REUNION

The Reunion was heralded abroad in good time, and those who were not for other reasons prevented from coming had no excuse on grounds of lack of early notice. Old Dalhousians Assembled from far and near, from east and west and north and south, with varying attitudes of mind, some to see what would happen, some to meet old friends, some to find out what it was all about anyhow. But the most blasé and skeptical finds his cynicism weakening as the train comes out beside Bedford Basin. One's thoughts run back to old days and old friends and old rows and old classrooms and old professors; likewise to old football games and old pipes and other old things that go to make up college life.

Wednesday morning we wended our way toward the Campus and registered. Registration was cheap, nor did it entail such after expenditure of time and energy as in the old days. We became each the possessor of a neat little book of tickets that admitted us to all the mysterious rites of reunion, and all for two dollars. That is where the Committee in charge scored. Everybody was pleased to have a five dollar programme provided for two dollars. There is a psychological reason for preferring a bargain to a free gift, and we had all made a good bargain.

People crowded around the room in groups and everybody talked at once in a perfectly homelike manner. Industrious persons received money at the desk, and handed out cards, and in one corner sold interesting black and yellow ware for souvenirs. Then when we had all got in each other's way and made everybody happy we drifted out upon the campus—and what a good campus it is. We admired the buildings—especially Shirreff Hall. The Library many of us had seen before. And we all talked, talked, talked. Nothing is better than good talk at the right time with the right person, and most of us had arrears extending over several years.

We went into the Gymnasium to luncheon, listened to the addresses and spent much time looking around at the crowd. What a lot of Dalhousians there are and what a lot they can do if they try. And, what is the authentic history of the bell? Years ago some of us climbed out of the old red tower and over the roof of what is now the Forrest Building, but we didn't look to see whether the bell was in the tower then or not. In a way its size is disappointing. It doesn't look large enough to hold the concoction mentioned in the song.

There was some talk about class reunions that morning, but they were only preliminary meetings, and the actual reunions were held later—usually accompanied with food and always by reminiscences.

The afternoon on the campus impressed us as worth the trip from—wherever we came from. The Children's dancing pageant occupied the football field. It was a pretty thing. We could not always tell what they were doing, but it was done well, looked well, and the music sounded well. That was the centre of the spectacle—but only the centre. All around the campus Dalhousians of all ages from all corners of Canada and most corners of the States and some corners beyond were circulating in little groups, watching the pageant, catching sight of an old friend, realizing themselves perhaps better than ever before as parts of the living Dalhousie of which the President spoke at luncheon.

After the dance we saw a lone woman in

TWO DALHOUSIE SCHOLARS

Allan Chester Johnson, B.A., 1904 with High Honors and the Medal in Classics, has been promoted to a full professorship of Classics at Princeton. Dr. Johnson was for two years tutor in Classics at Dalhousie, and took his Ph.D. at John Hopkins under Gildersleeve in 1909. He held a fellowship in the American School at Athens 1909-11 where he did some valuable work in Archaeology, and discovered an inscription which was of use in work on Attic chronology. He taught for a time in the west, and accepted a position at Princeton where he has been for about ten years. He has published many papers on chronology and allied topics, and has recently produced a book the title of which the News has up to date been unable to obtain. Princeton has a very large classical faculty, and is one of the leading classical schools on the continent. The News is glad to see the recognition of Dr. Johnson's scholarly work.

Charles Thompson Sullivan, B.A. 1906 with High Honors and the Sir William Young Gold Medal in Mathematics, M.Sc. (McGill) 1909 Ph.D., (Chicago) 1912, D.Sc. (McGill) 1917, F.R.S.C., has been appointed Professor of Pure Mathematics at McGill, in succession to the late Dr. James Harkness. Dr. Sullivan has had a distinguished career as a mathematical scholar and teacher.

In the Historical Number of the Gazette, it speaks of Macdonald and Johnson establishing Dalhousie on the true pillars of Classics and Mathematics. Johnson and Sullivan are nobly upholding the tradition. It is pleasant to note that the former represents Pictou Academy, and the latter Truro Academy. There are many still extant who remember both in their undergraduate days; and everybody joins the News in congratulating these two brilliant Alumni on their success.

APPOINTMENTS

The following appointments are of interest to Dalhousians and Kingsmen.

Rev. Arthur Henry Moore has accepted the presidency of Kings College, left vacant last year by the resignation of Dr. Boyle. Mr. Moore is a native of the province of Quebec, and a graduate of Bishop's College, (B.A., 1893, M.A. 1900). He has been engaged in active work as a clergyman, but has found time for much journalistic work, and holds a distinguished position in Canadian Journalism. President Moore has also held the office of president of the Alumni Association of his Alma Mater. The News wishes President Moore long years of success in his new office.

The position of Head of the Department of Modern Languages, formerly held by the late Professor H.P. Jones, has been filled by the appointment of Professor Rene Gautheron. Prof. Gautheron has a distinguished record as a scholar and teacher. He has held Professorships at the University of Brest, the University of Montreal, in Paris and at St. Francis Xavier's, Antigonish.

Rev. Dr. S. H. Prince has been appointed Professor of Economics and Sociology on the King's College Foundation. Dr. Prince is a native of New Brunswick, educated at St. John High School and Rothesay Collegiate School, and Toronto University (B.A. 1908, M.A. 1909). He was curate at St. Paul's, Halifax, 1910-1919. From 1919 until the present Dr. Prince held the position of assistant at St. Stephens' Church, New York, and carried on his studies in Economics and Sociology at

EDITORIAL

Co-operation Again.

The News has for some time been endeavouring to arouse the interest of the Alumni and Alumnae as a collective body to the desirability of working together to achieve our common aims for Dalhousie. We have preached from the text "in union is strength", and have been content to aim for the present at instilling that salutary truth into the minds of all loyal Dalhousians. We would not be understood as censuring the typical faults of Dalhousians. We claim a full measure of them, and find them dear to our soul. But the attitude of the man from Missouri, so valuable in a new environment, has no justification where our Alma Mater is concerned, and in this issue it is the pleasant privilege of the News to state to all interested that our first step has been taken and taken with marked success. The Reunion the story of which is told in this issue, has come and triumphed; and it has gone only in the sense that we are no longer together in the neighborhood of the Macdonald Library or the Forrest Building. The thought of hopes fulfilled, the presence of memories awakened, the comradeship of friends and classmates from far and near, these remain and will remain with us until the time when we shall foregather again. In mere numbers the Reunion was a distinct success, and the enthusiasm aroused and inspiration enkindled were greater than any enumeration can suggest.

A Family Affair.

It fell to the lot of the News to look around for people to be thanked and congratulated upon our success, and it transpired that there is no one to congratulate and no one to thank; that in thanking or congratulating anyone we should merely be shaking hands with ourselves. The reason is obvious. The Reunion was a family affair from start to finish. Governors, faculty, alumni, students, friends, the public, all did their share to add to the significance of the celebration; and each was interested and pleased as at the success of his own personal project. Chesterton talks somewhere about the difference between progress and improvement; progress means motion, probably going away from home, and improvement means staying at home and making things better. On these three days in August we came home and stayed home and improved various things—both our opportunities and ourselves. Our towers have been increased and our gardens extended, and we can with legitimate pride rejoice that we have had some small share—each of us—in that work. There are more towers to build in which we may all share. "Sed nil dulcius est bene quam munita tenere Edita doctrina sapientum templa serena." says Lucretius "But nothing is more welcome than to hold the lofty and serene positions well fortified by the learning of the wise", and one lesson that should by now be learned is that we can all and do each of us occupy a place somewhere in Dalhousie, and find a home there whenever we return. One alumnus put the thought well when he said, "I have been away for some time and the Studley Buildings were a pleasant surprise; but the best thing about it is that I feel as much at home there as at the Forrest Building. So all Dalhousians can gather around the old place in a family picnic; and they can, for the success of their festivities, thank and congratulate only themselves. One might add "and the outsiders who helped," but those who helped are not outsiders. They are good Dalhousians too.

The Idea.

The visitor from Mars who probably went over in his aeroplane might well have wondered what it was all about. And if one of us told him that it was a Dalhousie Reunion he would perhaps have asked—assuming that the Martians do not get the News—what Dalhousie was and why. We should then have been driven back on our idea of Dalhousie—whatever it may be. For at the heart of Dalhousie lies an idea and a purpose and the idea and the purpose are not different, one believes, from those of our founder; only the environment changes. It would be worth while again for each of us to examine himself to see what exactly Dalhousie means to him, and to meditate upon what he is doing to exemplify the Dalhousie idea and carry out the Dalhousie purpose.

And be it remembered that an idea is not a dead or static thing, but essentially dynamic and romantic. One with a turn for interpretation might write on the Romance of the Dalhousie idea. He might tell how the idea arose in the mind of Lord Dalhousie, seized upon some of our early friends, acquired control in '63, and dominates today where Dalhousians are found. With ideas one binds together and comprehends the manifold experiences of life. By ideas one lives. And the Dalhousie idea is a good one that we do well to keep always in mind. We think of the Buildings at Studley and Carleton St. as its physical embodiment; but we are its physical embodiment also.

Symbols.

And ideas must operate and be transmitted by means of symbols. The great symbol, of course, is speech. Music and painting and every work of man that is real must body forth ideas. And so with our Reunion. It was an expression to the world of the Dalhousie ideas, an affirmation of our faith and loyalty, a tribute to the past, an earnest of the future. It would be interesting to plan a reunion that should represent every period of Dalhousie's history and every phase of her activity; but it would not necessarily be a more desirable thing than the reunion just past. We had our serious pageantry and our fun.

And the things that just happen are often of more value than any set programme of events. The programme was good; but the spontaneous enjoyment of all present is being back again in each other's company was still better. We have done well this time; let us make the next reunion better still.

THE ALUMNAE RECEPTION

The Alumnae Reception at Shirreff Hall was a decided success and proved one of the most delightful features of the Reunion.

Miss Carol MacInnis and Dr. Ritchie received the guests in the drawing room from hence they were ushered to the dining room to enjoy an old Delta Gamma evening.

Thanks to the indefatigable energy of Miss Eliphah Nichols a stage had been erected with curtains and other necessary properties.

The programme which was presented consisted entirely of Canadian talent both for composition and performance. The first part of the programme consisted of the following numbers:—

Address of Welcome:

Dr. Eliza Ritchie.

Vocal Solo:

"The Land of Dreams" (Juanita O'Connor)
Miss Ella Courtney

Music by Miss Evelyn Crowell.

Vocal Solo: Selected.

Miss Marion Cantley
Reading "La Tribune" Dr. MacMechan
Miss Juanita O'Connor

Vocal Solo: "An Island Song" Marjorie Pickthall
Miss Grace Burgoyne
Music by Miss Natilie Littler.

Then Mrs. Trueman, Arts '85, the first woman graduate was called upon to speak. She gave a brief resumé of the status of women in those by gone days when even university authorities doubted whether a woman was a "person or not". A storm of applause testified to the appreciation of all present for the humorous outline.

Part II. of the programme consisted of a clever sketch "Brother-in-Arms" presented by the Ambitious Alumnae Amateurs by gracious permission of the author Merrill Denison. This play, originally written for presentation at Hart House contains very clever lines and subtle character portrayal. The cast which presented the play was composed of Dalhousie graduates and all were happy in their parts. The study in contrasts was well emphasized by the players. Jean Moriarty who played the part of Dorothea, the helpful, loving but brainless wife was excellent. Georcege Faulkner and Marion Clarke made admirable Canadian backwoodsmen. Eileen Burns was most convincing as the irate but practical husband of Dorothea.

The scene of the play was a hunting camp in the Canadian backwoods at dusk of a November evening, 1919.

At the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served and an opportunity was given to the graduates to meet each other and indulge in reminiscences. Colonel Thompson brought over a delegation from the Alumni Association with greetings and good wishes. Their speeches were sparkling with humor and kindly feelings. Mrs Ray MacKenzie responded on behalf of the Alumnae.

REUNION

antique attire walk slowly across the field. At first, as we did not notice what the megaphone said, we took her for some sportive and inquisitive grandmother investigating our function. But as she was followed by another and still another we realized that they were all a part of the performance and that they represented the various generations of Alumnae at intervals of ten years. We tried to get from our lady friends some explanation of the mystical significance of such change of costume as appeared, but we were unable to comprehend the language in which they tried to explain. Anyhow it was a good "stunt" if one may use such language in the "News". Somebody lured us away, so that we did not see the Dutch dance—and did not hear as much of the concert by the band of the Calcutta as we should have liked to hear; but it didn't really matter what things we saw and what things we missed. Our time was all fully and pleasantly occupied. The baseball games that followed seemed to us—and we are not professional critics—to resemble a certain famous football game of which we have heard some of our elders speak—remarkable rather for speed than for accuracy. We did not miss the hodge-podge nor the singing. The food was good and the singing better. No more suitable place could have been found for the performance than the western slopes of the campus. It was a mixture of Dalhousie and fairyland.

Next day the parade had been planned. But next day the rain fell steadily, persistently, pitilessly, and with emphasis. There was one good thing about it—it was definite. Those who remember the drizzle of the centenary and the long procession in the fog will remember also that Dalhousie gloried in her victory over the weather. But the weather on Thursday was not to be defeated by a frontal attack. So we sidestepped it. Everybody employed himself or herself in such occupations as could be carried on indoors. There were class reunions and visits. Some drifted in to tea at Dr. MacMechan's where we found old friends and old time hospitality. At night the men gathered in the gymnasium for the smoker. The weather was still wet and cold. But the enthusiasm of the audience was neither damped nor chilled. We listened to much interesting talk—in particular to Professor Murray—in the News one hardly dare say "Howard". He told us the tale of the old Dalhousie and especially of "Charlie" and "Johnnie"—revered names even to the majority of us who never saw them in the flesh. Pictures of members of the faculty in the seventies were thrown on the screen to accompany the talk. Many others gave brief addresses—Dr. A. Ross Hill, Dr. Kent, Rev. D. K. Grant and Rev. Geo. Farquhar, Rev. Dr. Hanson, Judge Patterson, Dr. J. D. Logan. No doubt there were others, but these will at any rate do for samples. And the speeches were interspersed with songs. Then a committee went over to see what was going on at Shirreff Hall where the Alumnae were holding a reception—which is, I am told, to be described elsewhere by an alumna.

Next morning it appeared that the weather man had decided to suspend hostilities; and there was no obstacle to the parade. The only unpleasant feature of this function was the inability of those who were in it to see it. The march down Spring Garden Road and around past the Province Building to the parade seemed like a triumphal procession. Boy Scouts and Alumni and banners and gowns and governors and faculty and banners and variegated colors of hoods become confused in memory. All along the way was lined by citizens of Halifax come out to see the show. We marched in and watched the ceremony of unveiling the tablet. We didn't ourselves know as much as we probably should about that tablet, but we did know that Admiral Fergusson was there and that he was the direct descendant of Lord Dalhousie, and that Mr. Pyke beside the Admiral was a direct descendant of another dignity who was present at the original ceremony. The governor was there and the mayor and our president. The speeches were good and not long. Dr. J. D. Logan recited an ode in commemoration of the occasion. The assembly broke up and we all went off home or elsewhere. In the afternoon many of us took advantage of the excursion on the harbor and up the arm. The weather was ideal and there isn't much more necessary to say about such a trip.

In the evening came the final function, the dance at the gymnasium. Not everyone can dance, but almost everyone made the attempt. Experts say that there were certain dances which the elder Alumni could perform better than the younger, which goes to show that the curriculum in those days was not as narrow as we in our ignorance sometimes think. But there is an end to all things: there was an end to the dance and the Reunion, and there must be an end to this tale. It is a plain and unvarnished story of the Reunion, and no doubt everyone present will at once think of other things that should be said. But if enough has been said to give absentees a fitting sense of their loss, and to encourage them to lay plans for attending the next reunion, the story will have been worth writing.

Some Things You Want

Souvenir Edition De Luxe of

MATER CORONATA an Ode by John Daniel Logan read at the unveiling of the brass tablet at the City Hall during our 1924 Reunion.

The following is taken from the press:—

Proud of Dr. Logan.

(From the Gazette)

Dr. J. D. Logan's "Ode" to Dalhousie was worthy of a great occasion. Before our eyes the graduates, dead and living, of Dalhousie, its honored professors marched with eyes agleam, with pride and with hands pointing to the hills whence come the living waters that conserve and make beautiful the homes and country of the people.

There was erudition in this ode—the moving majesty that was born of Grecian culture, but there was lyricism also, joyous and tender from the heart of a man who loves his "Alma Mater". Perhaps we liked this best. His love and gratitude minister more fully to civilization than even learning, deep though it be and many sided. We are of the opinion that Nova Scotia should be proud of Dr. Logan, and show it in some way that may keep him in this province for its honor and glory.

He is neither a mere phrase artificer nor one who walks on trodden grounds, but a man of genius who does his own thinking and sets it forth in noble and uplifting literature. He has something to say to us lesser folk who live in the valley and it should be said on his native heath.

We think any country would be glad to own and to hold a literary creator such as is Dr. Logan. In writing these lines we have no desire to indulge in idle compliment, but to express our gratitude for the majestic poetry that made an indelible record of Dalhousie's gifts to the domain of learning.

A copy of this ode will be mailed, post paid on receipt of.....50c.
