Dear Ms. Borgese:

I am familiar with some of your many writings on the law of the sea. While in the U.N. last August, I found out that you are an advisor to the Austrian Delegation to the Third U.N. Law of the Sea Conference in New York.

I'd like to invite you to write us a short article on the past and current developments on the law of the sea for publication in the International Law Bulletin. This new journal is being published out of Lewis University College of Law, but embraces legal scholars and jurists from many parts of the world.

If you accept to write, could we count on receiving your article for our December issue? Please let me know soon.

With best wishes.

Very cordially yours,

(Status Negotiations)

Dear Ms. Borgesi;

May this communication serve as an entreatment to call us collect at your convenience, in order to discuss several fine points regarding the "Trust Territory" of Micronesia, as relates to permitted fishing in the area of Palau and the other Districts within the "Territory"???

Do know, that for the past several months we have been involved in weighty negotiations, which have put us in an operable position to engage in a vast fishing venture, primarily in the Palau District for openers.

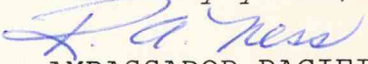

We would be most interested to know the name and authority from which Licensing/Permits are issued, ect. In addition, we are interested to know the present status regarding the implementation of the purported 200 mile limit, that is under consideration regarding the Trust Territory, as applies to fishing and related activities.

We were referred to your goodself, thru the office of the Pacific Chapter of UNITED NATIONS ASSOCIATION, USA here in Westwood.

We sincerely hope this communication is reaching the right party and further that you may be able and willing to give us direction on this matter.

Thanking you in advance, we remain,

Dear Mr. Pardo,

I am a Chilean diplomat currently posted in Washington and specialized in Law of the Sea matters. My participation on the Chilean delegation goes as far as Caracas. I deal with I Committee Matters, collaborating as an alternate delegate with Mr. Francisco Orrego.

The reason of my addressing you is because I am interested in a publication titled "The New International Economic Order and The Law of the Sea" which I have been unable to obtain.

I would be very thankful if you could inform me of the proceeding to obtain this book. The unfruitfulness of other means and my enormous interest in keeping in step with the developments of the Law of the Sea made me turn to you for assistance.

Ms. Borgese by M. W. L. L. L.

Dear Ms. Borgese:

If you write news, editorial or feature articles about science or environment you will be interested in the International Conference on Environmental Sensing and Assessment. In fact, you may consider this Conference worth attending as a source of several articles on the science and technology of environmental monitoring as it exists and is developing throughout the world.

The Conference is being held in Las Vegas, Nevada, September 14-19, 1975. A copy of the program with registration and room reservation forms is enclosed.

Implications of this Conference are far-reaching. Its international nature and the support it has from the World Health Organization, Pan American Health Organization, United Nations Environment Program and the U.S. Department of State attest to the global concern with pollution and its accurate detection and measurement. The diversity of Conference sponsors reflects a broad awareness that success in achieving environmental quality protective of human health depends heavily on the degree to which environmental monitoring data are valid and health related.

Two hundred and fifty technical papers will be presented by speakers from 22 nations. They will cover the state of the art in health-related environmental monitoring, looking at past performance, the current status, and future needs. Current and advanced technology for assessing environmental pollutants will be discussed. A panel will consider technology and government, and two plenary sessions will deal with legal aspects of monitoring and with the future of environmental quality assessment.

The Conference will open on Monday, September 15, with the keynote set by Mr. Russell E. Train, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator. Addresses will follow by Dr. Alexander S. Pavlov of the U.S.S.R., Assistant Director-General of the World Health Organization; Dr. Eduardo Echeverria Alvarez, President of the Technical Council of Mexico's Subsecretariat for Environmental Improvement; Mr. Fitzhugh Green, Associate Administrator of EPA; and Dr. Delbert S. Barth, Director of EPA's Environmental Monitoring and Support Laboratory in Las Vegas and General Chairman of the Conference. Mr. Christian A. Herter, Jr., Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Environmental and Population Affairs, will speak at a luncheon on Wednesday.

These speakers and the attending scientists and administrators from 32 nations offer unusual interview opportunities.

A press room will be in operation throughout the Conference for your convenience. Advance copies of technical papers, when available, will be in the press room for use by news media representatives. Press room staff will be ready to assist you in arranging interviews and locating speakers. The registration fee will be waived for representatives of accredited news media who present their credentials at the press room.

Please take time to look through the enclosed program. We hope you will find the International Conference it describes worthy of your attention. And we hope you will decide to come to Las Vegas in September to cover this Conference for your publication.

Sincerely yours,

ENERGY AND THE OCEANS

@charbes

The world's energy system and the world's ocean system are interconnected in a number of ways. These connections are becoming more intense and more consequential as the "energy crisis" unfolds. Increased population pressure, scarcity (for whatever reasons) of land-based energy resources, and the development of new technologies are pushing energy production and distribution farther and farther into the oceans. The oceans are becoming the primary locus for energy production (oil, gas, nuclear energy); the primary medium for energy distribution (tanker traffic, pipelines); the primary sink for energy waste disposal (oil, thermal waste, radioactivity); and a primary resource for energy generation (tidal, ocean currents, sea-thermal).

It is time for a systematic appraisal of this relationship between ocean and energy.

The International Ocean Institute in Malta has begun by contributing a series of research papers on energy and the oceans to the Center's project on Energy and the International System. This work will be continued.

The legal requirements generated by the ocean/energy interaction have not yet been explored. The only reference to any need for international law on this subject is to be found in the Maltese Draft for

Dear Sir,

referring to our correspondence in 1972 we venture to suggest to you again Salzburg and her Hall of Congress as a place for future conventions.

We would like to assure you of our best support, so all the members of your honoured organisation will have a wonderful time in our city and remember it warmly.

Our staff and congress-service have been schooled by a lot of international meetings held here.

We, of course, would take over the planning and carrying through of your convention.

We would be very pleased if you would allow us to welcome you in our city on the occasion of one of your meetings.

Yours sincerely
the director

Communications

 Austrian Airlines connects Salzburg daily with the principal international airports. Bookings can be made at the AUA office in Salzburg, Makartplatz 9, tel. 72 733 or at the airport tel. 85 405.

 Frontier Station. Salzburg is on the crossroads of the North/South and East/West routes in Austria, and is the centre of international rail traffic and can therefore be easily reached.

 Salzburg is served by a motorway which connects directly with the great network of major European motorways.

Meeting rooms for Congresses

KONGRESSHAUS

The "Kongresshaus" (Salzburg Convention Hall) is a very modern building, erected in 1957 in the centre of Salzburg, in the middle of the Kurpark. The Salzburg Convention Hall is a member of the International Union of Convention Halls. Convention hall.

Position: The Convention Hall enjoys an ideal and quiet position in the Kurpark, opposite the Château Mirabell, between the main line station and the Cathedral. The river Salzach flows about 200 yards away. All the tourist attractions of the town are within 5 or 10 minutes walk.

How to get there: All the main bus routes lead to the Convention hall.

Address: "Kongressbetriebe der Stadt Salzburg, A 5020 Salzburg, Auerspergstrasse 6-7".

Telegraphic address: "Kongressbetriebe Salzburg".
Telephone: 06222/73533 (11 lines).
Telex 63472.

Brief description of the building

Level A: Cellars, records. Room for office equipment, duplicators etc. Artists changing rooms. Air conditioning plant. Bowling alley. Telephone booths. Buffet.

Level B: Entered direct from the Kurpark. "Europa" Room. Various small meeting rooms in the "Europa Mirabell" hotel, with direct access from the "Europa" Room. Large hall (foyer), Post Office, Telegraph Office, teleprinters, telephone booths, Travel Agency, office for money changing. Desks for meeting organisers, for registration and pigeon holes for documentation, cloakrooms. Sick bay. Buffet and restaurant service. Various stalls and shops for the convenience of delegates, e.g. Theatre ticket agency, dressmaker, jeweller, optician, confectioners, souvenir shops, etc.

Level C: Press room with telephone outlets. Control room for lighting and sound equipment. Offices of the "Salzburg City Services for Conventions, Meetings and Exhibitions".

Level D: "Paracelsus" room. "Makart" room. "Mozart" room. Salzburg room. Buffet and restaurant service, cloakrooms, telephone, simultaneous interpretation booths, exhibition rooms.

Special technical installations

Facilities for delegates at the Convention hall

Telephones:

- An internal telephone system, independent of the public system, is installed throughout the building and connects all the various parts.
- The system is connected to the public service by the numbers 715 11, 725 31 and 725 91.

c) There are 11 independent telephone lines which can be put at the disposal of delegates.

d) A public Post Office installation supplies all telegraph, telephone and postal services, as well as teleprinters, which can be installed if required by the organisers, who decide the times at which this office shall open.

e) As at d) above, special telegraph, telephone and teleprinter offices are available for the Press.

f) If required by organisers, a certain number of telephone lines can be connected on each floor.

g) It is possible to install additional telephones and telephone outlets in special booths apart from the booths already set up.

Postal service: A special public post office can be installed on demand. The type and complexity is left to the choice of the organisers.

Public address system: A public address system links all the rooms in use. This system can be used to broadcast urgent messages at all times.

Closed circuit television between the various rooms. All the connections are in place. The system has been used in all the rooms and we are able to guarantee that it can be installed to the satisfaction of convention organisers with a minimum of delay.

Travel bureau: Travel bureau staff is multilingual and is always at the service of organisers and delegates. The travel bureau is able to handle all travel arrangements for the convention, it organizes and executes all excursion programmes, guided tours, etc.

Bank: At the time of each convention a banking office is opened for the convenience of delegates. The organisers can choose the times of opening and closing.

Convention and reception service: A separate information is at the service of convention delegates apart from the travel bureau. Multilingual staff can aid in the preparation of local itineraries and will supply all information.

Exhibition service: Organisers wishing to arrange an exhibition concurrently with their convention can obtain free assistance through this service. It can aid in the resolution of all problems arising in the arrangement and realisation of successful exhibits. The exhibition service can arrange for the services of a specialist team to handle the planning, the design, the mounting and the overall organisational layout for exhibitions.

Entertainment service: this service is not only for reserving theatre seats etc., but can organise special activities for delegates such as private concerts, theatre parties, dances, dinners, folklore outings, etc.

Airline ticket office: The Austrian Airlines has an office in the Convention hall. It will supply information on all flights and make bookings and reservations.

Parking: There are two parking areas which can take 500 vehicles. They are in the immediate vicinity of the Convention hall and are reserved for delegates. Parking is free. There are a further 1000 parking places in the area.

Bar and restaurant: There are three independent restaurants, each with bar and buffet, offering a complete range of good food. On level A the buffet restaurant provides good plain food, presented in a typically Salzburg atmosphere. On level B is a luxury restaurant, run by the Europa Mirabell Hotel. On level D is a quick service buffet where prices are very moderate and where delegates in a hurry can obtain meals and refreshments.

Facilities for the organisation of meetings

Rooms: Europa Room for 1000 people; Paracelsus Room for 300 people; Markart Room for 120 people; Mozart Room for 60 people; Salzburg Room for 30 people. In addition there are many smaller rooms suitable for 10-25 people. Free cloakrooms on every floor.

General services: Printing and copying service. Photocopying. Art workshop. Any number of pigeon holes.

Secretarial facilities: Convention offices and various counters can be installed on all floors.

Simultaneous translation equipment: Simultaneous translation can be broadcast on six channels. The installation is permanent and can be used in each room throughout the building. Participants are able to listen in from any part of the Convention hall.

Portable Translation Equipment: This is a secondary system, broadcasting on six channels. It is packed in portable cases and can easily be moved, with a minimum of delay, to any part of Salzburg, throughout Europe or even overseas.

Special debating facilities: Special discussion installations to aid the debate of many delegates in large rooms are available. Thus a large number of delegates can join in the discussion without having to leave their seats. These installations possess fully automatic control.

Further technical equipment available: All the different types of equipment necessary for a successful convention are on call. This list of equipment is continually extended as the most up-to-date facilities are added: Proki writing projectors, sound film projectors, 8, 16, and 35 mm cine projectors, tape recorders, slide projectors, epidiascopes, screens of all sizes, microphones, luminous tubes, hall amplifying equipment, arrow projecting flashlights, etc.

Technical installations

Air conditioning: The whole building is air conditioned.

Power supplies: A large number of points for lighting and power are available on each floor, especially in view of large exhibitions. The lighting of the building is arranged so as to satisfy all the requirements of any convention.

In addition, the central lighting and spotlighting bridge can be fitted with any type of special flood or spotlights, suitable for any kind of show or exhibit or convention (mobile spot clusters, coloured spotlights, odine spotlights, footlights, variable lens projectors and clusters of fixed spotlights).

Mains power outlets for special film and TV-shooting operations can be set up (live broadcasts or MAZ video recordings), up to 100 KVA capacity per outlet.

Water supplies on each floor are sufficient for even large exhibitions.

Duplicating: There is a permanent office for duplicating by stencil or photocopying. A designer and decorator is available to organisers, as is a printing service which gives priority to conventions.

Other places for Meetings, Conventions and Exhibitions

Salzburg can offer various other places e.g.:

Grand Festival Hall (Grosses Festspielhaus). A large hall for 2500 people, with 40 rooms and offices for meetings.

Small Festival Hall (Kleines Festspielhaus). There is a large hall for 1200 people, a municipal council room for 450 people and various other smaller rooms.

Mozarteum. A large hall for 750 and Vienna room for 300 people.

University. Large auditorium for 750 people and numerous smaller rooms.

Salzburg also has a number of other rooms for conventions and exhibitions, and meetings can be held in the historic buildings and ancient palaces such as the Salzburger Residenz. (Carabinieri room for 800 people and Chevaliers room for 300 people, etc.).

Hotel Capacity

Salzburg has more than 8000 places in its hotels and nearly 4000 more in the homes of residents.

Reception

The Convention Service and the Tourist Service of the town have information offices on all the main approaches to the town. Guides and multilingual hosesses are always available. The same offices can assist organisers with multilingual staff, experienced in convention work. Ask at the special counter.

Dear Mrs. Borghe

I thank you for your splendid article in the Current Center Magazine.

When you are on that hill top in Florence this summer, won't you please look at Dickens, Letters from a Traveller p. 87 in which he wrote - (50 years ago) to the Abbe Brialmont, "However mysterious remains the great science and the great art, the only

This letter is in reference to:

The symposium entitled, "Pacem in Maribus IV," held June 23-26, 1973, in Malta.

We would greatly appreciate:

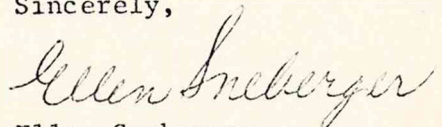

- Receiving a review copy.
- Receiving a copy of the proceedings.
- Receiving a sample copy and subscription information.
- Being placed on your mailing list.

We are constantly seeking source material for inclusion in our publications, Pollution Abstracts and Oceanic Abstracts, each of which is published six times a year. Pollution Abstracts and Oceanic Abstracts are among the most respected publications in their fields. Our staff abstracts and indexes books, reports, journals and other publications to assist those doing research in environmental and marine subjects.

Many organizations have adopted a policy of automatically sending us material relevant to the environment and the oceans for possible inclusion in our publications. We invite you to do the same.

Thank you for your consideration.

Dear Mrs. Mann Borgese,

Reviewing our files in preparation for the forthcoming edition (15th) of our Yearbook, we noted that your organization : "The Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions" has not yet replied to our request for information to determine its status.

The Yearbook of International Organizations is the definitive directory for all international associations, and we depend upon your cooperation to maintain its comprehensiveness and quality. Should you qualify for an entry in the Yearbook- which is free of charge- it would be a loss, as much to yourselves as to us, for you not to be included.

Please, therefore, examine the categories in the left-hand column of this letter-head, and furnish us with appropriate details concerning your organization. A copy of your statutes and a membership list would be helpful.

If you believe you do not qualify we would appreciate a brief statement from you as to the reason(s).

We trust that you will find time to cooperate with us in this matter.

Very truly yours,

Yearbook.

Enclosure :

First computer-based edition

For the first time the Yearbook (now in its 14th edition) is produced from computer-held data. The amount of information which has to be processed, cross-checked and indexed has grown considerably since the reference book was first produced 22 years ago. This can only be performed satisfactorily with the aid of a computer, which thus contributes directly to the rapidity with which each edition can be prepared (ensuring up-to-date information), and to the quality of the final result.

The computer-held data is used not only for this Yearbook but also for the production of the supplements to the Yearbook (appearing in the journal International Associations) and for the production of the Annual International Congress Calendar of future international meetings. This integrated system is being developed to produce other publications which constitute detailed extensions to information produced in the Yearbook.

The new approach will considerably enhance the Yearbook's established reputation as the starting point for research on the international system of organizations.

Contents

The Yearbook of International Organizations provides information on all international organizations -

every category including

- official organizations (established by agreement between governments)
- nongovernmental nonprofit organizations (councils, federations, groups, commissions, standing conferences, associations, organizations, etc.)

every field of activity including science, commerce, social welfare, education, technology, bibliography, press, international relations, economics, politics, finance, trade unions, professional associations, transport, sport, humanities, health, etc.

every geographical area

international is defined broadly to include all geographical and political groupings of African, Asian, American, Caribbean, Pacific, Scandinavian, European (and other) organizations.

Main Sections

The main section is made up of 4000 entries. Entries contain the following information :

name of organization in English, French and other languages (where relevant), main and regional addresses, details of history, summary of aims, details of structure, principal officer, technical and regional commissions, staff, finance, contacts with other organizations (consultative relations, working agreements, etc.), memberships of other organizational federations, members, summary of activities and programmes, location of meetings planned and past, publications and periodicals, together with extensive information on the major organizations such as the United Nations.

Index Sections

The following section is made up of 7 indexes to the organizations entries :

Geographical index of organizations, listing addresses of organizations by continent, country, country and town.
Classified index of international organizations, groups organizations into 26 main groups concerned with related subjects
Organization name in English
Organization name in French
English keyword index
French keyword index
Index of acronyms and initials

New-style compact indexing cuts consultation time by nearly 50 percent.

Supplementary Sections

Other sections include :

table of government memberships of the principal inter-governmental bodies table of nongovernmental consultative contact with the principal intergovernmental bodies list of institutes, schools and study centres concerned with international relations.
collection of statistics on the increase of international organizations and their meetings

New Supplementary Sections

Bibliography of over 800 non-case study documents and articles on the study of international nongovernmental organization
Statistical tables (15) summarizing previously scattered data on international organizations
List of scholars interested in international organization and peace research
List of internationally-oriented foundations
List of international nongovernmental organizations most frequently recognized by intergovernmental organizations.

Quality

The Yearbook has the special merit, recognized by scholars, of being prepared by an international organization for, and with the aid of, all other international bodies. Yearbook preparation is therefore governed by the requirement that all international bodies should be adequately described in terms of their own criteria. This is contrary to the usual tendency of including a minimum of information on a selected group of bodies.

- * accuracy - each entry is checked by the organization in question;
- * detail - as much detail is included on each body as is necessary to describe it adequately;
- * comprehensiveness - organizations of all types and sizes are included (in terms of a set of criteria of « internationality »). The volume is unique in its coverage of bodies within both major power blocs.

WHAT REVIEWERS SAY ABOUT THE YEARBOOK

International Affairs

This is the only reference book giving reliable and up-to-date information on both inter-governmental and non-governmental international organizations.

Le Monde Diplomatique

L'ouvrage se recommande à tous les spécialistes de la politique internationale.

Yearbook of World Affairs

A god-send to administrators and their secretaries.

International Association of Universities Bulletin

Les milieux universitaires apprécieront particulièrement la vaste documentation qui concerne les organisations internationales des innombrables disciplines scientifiques.

International Council of Scientific Unions' Bulletin

Indispensable for all concerned with International work.

Europa-Archiv

Handbuch, das zu einem unentbehrlichen Wegweiser durch die Vielfalt internationaler Organisationen geworden ist.

Revue de l'Académie Internationale du Tourisme

L'utilité d'un tel instrument est évidente; dans les domaines qui nous occupent il est indispensable aux organisateurs de congrès, aux managers des grandes agences...

United Nations Review

The great practical use for governments of this reference work was repeatedly recognized by the Economic and Social Council.

La Presse Médicale

En un minimum de place se trouve consigné le maximum de renseignements.

Times Literary Supplement

One indispensable quarry of information for students in the International affairs field.
