NOT GOOD ENOUGH

This is the first time that the entire back cover of the Dalhousie Alumni News has been devoted to an appeal for the Annual Fund. It has been done to draw attention to the fact that only one in every ten alumni have given financial support to Dalhousie this year. Or, in other words, nine out of ten Dalhousians for one reason or another do not care enough for their Alma Mater to give their support.

Dalhousie has always had a reputation for excellent academic scholarship and has often been referred to as a Canadian counterpart to some of the best Universities south of the border. The quality of scholarship and the achievements of Dalhousie's graduates are well known, but somewhere along the line 90% of the alumni have failed to grasp the important idea that a university education carries with it certain basic responsibilities. Not the least of these is the responsibility to keep the educational chain reaction going by giving financial support to Alma Mater and thus sharing some of the benefits which a university education has produced.

Everyone who has ever been a student at Dalhousie has derived some measure of benefit from the university, whether the association lasted for many years or for just a few months. When today's alumni were students, their education was made possible in part by the generosity of alumni and other non-alumni friends of the University. It certainly does not seem unreasonable to expect the alumni to do their part now in helping Dalhousie provide an education for today's students.

At this time Dalhousie faces a real financial crisis. Tuition is already the highest in the land and enrolment increases have failed to materialize, leaving the University with government grants considerably lower than forecast. At the same time costs continue to rise and Dalhousie is in a serious deficit position. This could be eliminated if all the alumni who have not made a contribution this year gave a gift to the Dalhousie Annual Fund equal to the average gifts that have already been received.

The alumni of other universities face up to their responsibilities and do support their alma maters. There is no reason why alumni of Dalhousie should not do the same. That is why the back cover of this issue is devoted to the Annual Fund. If you haven't supported Dalhousie this year, read it. But better still, heed it.

The Editor,
Dalhousie Alumni News,
Dalhousie University

Dear Mrs. Harris,

I have noticed a curious entry in Vol 28, No. 4 of the Alumni News on p. 13 referring to Reverend Wayne Hankey. He did recently receive two appointments, one as priest-in-charge at Petite Riviere, but the other as Director of the Foundation Year Programme at the University of King's College. This is a Programme which King's is introducing in the Fall of 1972 for freshmen in humanities and social sciences. It is organized, supervised and taught under King's auspices and not Dalhousie's, although we are as always in close association with Dalhousie in this venture. I wonder if you would mind making this clear in your next issue.

Yours sincerely,

J. Graham Morgan

History Takes on a New Look

Where have we been for the last 100 years and how did we get here?

History 100 or Double O Zero as it has been dubbed by its architects, Professors David Crook and John Godfrey, will attempt to present the events, ideas and color of the last ten decades through lectures, video-tapes, rap sessions and happenings, in a new class designed for people who think they hate history.

"The course, we hope, will appeal to students who might not otherwise consider taking any history classes during their university career," said Prof. Godfrey.

... we have created a course which is unorthodox in its approach but serious in its intent.

"We will be talking about young people like the students themselves — like their parents — and like their grandparents, because," he continued, "by knowing what happened before, a student may have fewer misconceptions about history and may better understand where he is at Now and Why."

Since last October, Dr. Crook and Prof. Godfrey have spent about five hours a day, six days a week, researching and planning their class.

By using a variety of teaching methods in order to reach certain levels of awareness, and by selecting out those experiences and sensations that would otherwise make one feel they are alive in a certain era, the two-man team hope the students will be left with some strong impressions of each decade.

They began by taking a positive approach to certain questions— that two people can effectively and humanely teach 1,000 students by ignoring the conventions of curricular disciplines, relevance, evaluation and primitive electronic teaching.

They have sought to focus attention on student participation in cultural and intellectual experiences that might not otherwise be available to undergraduate students.

This then is the opportunity they have called History 00 Zero.

The scheme proposed by the lecturers for History 00 Zero has been to divide the period from 1870 to 1970 into roughly ten decades with a theme for each block, so that some of the course topics read something like this: 1880 to 1893 — Swimming in the Backwash; 1893 to Twentieth Century — Forging Ahead; 1900 to 1914 — The Games People Play; 1914 to 1919 — Making the World Safe? 1939 to 1945—

Dr. David Crook is an American historian who trained at Harvard. John Godfrey's area of specialization is European history with particular attention to the French field. His doctorate is forthcoming from Oxford.

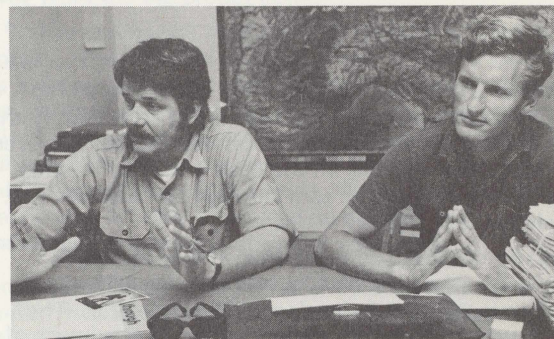

How Did You Win the War, Dad? 1960 to 1970 — Back to the Drawing Board.

The Package

Each topic block will take two weeks and consist of four lectures, two third hours (clinics or rap sessions), one electric head (video-tape session) and one happening.

... we have no intention of offering an exhaustive political, economic, or social survey of the century. Rather for each decade we have chosen certain themes and events which seem to convey best the distinctive flavour of the period.

... we wish our students to experience as far as possible the events and the mood of each decade ... we must therefore begin by appealing to their imaginations.

Crook and Godfrey are confident they can revive the lecture concept which, for student and teacher, has fallen into disfavor as a teaching aid in recent years. They hope to rely on professional oral presentations, using special staging and lighting effects, the application of split lectures, practical experience in certain fields, whenever possible.

The rap sessions will be devoted to special topics relevant to the decade being studied. The session will become the third hour of each week's class structure this should provide an opportunity for participation and personal, but informal, involvement. Students will be able to talk to each other and at the same time the clinic can become a useful method for measuring feedback.

The Young Alumni Club

The electric heads are a one-to-one teaching device using individual video-tape monitors. In putting the tapes together Crook and Godfrey took a critical look at such video tape teaching methods as historical re-enactments (ETV), historical drama (Elizabeth R), school broadcasts and public affairs programs, and came up with their own course of presentation.

They have created a series of tapes that are custom-made for this class and that have been prepared for people who accept tapes, transistors and tubes as everyday elements of nature.

As distillers of information, Crook and Godfrey have selected those events and happenings that visually and audibly interpret the appropriate decade's residue through pictures and statements of things said and done.

The period for example up to 1880 will provide students with illustrations of Shiloh, Sadowa and Sedan.

Students will be able to monitor the tapes in a special area set aside in the Killam Library stacks. The designated area will consist of one 27 foot floor module with five wired study carrels and one monitor and headset per carrel. There will be a central electronic control for the entire module. Ten tapes, 30 to 50 minutes each, have been put together.

The happenings are designed to reinforce the other segments of the class. In this area students will have an opportunity to experience events and capitalize on those things that are happening around them.

The scheme calls for individual, unscheduled tours to find the lost and dying crafts of Halifax County, a visit with the Atlantic Symphony in rehearsal, a non-stop performance of Wagner's Ring-Cycle and a re-creation of the European diplomatic scene through the game of Diplomacy.

Evaluation

Participation is the key to evaluation according to Prof. Crook. The class is geared to the concept of emersion by the methods mentioned above. For the official records however students will receive grades on the basis of crods. They are value points which students earn through participation in various elements of History 00 Zero.

These will be tabulated by computer. The crod awards system consists of a total of 40 crods each for 40 lectures, 20 third hours, 10 electric heads and 10 happenings. The crod/mark value translation scale goes from a maximum of 160 crods which represents an A grade down to 129 crods which represents a failure.

University consultants, critics and contributors for the entire project include Louis Vagianos, director of communications services; Finn Damtoft, director of the audio-visual services; Edgar Friedenber, professor of education; Elizabeth Payne, director of the Computer Centre; Larry Colwell, chief of information services for the Computer Centre; John Crompton, director of the Dalhousie Arts Centre; and faculty members from the history department. Outside assistance was received from Gary Anderson, assistant director of the Atlantic Institute of Education.

Dan Blenkinship, the latest of Oak Island treasure hunters, was the guest speaker to members of the Young Alumni Club and their guests. His talk was illustrated with CBC film footage on the history of Oak Island and slides illustrating the latest mechanical techniques. The Young Alumni Club dubbed the meeting "Who's Kydding Whom" and at the end of the evening members of the Club presented Mr. Blenkinship with a snow shovel and their answer to his engineering problems. His opinion? Certainly there's a treasure. It's just a matter of finding it.

AT THE ROLLING BALL:

Dalhousie's Human-Beings-in-Residence

MacDougall

Trivett

Morris

They've been called Dal's Holy Trinity, The God Squad and the Rebel Revs.

They have distinctly different backgrounds, different personalities and are members of different denominations.

They are Rev. Don MacDougall, Rev. Don Trivett and Rev. Gerry Morris and they have a common bond — putting meaning into peoples' lives and dealing with real issues and people in the midst of where they are.

Don MacDougall, the United Church representative, and Don Trivett, of the Anglican Church, are the veteran clerics on the campus arriving here in 1965 when the chaplaincy concept was initiated by the churches. Gerry Morris joined the team last fall as the Roman Catholic chaplain.

Since its conception the chaplains' office has made a definite impact, albeit a quiet one, on the university. However their task has not been easy. They have had to sell themselves not only to the students, faculty and administration but also to many of their colleagues and superiors within the church.

While all three men approach their tasks somewhat differently, they share a common philosophy. "The prime trust," says Don MacDougall, "is toward meeting people as people and sharing life with them." Or, as Gerry Morris puts it: "Creating a feeling and awareness of complete freedom." He uses the Folk Mass.

They counsel, administer the sacraments, take part in seminars and committee meetings, visit hospitals, offer vocational guidance and are on call for each and every crisis, large and small.

"If students don't know where to turn they come to us", said Father Morris.

The chaplains, representing the United, Anglican and Roman Catholic denominations, work as a team, and "since many of the situations that arise are not unique, we get together regularly and compare notes and discuss problems that are common to university chaplaincy" said Don MacDougall.

But never is a confidence broken. The relation between a chaplain and a student never goes beyond that chaplain and student. A common involvement for the chaplain is marriage preparation. Between them, Dal's God-Squad performs about 50 - 60 marriage ceremonies a year. In many cases the students decide that they want a religious ceremony but says Don MacDougall "they don't want to go downtown — they can more easily relate to the university — they want to get — away from the big production."

Don Trivett points out that a couple frequently want to personalize their wedding. One example of this is saying their vows together. All three chaplains point out that couples who approach them want to find out all they can about the implications of marriage and want to be as prepared as possible before taking the step. "It's related to the whole area of subjectivism", says Don Trivett. "They want to relate to someone who is really interested in them — and sacramentally convey something to each other.

One role that is unique to Father Morris is confession. "I think," he said, "that a student recognizes a depth of spirituality — and in some cases they feel they have been unfair to themselves." For the most part confession for the Catholic student is much more personalized than it is in the parish church, not that it is meant to be that way, it just happens. "People come to me to talk things out, really get it off their chest, and the personal touch seems to make a big difference," he said.

The Dalhousie chaplains are frequently involved in social, economic, political and educational matters involving not only students, but faculty and staff at the university. They are sought out for advice on matters ranging from sex and drugs to tuition and residency problems. Their ministry is somewhat of a 'street ministry' in that they are involved with the entire university community and are associated with the problems that the whole university community is dealing with.

Interlocutor, counsellor, priest, minister, listing post — they are all. Probably the best description of Dalhousie's chaplains is "Human-beings-in-residence".

Highlights of the Task Force on the Quality of Student Life

The Task Force on the Quality of Student Life was established by the President of the Student Union last year. Its objectives were to study, recommend and animate ways in which the life quality of the Student Union might be more meaningful and satisfying to the student. Members of the Task Force were D. Ray Pierce, the chairman, Wayne W. Hooper, station manager of CJCH Ltd. and James G. Sykes, the university's director of planning and development. The final report of the Task Force contains six chapters, in which there are 32 sections. Nearly 200 points are made in the report and these result in 41 recommendations.

Highlights:

1. Orientation of new students be formally recognized as being critical to the attainment of a sense of community and that it be an academic as well as social program, with representatives of all facets of the university. (i.e. Student Union, Administration, residences, student services, and faculty, etc.) involved in the planning and executing of the program.

2. Student societies and committees be encouraged to involve professors, administration, and members of the community-at-large in their organizations to increase one-to-one interface within the university with the community, and further that faculty and staff be advised by the administration such extra-class activity be part of their duty in the university.
3. Tests in fluency be given to all professors whose mother tongue is not English to ensure effective communication.
4. Communications – both internal and external – be drastically rearranged, as it is our belief that this is the most crucial problem facing the university community today.
5. Recreational facilities be pointed toward serving the broadest base of student participation, and to this end, the proposed athletic complex be cited as the first priority in new building.
6. That a greater focus by student health towards mental and emotional instead of physical problems and the maintaining of clinical facilities be continued.
7. Fees not be increased next year, and that any further increase be in direct proportion to the economy, and in line with similar institutions across the country.
8. Students receive priority for summer jobs in the university community.
9. A tri-semester system for Dalhousie be examined, not only as an academic benefit, but also as a viable alternative to the continuing student employment crisis.
10. The practice of tenure be abolished at Dalhousie and that other methods to protect the academic quality and standard of excellence be implemented to reward or secure an individual's service, knowledge and abilities.
11. Class sizes be limited to levels of maximum effectiveness in teaching.

The Dalhousie Review, summer issue, is now available and features contributions by leading academics of both American and Canadian institutions, with one entry from Rowland Smith, professor of english at Dalhousie.

Established in 1921 as a quarterly for the introduction of Maritime writing and scholarly discussion, the Dalhousie Review has grown to become a forum of wide-range concern. The Review accepts articles on literature, history, economics and world affairs. In addition each issue includes authoritative reviews of recent books, verse and occasionally fiction.

Subscriptions on an annual basis or purchase of a single copy can be made through the Dalhousie University Press Limited, Killam Memorial Library.

The appointment of Douglas M. Johnston, a specialist in marine and environmental policy studies, as visiting professor of law for two years at Dalhousie University, has been announced by the president, Dr. Henry D. Hicks.

Professor Johnston, professor of law and political science at the University of Toronto, was born in Dundee, Scotland. He obtained his MA (1952) and his LLB (1955) from St. Andrew's University in Scotland and his MCL from McGill in 1958, his LIM from Yale in 1959 and his JSD from Yale in 1962.

Professor Johnston is an elected member of the International Council of Environmental Law, with headquarters in Bonn, and a member of the Executive Committee of the Law of the Sea Institute, Rhode Island, and the Canadian Institute of International Affairs. He is also a member of the American Society of International Law, the Canadian Society of Asian Studies, the Canadian Political Science Association, and the recently founded Canadian Council on International Law. He is author of The International Law of Fisheries and co-author of The International Law of Pollution.

The appointment of Dr. Kenneth T. Liffek, who has been a member of the University's department of chemistry since 1961, as Dean of Graduate Studies has been announced by the president, Dr. Henry D. Hicks.

Dr. Liffek, who was born in Nottingham, England, obtained his BSc with first class honours in 1956 and his PhD in physical-organic chemistry in 1959 from University College, London. From 1959 to 1961 he held a post-doctoral fellowship in the division of pure chemistry of the National Research Council in Ottawa. In September 1961, Dr. Liffek was appointed an assistant professor of Chemistry at Dalhousie, was promoted to associate in 1967.

Dr. Liffek is a member of the Chemical Society (London) and the Canadian Association of University Teachers. He was elected a Fellow of the Chemical Institute of Canada last year, having served on the executive of the Atlantic Section of the Institute since 1966. Dr. Liffek served on the executive of the Dalhousie Faculty Association from 1965 to 1971 and was its president in 1969-70.

His research interests lie in the field of organic reaction mechanisms and an active group of graduate students and post-doctoral fellows have carried out research with him in the Chemistry department in the last 10 years. An investigation under an Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. is also being carried out in Dr. Liffek's laboratory on the chemical problems involved in the production of heavy water.

Dr. Wolfgang Friedmann, who fled Nazi Germany in the 1930's and subsequently had a distinguished career in international law, and who received an honorary degree from Dalhousie in May this year, died from stab wounds in New York. New York police said Dr. Friedmann was accosted by three youths, described as between 14 and 17 years of age, who demanded his watch and money. When he refused he was stabbed in the heart during the struggle that ensued.

His assailants fled.

Cross-country is not a sport that attracts a great deal of attention, at least not in this part of the country. But a team of runners from Dalhousie got lots of attention when they participated in the recent Bates College Invitational Cross-Country Meet at Lewiston, Maine. The team easily defeated four other schools to capture the team title, placing five runners in the top seven places.

LAW SCHOOL EXPANSION MUST BE CONSIDERED —

Expansion of the Law School at Dalhousie University must be given serious consideration, according to the president, Dr. Henry D. Hicks. Dr. Hicks expressed his concern at the number of qualified applicants for admission to the law school who had been turned down in the past two years. In 1971, 800 qualified students applied for the 150 available first-year places. This year the number of applicants was 1100.

Dr. Hicks said that the problems the university had faced in selecting the classes in the professional schools for the current academic year had been greater than ever before. In Medicine and Denistry it had been extremely difficult, and the university had turned down twice as many qualified applicants as it had been able to accept.

"But the most startling and distressing example is in our law school where this year we had 1100 applicants for 150 places. It is virtually impossible to be sure that the most suitably qualified students have been selected, but our facilities just do not allow us to take more. I know that a legal education is regarded by an ever-widening sector of professional people as a training not only for the practice of law but for contributions to government, to business, to research, to industry, to all sorts of activities, not to forget teaching in the profession itself.

"This means that the students who have been accepted should appreciate the privilege of gaining a place in the law school and that they have really shouldered a responsibility when they take a place in the class, knowing that for every place that's allocated there are perhaps four or five other good men and women who have been turned down. And to some extent we are already in the process of losing our national significance because we are not accepting as large a proportion of students as in the past from outside the Atlantic provinces.

"I think there may be ways to increase the size of our law class, perhaps by dividing it into three sections instead of two which I think they do for most instructional purposes now. This will mean increased staff. I think the present building will provide some of the facilities to be able to do it, but unfortunately there are only two large lecture rooms, and what changes we would have to make to accommodate three-part classes I don't know. We're in the situation now where we have to take a look at it."

The appointment of Stephen Aronson of Halifax as university ombudsman has been approved by the university's Board of Governors.

Aronson, a third year law student, was assistant ombudsman last year when the office was first created through the co-operative effort of the Student Council, the university's Student Services Committee, the Senate and the Board of Governors.

A graduate of Queen Elizabeth High School, Aronson took his Arts degree at Dalhousie before entering law school. In 1969-71 he served as Arts representative on the Student Council and was also a student representative on the committee which proposed the establishment of the office of ombudsman.

The Canada Council has awarded a grant of $7,500 to the Faculty of Arts and Science at Dalhousie University for the support of the Karr-Lewis Duo as musicians-in-residence at the university.

The Duo consists of Gary Karr, double bass virtuoso well known to Halifax audiences, and David Harmon Lewis, harpsichordist and organist.

Gary Karr, a part-time associate professor of music at Dalhousie, teaches also to five-12-year-olds in the Halifax schools music program. Mr. Lewis, who has taught at a number of United States universities, is working on his music doctorate.

As the Karr-Lewis Duo, they will concentrate on baroque music, and will present recitals and dialogues on baroque performance practices. They will also work with compositions for solo instrument and continuo, and with solo sonatas with clavier accompaniment.

MAJOR APPOINTMENTS

The appointment of Dr. Lloyd B. Macpherson as Dean of Medicine was announced this summer by the president, Dr. Henry D. Hicks.

Dr. Macpherson, dean pro tem for the past year, has been with the medical school since 1952. His appointment as dean is retroactive to July 1, 1971, when he succeeded Dr. Chester B. Stewart, who became vice-president (Health Sciences).

Other major recent appointments include two new acting directors within the faculty of Health Professions; the appointments of an executive director and an academic director of the Centre for Foreign Policy Study; a new director of the Transition Year Program; and two new departmental chairman and two acting chairmen.

The new appointees are:

Dr. E.G. Belzer, Jr., acting director of the School of Physical Education. Dr. Belzer formerly served as an associate professor in the department and co-ordinator of Health Education.

Dr. D.K.M. Yung, acting director of the College of Pharmacy. Dr. Yung was an associate professor in the college until his new appointment.

Gordon R.S. Hawkins, executive director of the Centre for Foreign Policy Study. For the past year he was associate director of the centre and is a former executive director of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

Dr. Denis W. Stairs, academic director of the Centre for Foreign Policy Study. For the past year he has been director of the centre.

Prof. E.T. Marriott, is the new director of the Transitional Year Program. He will continue to serve as assistant Dean of Student Services and associate professor of education.

New departmental chairman are Dr. K.H. Mann, biology, and Prof. L.H. Lawrence, theatre. Appointed acting departmental chairman were Dr. J.A. McNulty, psychology, and Prof. V.A. Ellis, music.

INSTITUTE GETS GRANT FROM U.S. GOVERNMENT

A grant of $81,221 has been awarded by the United States government to the Institute of Public Affairs at Dalhousie University for a systematic study of the location of industries and why they often cluster together. Dr. Henry D. Hicks said that the grant was extremely valuable recognition of the growing international stature of the Institute in the field of socio-economic research.

The grant was awarded by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Economic Development Administration, and the research will be carried out by Dr. Stanislaw Czamanski who for the past six summers has been director of the regional economic research at the Institute.

The project, Study of Location of Industries: Identification of Clusters of Industries, is designed to undertake a systematic study of the direct and indirect links among industries forming an urban-industrial complex and to develop a methodology for identifying such groupings.

TUTORING WORKSHOP PLANNED

This fall, the Dalhousie Student Union is sponsoring a unique community-oriented educational project in Halifax's North-End.

The program, Outreach Tutoring, is run, manned and organized entirely by university students who have seen a need for a program offering some sort of individual tutoring to children living in the North End. The basic idea behind the program is that university students would volunteer a night of their week to tutor children who have trouble with their school work.

A department of art history will be re-established at Dalhousie.

The Board of Governors at its last meeting approved a recommendation of the Senate that the department should be re-established, but on the understanding that staff appointments be subject to budget limitations.

Last May, Senate approved a recommendation of its council and of the Faculty of Arts and Science. This followed a recommendation made in 1968 by Senate to establish the department, but which was referred by the governors to a joint Board-Senate sub-committee to discuss the proposal with representatives of the Nova Scotia College of Art and Design and the Nova Scotia Technical College's School of Architecture.

In its report, the sub-committee said there would be no duplication in the programs of the various institutions, and the College of Art welcomed the creation of such an academic department at Dalhousie.

Further studies were made and the Faculty of Arts and Science again recommended the creation of the department which would serve academic programs in other departments as well as providing ultimately for an honours program in art history.

GRANTS ASSURED FOR PHYS ED COMPLEX

The long awaited physical education and sports complex may soon be a reality at Dalhousie.

The university has been assured of $500,000 from a private source for the proposed $5,000,000 complex. The gift is conditional that the university obtained assurance of the remaining money Jan. 1, 1973.

Such a structure would replace the present 42-year-old gymnasium as well as consolidate elements of the school of physical education which are scattered in various buildings throughout the campus.

The present gymnasium was built in 1930 when Dalhousie's total enrolment was 970 as compared with this year's total figure of nearly 8,000.

The school of physical education, founded in 1966, has a total enrolment of 250 students.

Dr. Hicks, Dalhousie president said: "We are hopeful and confident that we can arrange the rest of the financing."

While no concrete plans have yet been drawn up, it is expected that such a complex, which would serve both the university and the community, would contain such facilities as a swimming pool, gymnasiums, indoor courts, lecture rooms, laboratories and offices.

There's a new look on the Dalhousie football team this season—a new coach, new players and a new philosophy.

The new coach is Doug Hargreaves, a former assistant at Dal, for five years assistant athletic director at Royal Military College, and a veteran of 15 years service in the Canadian Armed Forces.

New faces are a dime a dozen, with only 11 players back from the 1971 edition of the Tigers.

The new philosophy? "Putting enjoyment into the game." Hargreaves adopted a new approach with this year's camp—as a matter of fact there were two camps, in introductory camp that attracted 45 players, followed a week later by the main camp. The purpose of the first camp was simply "to teach people the game of football" says Hargreaves. But the enjoyment philosophy which was adhered to then is still apparent in the main camp.

After dropping their opening to Mount Allison the Tigers made the home debut successful, edging UNB 24-23. Last week they were defeated by the University of Prince Edward Island.

NEW APPOINTMENTS TO THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Six appointments and two re-appointments to the Board of Governors of Dalhousie University have been announced by the president, Dr. Henry D. Hicks.

Dr. Hicks said yesterday that the Governor-in-Council had approved the appointments to the Board for six-year terms of Dr. J. Gerald Godsoe, Toronto, J. W. Graham Maccougall Q.C., Moncton, Miss Zilpha Linkletter, Halifax, and Arthur H. Crockett, Toronto.

Richey B. Love, Q.C., of Calgary has been re-appointed for a six-year term.

Dr. Byron L. Reid and Dr. Joan F. B. Cahill, both of Halifax, were appointed as alumni representatives to the board for a three-year term and Lorne O. Clarke, Q.C., Truro, was re-appointed for three years.

Seven of the eight new governors are graduates of Dalhousie.

Dr. C.B. Stewart, Vice-President (Health Services) at Dalhousie, and Sister Catherine Wallace, President of Mount Saint Vincent, were invested as officers of the Order of Canada by Governor General Roland Michener in Ottawa last week.

The Order of Canada is the highest award granted by Canada for outstanding merit or distinguished public service in all walks of life. The Order takes precedence over all other awards except the Victoria Cross and the George Cross.

Dr. Stewart received the Office for his contributions to medical education and research and the planning of national and provincial health and hospital services.

He was Dean of Medicine of Dalhousie from 1954 to 1971, during which the Medical School experienced dramatic growth and the Sir Charles Tupper Medical Building was constructed.

He was president of the Association of Canadian Medical Colleges and the Canadian Public Health Association and its Nova Scotia division.

He was a pioneer in research in aviation medicine during World War II and introduced BCG vaccination against tuberculosis in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island in the late 1940's.

He was director of research and planning of the Canadian Sickness Survey in the Maritime Provinces in 1951 and conducted other studies on which medical and hospital insurance plans were based.

His citation for the award was not only for his contribution to aviation medicine, but to medical education at Dalhousie University, in this region and in Canada as a whole, to the delivery of health care in the Maritimes, and to the medical organizations and through them to the people of Canada.

Sister Catherine Wallace was honored for her work in education.

She has had a teaching career which took her to various levels on both the east and west coasts of Canada and to New York and Massachusetts.

She became the first principal of the Diocesan High School in Vancouver in 1953, was appointed professor of English at Mount Saint Vincent in 1959, and in 1960 established the first program for Canada's first Sister Formation Plan.

Two years later she became supervisor of education for the Congregation of Sisters of Charity.

On July 1, 1965, she was appointed president of Mount Saint Vincent.
