Dear Sir

All our schemes of grandeur, are at an end, and we must content ourselves, to jog on in the old way, as our twenty Thousand pound Prize, has turned out a poor solitary fifteen Pound, to you I know it will not cause much regret, and in my opinion the Esteem of a worthy good Man, is of equal if not more Value than wealth, while I can hope, to deserve, and possess yours, I shall not trouble myself much about the Party Bell, although sad experience, tells us we cannot do without a little of it. Believe me, I feel most sensibly, your kind intentions to myself and Family, I hope you did not take cold, from your watery Hamble, the other Day.

Dear Sir

I should have had the pleasure of informing you, of the state of our Number, before this, if I had not met with the trifling accident of sprain my right hand, and could not make use of my Pen. We are yet, in Fortunes wheel, I suppose the thought the season too unfavorable, for us to take possession of the House; she intends to give us, at the next Drawing. My Father desires me to say, if you are disengaged next Sunday, he will do himself the pleasure of taking a basin of Brandy, with you if you are engaged, have the goodness to send a note. My Mother bids to be kindly remembered to you.

Dear Sir I am your truly Obliged
