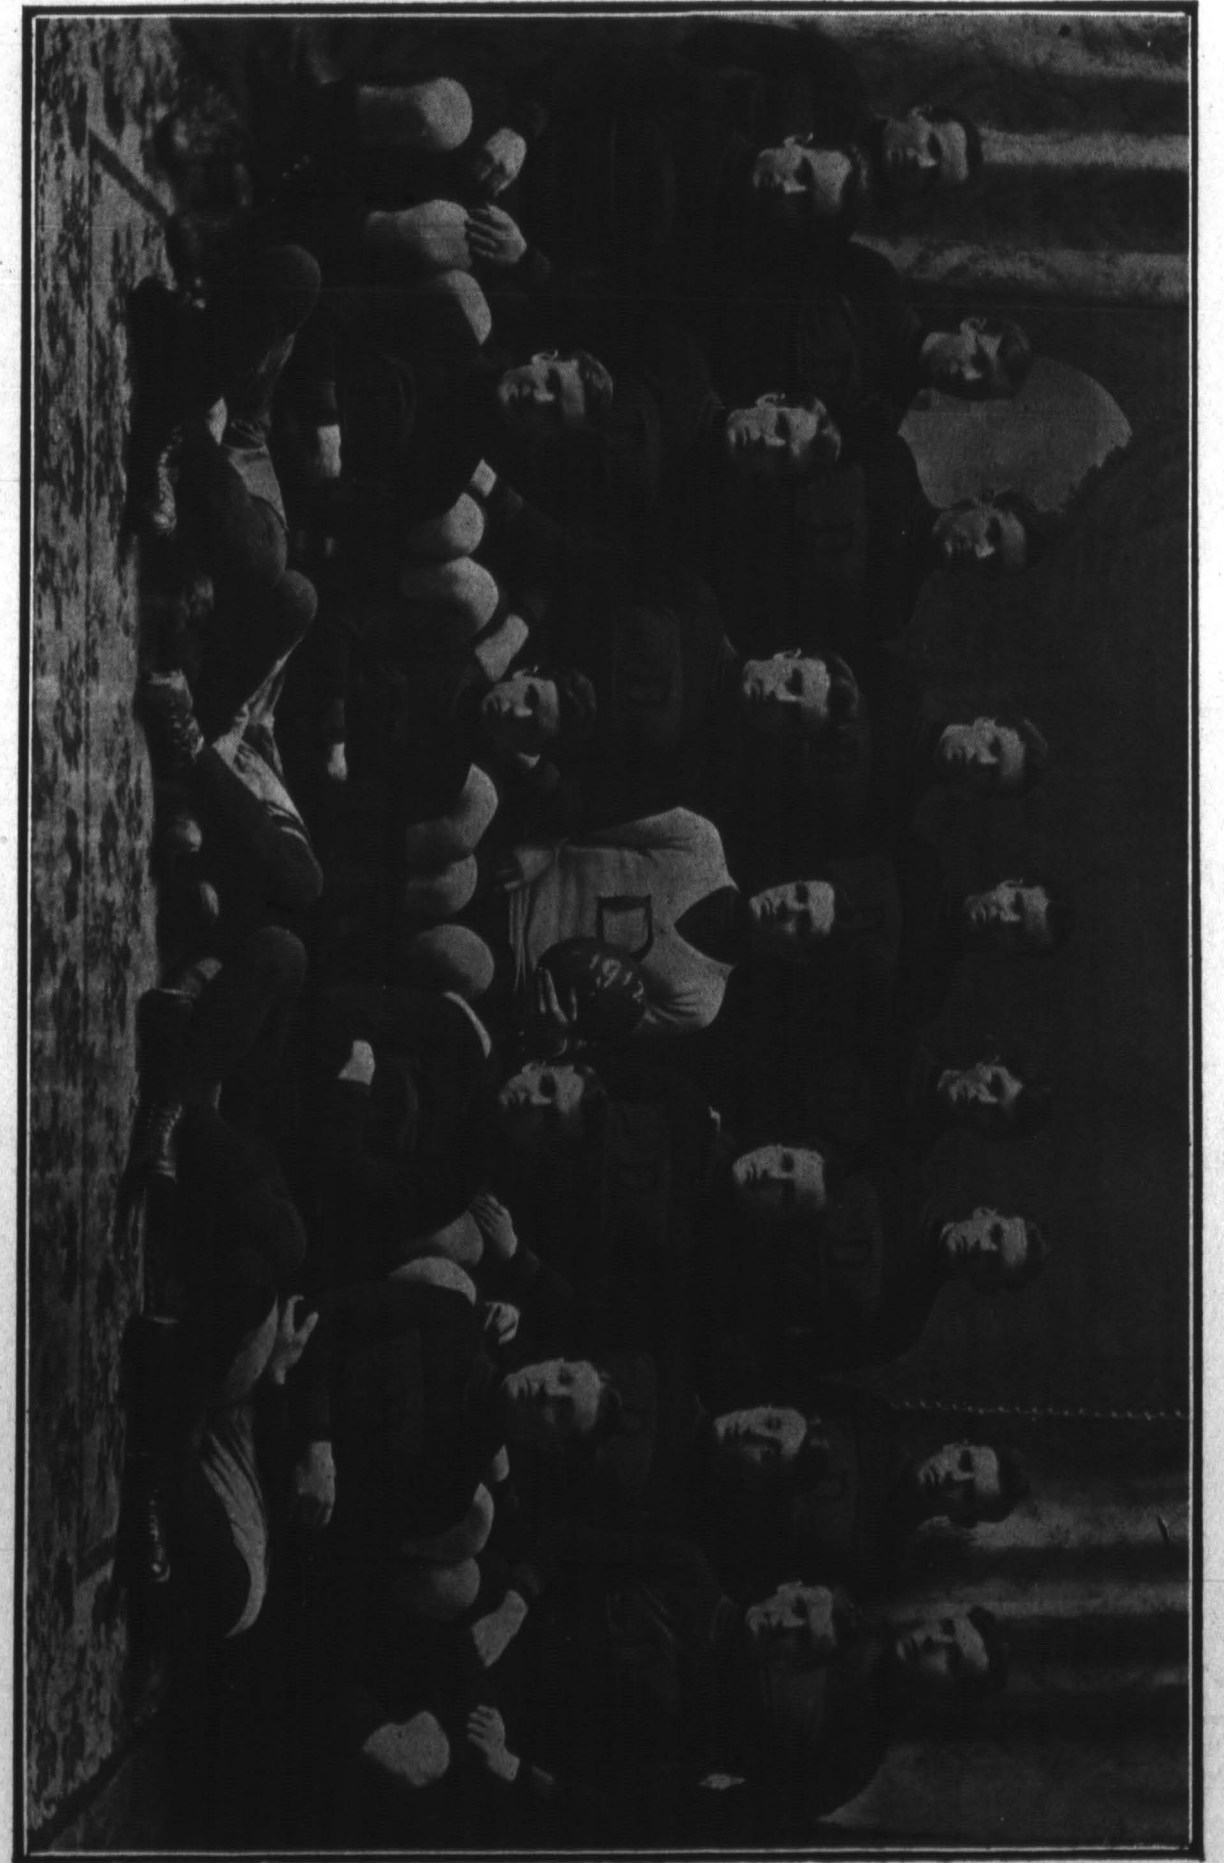

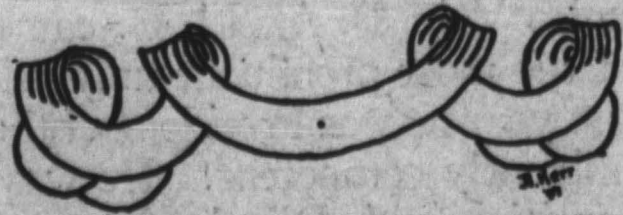

" 'Tis more by art than force of numerous strokes."

To have one's fortunes largely in the hands of the weather man is somewhat of a risk, but during the past winter the Skating Club has again taken the chance and it has had the most fortunate season in its history.

Socially the Club was very successful. The pleasure of two evenings was greatly enhanced by the kindness of Mrs. Murray Macneill and also of President MacKenzie, who each provided refreshments for which the members of the Club feel very grateful. A fancy dress Carnival was held during the season and it was a very brilliant affair indeed. The average attendance on each evening was nearly two hundred.

To Professor MacIntosh, who added materially to its assets, and to Lieutenant Ryan, through whose courtesy the music was provided, the Club desires to express its sincerest thanks.

As the University grows larger and the interests of its students more diversified, we cannot help feeling the value of the work which our club is doing, not only in providing healthy exercise for the body and pleasant relaxation for the mind, but also in furnishing an opportunity for forming those acquaintanceships and friendships which ought to be and are a large part of a proper college life.

F. D. GRAHAM, (Captain)

DALHOUSIE FOOTBALL TEAM,
1913.

ATHLETICS.

"Here the free spirit of Mankind, at length,
Throws its last fetters off; and who shall place
A limit to the giant's unchained strength,
Or curb his swiftness in the forward race."

Bryant.

Our record in athletics this year is of value chiefly as an example of what it will be well not to follow too closely in the future. Our athletic season opened with the Inter-collegiate Track Events at the Exhibition. This is our first attempt at track athletics and little was to be expected, as our men have no place to train and the shortness of our year prevents any indulgence in this kind of sport. We were placed 3rd, and a very bad third, to Acadia and Mt. A. Our football season was the climax, we must hope, of three unsatisfactory football years. It is a matter of congratulation, however, that no graduates were played on the team and it led to the adoption of a rule by the D. A. A. C. that only registered students should be eligible for College Games in any contest. The fact that a game was arranged with McGill and that a return game is on tapis is a pleasing incident of the season. The McGill boys are fine sports and we do well to encourage a friendly athletic rivalry between the two Colleges. The year was a constructive year in football and we look hopefully toward the season of 1913. In hockey our activities were confined to the city league in which we finished second to the Tech. Man for man we looked the class of the league but poor team work was responsible for our not landing the cup. Enthusiasm in hockey was at a low ebb both in players and the general student body and what we need in hockey is a little "pep" for the material is there. In the Basket Ball Team the College had the strongest team that has ever played this sport in Halifax. Its members were all over 6 feet in height and there was no lack of agility. We lost a close game to Acadia in Wolfville where the use of side lines bothered the team but we gave Acadia a bad beating in Halifax, beat the strong New Glasgow team in New Glasgow and in Halifax the Brunswicks, the best city team, and the Tech. Pine Hill couldn't see their way clear to play, but as they were trounced by Tech, we considered that they would scarcely cause our boys to extend themselves. The basket ball season was the one bright spot in the athletic sky. Our track athletics can scarcely fail to improve. We will be much surprised if we do not show first class football in the coming season while all that hockey needs is a little vim.

CLASS AT DENTISTRY, 1913.

Anson D. Hopper, D. D. S.

*"Alone, alone, all all alone,
Alone on the wide, wide sea;
And never a saint took pity on My soul in agony."—Coleridge.*

Hopper was the sole surviving member of the 1913 graduating class, which lined up to get the degree of D. D. S. at Convocation. Needless to say he was a very popular man and this popularity caused him to be elected President for Life of his class at its last meeting. He is built on the long, lean, cool drink of water style with a bend at the back like Robin Hood's bow and was a very familiar "figure" around the corridors. He is practising at Truro, from whence he came, and all reports predict for him, unqualified success.

CLASS AT MEDICINE, 1913.

*"Better use medicines at the outset than at the last moment."
—Publius Lyrus.*

Geoffrey Alden Barss, M. D. C. M.

*"For nature crescent does not grow alone
In thews and bulk."—Hamlet.*

Barss is a Dartmouth boy and it is only natural that his efforts to catch an early ferry should have developed him into a good runner. Before coming to Dalhousie he studied Arts at Acadia. An excellent clinician "Jeff" has always been to the fore in the examination lists. He is practising in Hants Harbour, Newfoundland.

Roderick Owen Bethune, M. D. C. M.

"A sound mind in a sound body."

"Rory" comes from Cape Breton, the particular spot being Baddeck. He has been very prominent in college life chiefly through his interest in Athletics, having played on the first fifteen for three seasons. At the same time he has been a good student and his friends all predict for him a successful career.

Alexander Rae Campbell, B. A., M. D. C. M.

"I look at all things as they are."—Tennyson.

Born in Merigomish, Campbell came to Dalhousie from Pictou Academy. He graduated in Arts in 1910. In his Medical course he has shown that he possesses very fine technical skill. A diligent student, he is sure to bring honor to his native county and to his Alma Mater. He is practising in Reserve Mines.

Francis Stapislaus Finlay, M. D. C. M.

"Brave physician, rare physician, Thou has well performed thy mission."

Finlay is a Halifax boy and he received his early training at the Halifax Academy. After working for some time in the City Post Office he came to Dalhousie to study Medicine. Frank has made many friends during his college course. At the present writing he is on the staff of the Victoria General Hospital.

James MacGregor Johnson, M. D. C. M.

*"In peace there's nothing so becomes a man,
As modest stillness and humility."—Shakespeare.*

A native of Tatamagouche, Johnson attended Pictou Academy and the Provincial Normal School to prepare himself for the teaching profession. After some time in the West he came to Dalhousie in 1908. Possessing a fine sense of humour, he has been one of the most popular boys in the Medical College. He is continuing his studies in England.

Albert Hugh MacKinnon, M. D. C. M.

"—Flashes of merriment that were wont to set the table on a roar."—Shakespeare.

MacKinnon is a Pictonian, hailing from Pictou Landing. Popularly known as the "Sheriff" throughout his course he has always been a force in student life. He has been a captain of the Medical football team and during his final year he was a member of the U. S. C. and President of the Medical Society. He has taken a practise in Musquodoboit.

Arthur Augustus Cuthbert Wilson, M. D. C. M.

*"Since years were slipping from his life
He early took himself a wife."—Anon.*

Springhill was well represented when Wilson received his degree. Besides being a married man, Pat is a good fellow and a clever student. Before coming to Dalhousie he studied Arts at Kings. He purposes to practise in his home town.

A HITHERTO UNWRITTEN HISTORY OF THE
CLASS AT LAW '13

"O call back yesterday, bid time return!"

Late in the autumn of 1910, "when wild with the winds of September, wrestled the trees of the forest as Jacob of old with the angels" there wandered into Halifax from Fredericton, "a bird of passage" afterwards known to all undergraduates as Shorty Dickson. Following immediately on his heels came Freddy Long, another New Brunswicker, who as was fitting for such a grave character, took up his place of abode at that famous institution of legal learning, Pine Hill. These men, so resembling Bud Fisher's "Mutt and Jeff" were the forerunners of that little band of pioneers, called the class-at-law, 1913. However, these forerunners did not, like their biblical predecessors, live on locusts and wild honey.

This class, bearing around its neck the millstone '13, soon proved itself capable of throwing superstition to the winds and demonstrating that such a number is in reality a very lucky one. On arriving at the University, they found the domain of law in possession of a large tribe of red indians, led by two howling, spitting savages intitled "Old Chum" McIsaac and his squaw "Twisty" McGrath, a Micmac from Terra Nova. With such companions, they learned to eat, drink and be merry and drink long enough to forget that the day of examination cometh when all must work or be plucked.

Along with this little band of thirteen thirteeners, there came at the same time, two orators surnamed Martel "the Hydrant" and Smiley "the soul of wit." Both of these worthies after a short stay, transferred their allegiance to the 1912 Class, finding the ante of the latter more suited to their limit-ed income.

At that period, as today, the monarch of law, was the great, white haired Dean Weldon, loved and respected by all who knew him. The first duty of the incomers was to take the oath of allegiance to him and pay fealty in the shape of $50 for one year's tuition. They had also to pay Caution Money after the rate of two dollars per annum, according to the terms and conditions of a certain variable Law Calendar, made by the right hand of the Senate of Dalhousie to the left hand of the said Senate of Dalhousie, and keep the property at Dalhousie covered by the said Caution Money for the sum and in the manner set forth in the said hereinbefore in part recited calendar and otherwise carry out, perform and observe all the other covenants, conditions and terms of the said calendar, then the said Caution Money was to be returned, otherwise to be deducted pro rata according to the market price of silk at that time. Such price to be determined by the said Senate. As will be seen from the foregoing, the students were strangers to the consideration, but they had to pay it just the same.

The Dean welcomed them each and everyone to his realm and promised to protect them from the wild tribes of Arts, Medicine and Dentistry, during their period of legal incapacity. Soon they became acquainted with the sages of this great ruler. First of all, they were introduced to the power behind the throne, Judge Russell, who balanced on a chair, which in its turn was balanced upon one leg, inculcated into their minds the mysteries of Anson, the only man who really ever knew what a contract was. "They looked and as they looked, their wonder grew, that one small head could carry all he knew." Next by means of a "short" course, delivered intermittently, they thoroughly imbibed the abstruseness of Real Property from Controller O'Connor, who contrary to his prefix could not control his attendance and was therefore often conspicuous by his absence. Then His Honor Judge Wallace instilled into their minds that "everyone is guilty of an indictable offence" and at the same time cited the contents of the Canadian Criminal Cases as a sure means of understanding the phrase. Strange to say the popular parson from Trinidad knowingly and wilfully purloined first place at examination time, such is the training one gets from a year's residence with theologues. The great Dean himself, with his well known fortitude and patience also lectured "from morn till eve" on the evils of the feudal system and "Volenti non fit inuria," but his continued repetition of those acts which "a prudent and reasonable man might do" did not effect the Annual Dinner one way or the other. At sundry times and in divers places, they received a lecture or two from Mr. Hector McInnes, K. C. on Practice and Procedure. The frequent postponement of "Chambers gave much training in "moving" for adjournments which will probably come in useful in years to come. It is a remarkable thing that a debtor must seek his creditor, but much more remarkable how few carry out the rule. For authorities vide Collier's Collectors.

While digesting the hereinbefore in part recited lectures of legal lore many members of the class attended meetings of the Mock Parliament, the Dramatic Club, Sodales and Kittys, in order to free their minds from the law of the land and imbibe a little of the unwritten law. The Mock Parliament, which was holden at a place certain, the moot court room, every Monday evening before Xmas, was a popular resort. Here, amid the smoke of the Speaker's calabash and the juice of the Premier's ancient quid, these young hopefuls learned the art of railroaded legislation in all its devious paths. They took in the Mosaic law as laid down in "Eagle" McKinnon's "Abolition of Capital Punishment" and condemned the militants on the second reading of Plugger Keefe's "Suffrage Bill." They learned many wily tricks in the art of politics from such astute legislators as the late Frank Christie and H. P. Bramwell so that in years to come they might be fitted to fill any vacancies in the Privy Council of Canada. Slightly akin to the Mock Parliament and held in the same place, was the Law Society, ruled over by a president, elected by the divine right of having been Secretary the year before. Here were passed votes of censure, resolutions to have sleigh drives and dinners and above all levies, which varied according to the number of hockey sticks broken per season. Here also during their first year, the thirteen thirteeners witnessed the finish of Owens "Law Review" and the last stand of Dysart's "Dancing Masters". This society had an executive which was noted for its do-nothing policy, although one year its energy was all consumed in having its picture taken.

Of the sleigh drives, the law dinners, the great debates and other functions held, little need, nor should be said. Words fail to describe them. They have left their footprints in the sands of time as immutable and unchangeable as the men who took part in them. "Live while you live" the epicure would say "and seize the pleasures of the passing day." So it is with the law student, Old Father Time is too exacting and makes the time all too short. Thus he must take things as they come and lose no time in drinking them to their fill.

In its second year, the class began to peer into the future and having read Plato's "Immortality of the Soul," they sought the advice of Controller O'Connor on "wills and old testaments." It is marvellous how easy it is to prepare a will after very little instruction. "Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just" and ten times armed is he who has learned the attestation clause off by heart, at least, at Exam time. Equity and Bills and Notes were also dispensed at the usual "seat of customs." Bills and Notes were gleaned from a black biblical looking book, to interpret which, he had indeed to be a bold bad devotee of the higher criticism who wished to make a "first div." In Evidence, His Honor Judge Patterson held forth on every second Thursday, hours as the other classes directed. The multiplicity of the cases to be read in preparation for this class, was counterbalanced by the good nature of the learned lecturer and his "timely" illustrations. As for his method of imparting knowledge, the number of students making firsts in his subjects shows convincingly the manner in which he thoroughly imbued his patients with "Cockle" and Phipson."

The third year of their course came and went all too quickly and with it Convocation and the long sought for degree of Ll. B. Now the light has gone out and the Class at Law 1913 is scattered "far and wide by mount and stream and sea." No more will the sonorous tones of "Doug" Vair reverberate throughout the corridors of old Dalhousie and no longer does Morse J. P. wander aimlessly into the library with his little green bag containing Thayer's Cases on Evidence. The Mock Court Room is still and the heated discussion on "Companies with provincial objects" have burnt themselves up because Allie MacKay has gone into real estate and Murdo MacPherson has gone after the girls. The lectures on Sales will still go on merrily but no longer will they be interpolated by "this here case" of Rory Graham and the song "Oh how can we work!" of Pastor Mulloney. The benches have assumed their normal positions and any loose pieces of furniture now feel safe, for has not "Gene" Parker migrated to Windsor and "Bill" Skinner gone hence to the Great West. Never again will the present scribe regale himself with "jokes" however bad they may have been, at the expense of his classmates. They are gone and he has given up his scribblings and his literary flights. for the soul inspiring avocation of bullying tardy debtors. This History too, is finished. We have chronicled the entry of our class, we now chronicle its exodus. The class of 1913, Law makes its final bow to publicity, leaving the granite steps of their Alma Mater with the awe "inspiring" parchment of a Bachelor of Laws but above all as Good Dalhousians.

OBITUARY.

We regret to have to chronicle the death of Professor J. G. McGregor of Edinburgh University, formerly Professor of Physics at Dalhousie. Dr. McGregor was a Nova Scotian and a Dalhousian, winning many scholarships and prizes at his Alma Mater during his student days. Later as a member of the Senate, he became a real live factor in our University life and his death will be regretted by the wide circle of students and friends all over Canada, who knew him. Dr. McGregor's part in the life of Dalhousie is too great to be dismissed with a single article or series of articles. It is too wide to be confined even to an article by one person and we hope that in the Fall, the Gazette will see its way clear to publish a fitting memorial to the man who in his life time, brought so much honor and glory to our University by the sea. In the meantime we offer our sincerest sympathies and condolences to the bereaved family, and convey to them our deepest regret for their sad loss.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

Allister Fraser, B. A., Ll. B., $10.00; Dr. T. W. Taylor, $5.00; E. W. Coffin, $4.00; A. Lawrence B. A., Ll. B., Rev., Dr. John Forrest, $2.00; T.M. Hibbert, B. A., $1.00.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The kind of spirit which should live in the hearts of all old Grads. Everybody should read these excerpts from the letter of a Dalhousian making good in the West:—

My dear Gazette:—

Your plaintiff appeal came duly to hand this morning, and I joyfully hasten to respond. I gather from the annotations on your statement that the money tightness has not spared even you, and I therefor enclose my cheque for ten dollars, which will put me in good standing and give me a credit balance. I fear we get a little careless away out here, and therefor I like to feel that I am paid in advance. If however you really need the money, just credit the balance to profit and loss and let it go at that.

* * * * *

I wish you and every enterprise connected with the old mother every success, and abundant and ever increasing usefulness in the great expansion.

Yours most sincerely,

Climo
