with executioner before them. One read out of a book which seemed a manuscript for the space of more than half an hour—after which a clergyman prayed for about twenty minutes. The Felon was then instantly seized by two executioners, blindfolded by a black handkerchief and conducted to the Instrument, which consisted of two uprights (distant about 15 inches) surmounted by cross

a frame or block of wood carrying an axle moved in grooves in the two uprights, a heavy lump of lead was fixed on the upper part of the axle frame to this was fixed a ring to which was tied one end of a piece of small fet and mallet the cord which suspended the ax was cut at one blow when the head was separated instantly from the body — a guinea
