DALHOUSIANS IN THE ORIENT WORLD

Rev. E. J. O. Fraser, of the Korea Mission of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Recounts Doings of Dalhousie Graduates in Far East.

A most interesting budget of notes about worthy Dalhousians comes in a letter to the Alumni News from Rev. E. J. O. Fraser, B.A., '11, who for the past eight years has been in missionary work in Korea. Mr. Fraser, as he states in his letter, in a footnote, is anticipating a furlough in Canada, beginning in June. The Alumni News does not know whether Mr. Fraser is married or not, but June sounds ominous. However, The Alumni wishes him a safe return home, and thanks him for his batch of news notes. Following is Mr. Fraser's letter, dated at Yongjung, Korea, January 28, 1922:—

Dear "Alumni News":—

The receipt of another copy of the excellent "News" brings to my mind that it might be of interest to your readers to know of a few Dalhousians who are in this bit of the world. True, they are not many, but we are united in our admiration of and interest in Old Dalhousie.

The following members of our Mission staff are from Dal., and are upholding well the ancient traditions of the College.

Rev. D. M. McRae, B.A., '96, was one of the three pioneers of the Presbyterian Mission to Korea, and now, after twenty-three years of service in that field, has just returned to Hamheung, Korea, to take up work for another term. His work is largely among the country churches surrounding Hamheung, and "Ma Moksa" is known to Koreans far and wide as the first foreigner to travel extensively through the great field that lies on all sides of Hamheung.

Rev. Robert Grierson, B.A., '90, M.D., C.M., '97, is another of the three pioneers of the Canadian Presbyterian Mission in Korea, hale and hearty after twenty-three years of work, and is now engaged in church, school and hospital work in the town of Songjin, Korea, a seaport and a future railroad centre. His Harley-Davidson carries him many miles into the interior whenever he can get away from pressing duties to aid in the country work.

Rev. A. F. Robb, B.A., '96, and Mrs. Robb, (Miss Bessie Cumming), B.A.

D. MACGILLIVRAY, ESQ.

President of The Review Publishing Co.;
Member of Dalhousie Board of Governors.

With the April, 1922, issue of THE DALHOUSIE REVIEW, the magazine begins auspiciously its second year as a periodical devoted to Canadian culture. The REVIEW, according to its promoters, had a successful first year. Its financial and subscription foundations were "well and truly laid"—with the wise, practical, forthright business trowell of that high-minded and public-spirited citizen, Mr. D. Macgillivray, President of the Review Publishing Co. But Mr. Macgillivray is no mere business man. He loves, to be sure, the ready, straightforward, compelling business methods of getting things done; and for that reason he took hold of the founding of THE REVIEW with a single aim—to make it a success. Mr. Macgillivray is as much enamored of culture as of business; and for that reason he kept a directive eye on the quality of the matter that would appear in The REVIEW.

The Alumni News congratulates Mr. Macgillivray and the Editorial Board of THE REVIEW on the success which the periodical has had in its first year; and wishes THE REVIEW a still more notable success during its second year. Considerately The Alumni News suggests that the conspectus of THE REVIEW be broadened and socialized so far as to include articles on "Canadian Relations"

UNIVERSITY CLUB

Had Successful First Year—Plans For Improved Facilities Now In Preparation.

Dalhousie University Club, under the presidency of Dr. John Cameron, reports a successful first year—both in membership and use made of the Club rooms and grounds. In cities in other countries the University Clubs are centres where the alumni of institutions of higher learning informally foregather, and incidentally carry about and discuss the news and activities of Alma Mater. The real objective of such university clubs, it is true, is entertainment and recreation, but the rubbing up against one another on the part of alumni and discussion of university news and activities is an incidental result, though in the end the most significant and important result.

The rooms of Dalhousie University Club, at Birchdale, are neatly appointed and are "comfy". W. A. Nesbit takes his position seriously and does everything to make the University Club a real "clubby" home for Dalhousie alumni. A new tennis court is being laid out, and other plans for sport-recreation are under consideration. In any case, University Club and grounds will be a still more ideal place for Dalhousians this summer. It should be remembered that Dalhousie graduates, who are members of the Club, have the privilege of having their ladies with them—and the appointments for tea, in the club rooms, or in the open air, are ideally pleasant and inviting.

The membership of Dalhousie Club, though 500 in 1921, is far from what it should be. The fee is only $5.00—and what a Dalhousian gets for such a paltry fee is so immeasurably good that the sum should not enter into the mind at all. The Club is a social and spiritual necessity—and it is hoped that all Dalhousians in Halifax, and near vicinity, will realize this, and take out a membership. To do so is to show increased loyalty to Alma Mater. Send your remittance to the Secretary of Dalhousie University Club, Birchdale, Halifax.

The officers for the current year are:—Hon. President, A. S. MacKenzie; President, J. S. Roper; Vice-Presidents, J. H. L. Johnstone, W. E. Hillis; Secretary, W. A. Nesbit. Executive: Misses. Carol McInnes, Joyce Harris, Colonel W. E. Thompson, H. E. Mahon, Dr. John Cameron, Dr. J. H. Lyons, Dr. Gerald Grant, F. B. Oxley, Dr. Hennigar.

EDITORIAL

A Paradox in University Scope

DALHOUSIE needs enlargement of scope—in several departments. The alumni, and, no doubt, the governors and the senate, are aware of this fact—vaguely, also no doubt, as a frog in summer time is aware of a blackfly on its tumulous back. But mere awareness of a fact is not real perception, and never results in practical conation—in act and action. It is therefore idle and futile to fancy the possible realization of such a big task as the "centralization" of Maritime universities, with Dalhousie as the head or hub, as long as Dalhousie neglects the first practical step in such centralization and leadership as broadening the scope of her own faculties and courses—which is relatively the little matter to achieve.

"Pol-Parrot" chatter about this is not the right way to patriot service as alumni of Dalhousie. Not chatter, but immediate action, is what is wanted—and as regards where to begin the light is luculent. For instance, at Harvard, they tell us that they will not admit Dalhousie graduates to advanced study in the courses in experimental psychology. This is a sad fix for an honor graduate in philosophy from Dalhousie to find himself—if he wants to proceed to the degree of Ph.D. in philosophy, especially if his post-graduate studies in philosophy are to be in such applied fields as educational psychology or in abnormal psychology.

First, Dr. Stewart ought to have an assistant—not one trained in philosophy in the Old Country, but one trained in an American university where he has taken special courses in experimental psychology. Abstract metaphysics and descriptive ethics and philosophy, to say nothing of instruction in the puzzle-logic of the medieval universities, are excellent as pastimes for uninspiring professors and indolent students, but have no meaning for the enhancement of individual life or the amelioration of society—for right conduct and happiness—unless taken over into the disciplines of applied philosophy—practical logic, practical ethics, practical psychology. Secondly, if Dr.

Stewart cannot be given an assistant, enough psychological apparatus for conducting elementary laboratory courses in, say, mental measurements, can be bought at small cost; and the students can handily manufacture, with hammer, saw, and nails, such other apparatus as they may need for other simple experiments in psychology.

We might mention the need of enlarging the scope of the department of English literature, so as to include in it a survey of Canadian literature, inasmuch as a survey of American literature is now included.

We might mention other departments that need enlargement. And certainly we will mention the need of establishing a professorship or lectureship in Aesthetics—to give instruction in the history of culture on the sides of the history and appreciation of the graphic, plastic, and tonal arts. It will be objected that it takes money to do this. Yes, but it takes, above all, wide-awake resourceful MEN, to do it. If Dalhousie obtained $3,000,000 endowment dollars, it can obtain more. Let the Alumni move to find the Man who can find the other man or men—with the will to give. It can be done.

But there is now paramount a singular field in which Dalhousie could enlarge its scope. At Brown University—these Baptist institutions of higher learning do push ahead, and Dalhousie was indebted to Brown for DeMill—well, at Brown University there is a chair of "CANADIAN RELATIONS", the aim of which is to give American students a right and sympathetic knowledge of Canadian history, culture, institutions, government and civilization, with the special end of fostering right understanding and amity between the peoples of Canada and the United States. Professor Roy Davis, an alumnus of Dalhousie, and the most aggressive and original-minded member of the University of Boston is promoting the idea of a sort of "Exchange" lectureship in American-Canadian Relations, which, if backed by Dalhousie alumni and fostered, would give Dalhousie a leadership in this paramount ideal of the new education. But whether Professor Davis is successful or not, Dalhousie can establish a lectureship in Canadian-American Relations, or at least give a course or half-course in this profoundly needed cultural discipline. Let it be done.

We all know why a hen crosses the street—namely, to get across. We do not seem to know why an alumnus of Dalhousie is an alumnus. Yet obviously, it is not to get himself across, but to get something across for his Alma Mater when that dear old nurse is failing in sight and ambition. Alumni of Dalhousie, strike your harps and sing, "Be kind to dear old Mother."

J. D. LOGAN,

and on the "Theory of Business Enterprise". For, after all is said for an intellectually lop-sided or narrow magazine, it is fundamentally the business man who is the genuinely thinking patriot, and who most wants and needs sympathetically to be informed on the principles of sanely founded and safely governed democracy.

THE ALUMNI ANNUAL MEETING The Membership of the Association Shows Large Increase.

At the annual meeting of the Dalhousie Alumni Association, held last evening at University Hall, Mr. John S Roper was re-elected President for the ensuing year. Mr. Roy D. MacNutt, Secretary Treasurer for the past four months was also given a second term, while Col. W. E. Thompson was unanimously re-elected as the Alumni representative on the Board of Governors, and will hold office for the next three years. In addition to the Alumni, the members of the graduating classes, and players of the football hockey and basketball teams of the University were present.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, the Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Roy D. MacNutt, submitted his report. Prof. H. P. Bell, who had been appointed Secretary-Treasurer at the last annual meeting, had resigned in September when he left the City to take a post-graduate course, and Mr. MacNutt had been selected by the executive committee to succeed him. A large amount of routine work in the nature of obtaining an up-to-date record of the members of the Alumni had been undertaken, with the result that the balance on hand was much smaller than in previous years, but it was hoped this would be speedily rectified by the receipt of subscriptions.

President Roper in his report, summed up what had been accomplished during his term of office. A particularly gratifying feature of his report was the growth of the paid-up membership during the past year from 85 to 379. The "Alumni News", the quarterly sheet of the Association had been published regularly, while the Association had continued the work of the Million Dollar Committee in the keeping up of the records of the old Dalhousians. It was largely due to the Alumni Association that the Dalhousie University Summer Club had been founded, which had given to the Alumni and their relatives and families the benefits of the College property on the North West Arm.

Professors John Read and Murray MacNeil were appointed a nominating committee to submit a slate for the coming term, and during their absence the President called upon President A. S. MacKenzie for a few words.

President Mackenzie first expressed his gratification at the large increase in membership of the Association, stating that he realized the enormous influence that that body wielded for the betterment of the College. Dalhousians, he asserted, had sometimes been charged, mostly by their own members, with being lax in their devotion to their Alma Mater after graduation. He did not consider that this was so, but thought rather that they showed their interest through different channels than did some other universities. He had found that everywhere the name of the University was held in esteem, particularly referring to the expressions of commendation he had received from the heads of the Rockefeller and Carnegie institutes.

Dr. J. D. Logan, as an "old graduator of the gridiron," was next called on by the President to give a few words of advice to the members of the football and other athletic teams. Speaking in his usual paradoxical way, the doctor urged on the players the necessity of carrying into business and professional life that spirit of "breaking through" which they had learned on the football field. In whatever line they should take, their aim should be to be a master in it, for it was only by mastery that the full points of victory could be attained. Each succeeding victory should be but a spur to greater achievement.

Arthur Lilly, senior student in Law, captain of the football team of 1921, and a member of the Tigers' hockey team, champions of both city and inter-collegiate leagues, was next called on. He thanked the Alumni for the support they had given the College teams, and only wished that there could be some arrangement by which graduates would be able to still represent their College after graduation. Although he hoped to graduate in May, he did not look upon this as severing his tie with Dalhousie, and would do his best to uphold her name wherever he might be.

R. C. MacDonald, manager of the hockey team, also spoke along the same lines. He particularly stressed the necessity of a coach if Dal. teams were to be given a chance to do their best in the future. During the past session this need had been particularly felt, and he hoped by next fall that some man with the necessary qualifications could be found to undertake the task. Mr. Basil Courtney, accompanied by Dr. Cameron, was called upon for a song, and responded in his usual finished manner.

The following is the complete slate for next year:—

President—John S. Roper.
1st Vice-President—H. E. Pyke.
2nd Vice-President—G. A. Burbidge.
3rd Vice-President—J. N. Lyons.
Secretary-Treas.—R. D. MacNutt.
Executive Committee—Prof. H. P. Bell, J. D. Vair, F. H. Zwicker, Rev. Francis Milligan, W. E. Hillis, Dr. Stanley Bagnall.

Alumni Representative on Board of Governors—Col. W. E. Thompson.
Auditors—Dr. Schwartz, J. A. Walker.

"KEN" WEBSTER'S GIFT

Professor K. G. T. Webster, Arts '92, of the English Department, Harvard University, has given $200.00 to Acadia University to buy books for the Logan Collection of Canadiana at Acadia, and for prizes to be granted writers of worthy essays on Canadian Literature, or of original poetry. Professor Webster in his note accompanying the cheque says that his gift is in recognition of the work of Acadia and of his old class mate Dr. J. D. Logan, Dalhousie '92, in promoting the study of Canadian Literature. Professor Webster was a former student in Dr. McMechan's classes—and was a member of the old Dalhousie football teams in the late '80's of the 19th century—"the best centre Dalhousie ever had," as his Dalhousie classmates, Col. W. E. Thompson, J. W. and J. D. Logan, John A. MacIntosh and the rest say of him.

DR. FRANK WOODBURY

Regretted Passing of the Dean of the College of Dental Surgery Whose Energy and Ideals Made the College Splendid Efficiency.

The recent death of Dr. Frank Woodbury, Dean of the Faculty of Dental Surgery, removes from Dalhousie a man who was a genuinely far-sighted, fore-sighted and practical leader in developing the scope of the University. He had a rare gift of getting the right thing done at the right time. In another matter he was a rarity, namely, in insisting upon the very highest standards both for entrance to the courses in Dental Surgery and for achiev-

Of Dr. Frank Woodbury it may truly be said that, in his duties as Dean of the Faculty of Dental Surgery in Dalhousie, "he was faithful, unto death."

Eloquent tributes to his life and work, and moving expressions of regret at the loss which the City and Province suffered through his death were expressed by men of many walks of life when it became known that Dr. Frank Woodbury had passed away. President MacKenzie looked upon his passing as a personal loss to himself as well as an irretrievable loss to the University and especially the Dental College which is his monument.

SENSIBLE APPEAL

Circular Letter to Dalhousie Alumni
Appealing for Support of Review
Should be Effective.

In the aim to make THE DALHOUSIE REVIEW a greater success than in its first year, particularly by increasing the subscriptions of Dal. graduates, the following circular letter, signed by Mr. D. Macgillivray, President of the Review Publishing Company, was sent out, on March 15, to selected graduates. It would be impossible gratuitously to send a copy of the REVIEW to every Dalhousie alumnus. Consequently a number of Dalhousie graduates most likely to give the letter and the accompanying copy of the magazine their loyal consideration and to become subscribers, were selected thus to be addressed by the President of the Review Publishing Company. Certainly the subscription price, $2.00, is a mere bagatelle when compared with the rich intellectual entertainment and enlightenment that the REVIEW offers. The Alumni News trusts that the graduates appealed to in the letter will respond at once with the required "quid pro quo"—namely, their names, residential or office address—and the $2.00.

Dear Sir:—

One year ago "The Dalhousie Review" was founded as a Canadian quarterly magazine. We are much gratified by the cordial welcome which it has already received from the general public, and by the enthusiastic approval of the literary critics.

The Magazine bears the name of your old College, and has during the last twelve months made effective appeal to many Dalhousie graduates. But we feel that the response from Dalhousie alumni should be and would be largely increased if our project were better understood by them. The April number, which will appear within a few days, marks the beginning of the second year of the Review. With the purpose of enlisting your sympathy and support we shall send you a copy of the April issue as a sample as soon as it is available. Will you give it your best consideration, and judge from it for yourself whether you ought to become a subscriber?

Faithfully Yours,

THE REVIEW PUBLISHING COMPANY, LIMITED.

'96, are both giving most faithful service in Hamheung, Korea, where Mrs. Robb helps the girls' school in addition to home and church duties. Mr. Robb divides his time between country church work and teaching in the Pyong Yang Theological Seminary. This seminary is the Theological College of the Presbyterian Church in Korea, and Mr. Robb gives some months each year in instruction as a member of the faculty.

Rev. Luther L. Young, B.A. '03, is another resident of Hamheung, Korea. He is at present in charge of the Mission Boys' Academy there, and in addition makes frequent visits to some country churches in his new Overland.

Rev. D. W. McDonald, B.A. '09, belonging to the Hamheung Station, Korea, is at present in Canada on furlough. He plans to return to his life work in Korea in the fall of 1922.

Rev. E. J. O. Fraser, B.A., '11, is now living in Yongjung, Manchuria, the most northerly station of the Korea Mission of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He works among the scattered chuings in that corner of China, where so many Koreans live. It is his intention to be in Eastern Canada in June for a year's furlough.

Miss Florence J. Murray, M.D., C.C., '19 has recently reached Yongjung, Manchuria, a station of the Canadian Presbyterian Church Mission in Korea, where she is engaged in language study. She will have charge of a well-equipped Mission hospital during the absence of Dr. S. H. Martin on furlough. Already she has won a good name among the women, both Korean and Chinese, who have not ventured to come to a male doctor for treatment.

DEAN McRAE'S IDEA

Suggests Longer Study for Those Who would Enter the Profession of Law.

The kind of constructive mind at Dalhousie University, on the side of the teaching staff, was notably disclosed at Toronto recently when Dean McRae spoke before the Ontario Bar Association. He suggested the advisability of longer study for those who entered the legal profession.

"With the complexity of our population," he said, "there is the greatest need for a higher standard of preliminary education on the part of those entering the study of law."

Dentistry, medicine and, perhaps, the horse doctors, too, were all lengthening the period of study before which a student would be allowed to practice. Law would come to be looked upon as the shortest, quickest and easiest profession to get into.

"We must not," said Dean McRae, "put a bait before the student to lure him into a profession for which he is not fitted." He urged Ontario to make two years in the university a requisite for the student desiring to enter law. Manitoba had adopted this standard, and he hoped to be able to announce next week that Nova Scotia had adopted it.
