Dear Elisabeth,

I wrote to you last November to enquire whether the book from the Conference on Energy Policies and the International System would be published. It has been a long time coming, but I see that in fact it has been released by Clio Press Ltd. of Oxford. Would it be possible to obtain a copy, since I understood that the contributing authors would receive one? Not only would a copy be useful personally but I would like to have the volume reviewed for a journal I edit, the Natural Resources Forum.

I trust that all goes well with your work and that you are still deeply involved with the oceans and related topics.

Sincerely,

Keith

NATURAL RESOURCES FORUM

Natural Resources Forum is a quarterly journal prepared by the Centre for Natural Resources, Energy and Transport, in co-operation with the Statistical Office of the United Nations Secretariat, and published by the D. Reidel Publishing Company, Dordrecht, Holland.

It is the objective of the Natural Resources Forum to acquaint policy-makers and planners with the problems of resources and energy development, provide them with information they may use in the formulation of policies, and to be a forum for constructive debate of controversial issues. There is a need for efficient communication because the political and economic developments of this decade have brought to the fore more forcefully than ever the complex problems of natural resources and their contribution to the global welfare. These have to be viewed within the context of rapidly changing international relations and the quest for a new international economic order. The important substantive issues, such as availability of raw materials, technology transfer, protection of the environment, improvement of terms of trade and accelerated industrialization for developing countries, to mention only a few, all require continued study by experts and policy decisions by leaders. Policymakers will need to draw more than ever upon the full range of scientific, technical and managerial expertise for the implementation of their decisions. Natural Resources Forum attempts to contribute to a satisfactory solution of global issues under discussion.

Each issue contains between five and seven substantive articles written by specialists and decisionmakers from many countries, notes on important technological or economic trends, conference reviews, book reviews and correspondence.

The subscription price is US $34.00. Private persons (no institutions, libraries, etc) may subscribe at the special rate of US $17.00 including postage and handling. Subscriptions can be sent directly to the publisher or to any subscription agent. Private subscriptions should be sent directly to the publisher, or to United Nations, Sales Section, New York, NY 10017 or Geneva, Switzerland.

Dear Elisabeth,

Many thanks for your letter of 3 August 1978, concerning a contribution to Natural Resources Forum. I am very pleased that you will be able to write an article, especially in view of your long association with international development issues. Naturally, we will leave the final choice of the theme of the article to you, but perhaps you might like to tackle the subject of development in so far as it impinges on marine resources and ocean management. The ICIDI mandate would also be a good outline for a broad-brush examination of the agenda for debate in the field of international development strategies.

..... I am enclosing some information about the journal, so you have an idea of its audience. We are particularly interested in an article which discusses policy questions and the implications of policy choices for the future of the developing countries. As I indicated in my previous letter, the ocean regime is one theme which focusses on such problems. I would be very grateful if you could let me know when we might expect to receive the article, so we can include it in our planning schedule.

Also, as I mentioned in a letter last year, I never received the published proceedings of the energy conference in Santa Barbara in 1973. I have tried to obtain a copy here but have been unable to track one down. Could you possibly send me a copy please?

With best wishes, and looking forward to hearing from you soon,

Yours,

Keith

Dear Dr. Borgese,

I wish to acknowledge receipt of the book "Energy Technology and Global Policy" which you sent to Mr. Keith Walton. I shall bring it to his attention when he comes back from mission in January.

Thank you very much.

Yours sincerely,

Natural Resources Forum publishes original articles not previously published elsewhere devoted to the economic, scientific, technological and policy aspects of energy, minerals and water resources development. Articles (3,500 to 7,500 words), notes (1,000 to 2,500 words) and correspondence will be considered for publication.

Manuscripts should be submitted to the Editor, Natural Resources Forum, Centre for Natural Resources, Energy and Transport, United Nations, N.Y. 10017. All manuscript material should be typed, double-spaced on 8-1/2" x 11" paper with wide margins. An original and two copies are required. A brief Abstract (150 words or less) and a Biographical Note (100 words or less) on the author or authors must accompany each full length manuscript.

Tables should be numbered consecutively, in Roman numerals, in order of their intended appearance in the text. Each should be typed on a separate sheet. Appropriate headings and source citations, if any, should be included.

Figures and illustrations should be submitted in a form that permits reproduction without retouching. Line drawings should be done in India ink, with lettering large enough to be legible after reduction. All figures should be numbered and include a caption. Photographs should be glossy prints; orientation (top, North, etc.) should be noted on the reverse side.

Units, all scientific or technical data included in the text, should be in the M.K.S. system. Scientific notation is preferred for large or small numbers.

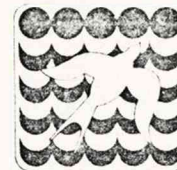

Footnotes to appear at the bottom of a page should be used only when absolutely essential. Whenever possible, the information should be incorporated into the text.

References must be numbered in the text and listed at the end of the paper. All quotes and other material taken from another source should be referenced. References should include full name of author(s) or editor(s). For books, the title, place of publication, name of publisher and publication date, in that order, are required with the page number(s) included where appropriate. For periodicals, article title, journal name, volume number, issue number and date are required, with page number(s) where appropriate.

Page charges and reprints. There are no page charges for Natural Resources Forum. Contributors to the journal will receive 25 free reprints of their article. Additional reprints are available from the publisher at a nominal charge.

Mr. Keith J. Walton, Editor

New York, N.Y. 10017.

Dear Keith:

Sorry to be so late in acknowledging your letter of June 6. It reached me in Zurich, where I had a rather exhausting period taking care of my 95 year old mother for six weeks. It really did not leave time to think straight, let alone to do anything else.

I would love to write the piece you suggest, and I will do it as soon as possible. Do you think it would be wiser, by now, to expect the outcome of the New York portion of the Seventh Session?

For your information I am enclosing two pieces: one is a memo I was commissioned to write for the Willy Brandt Commission; the other is a "position paper" for the RIO (Tinbergen) Foundation.

Hoping to see you in New York,

Yours as ever,

Elisabeth Mann Borgese

Dear Elisabeth,

Although it has been some time since we spoke last, I have for some months been intending to write and ask you for a contribution to Natural Resources Forum. This is a quarterly journal in the field of natural resources prepared by the United Nations and published by D. Reidel. Specifically, I had hoped that you would be willing to contribute a piece on your views on the present status of the Law of the Sea conference. Our readers would be interested in a brief historical summary of the history and intent of the conference together with an assessment of where it stands today, as well as such predictions as you would be willing to venture as to its eventual outcome. We would be especially pleased to have you, as one of the originators of the conference concept, appear in our pages.

I look forward to hearing from you further on this subject.

Yours sincerely,

Keith
