Dear Professor Kent:

Thanks for your letter of May 17th.

Under separate cover we are sending you 20 copies of the 1968 version of The Ocean Regime.

Your guess is correct. We are beginning a new project on Arms Control and Disarmament. Article V has been cancelled and will be replaced when we decide whether we need more or less control.
Some decision may be reached at our Pacem in Maribus
III Convocation to be held this summer.

Yes, David Krieger joins us the end of this week and we look forward to our association.

I hope your workshop is successful. With all good wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Elisabeth Mann Borgese

Dear Mrs. Borgese:

Thank you very much for the materials that you sent to me in March.
I can now assure you that they have been put to good use.

May I ask for more? This summer I will be directed a Workshop on the Design of World Order Models, as described in the enclosed announcement.
We have decided that, for a practice design exercise, it would be useful to ask the participants to develop proposals with reference to some aspect of the future administration of the oceans. Your 1968 version of The Ocean Regime would be particularly useful for them to read because it contains well articulated proposals as well as explanatory commentary. May I have twenty copies for distribution to the participants?

We may also use your Saturday Review article, and perhaps also your article on "The World Communities," but I expect we will be able to xerox these.

I notice that in the February 1971 version of The Ocean Regime there is no function corresponding to Article V, item 13 in the 1968 version: "to control armed forces operating on the seabed." Has this been dropped because of the desire to emphasize positive functions, as suggested in the 1968 commentary, on p. 31? Can you describe to me your current thinking on the role of arms control measures in the regime you now envision?

I understand that David Krieger, now at San Francisco State College, will be joining you soon. Dave and I have become very good friends, and we have many common interests. I hope that we will somehow be able to work together, toward your ends, and also toward my ends, which are to raise ocean consciousness here in Hawaii and through that, to develop designs for world community. I'll write to Dave.

Cordially,

George Kent,
Associate Professor

Enc: Workshop Announcement

DESIGNING THE WORLD OF THE FUTURE

Fifteen outstanding scholars from Asia and the United States have been invited to participate in a Workshop on the Design of World Order Models to be held during the week of July 17-22, 1972 at the East-West Center at the University of Hawaii. The Workshop is an outgrowth of the World Order Models Project, a transnational research project in which teams of scholars in eight regions of the world are developing designs of alternative preferred world political systems for the decade of the 1990s.

The Workshop will involve a core group of leading scholars from several disciplines. Their purpose will be to study the experience of the World Order Models Project and to set the stage for continued planning for a more just and peaceful world order. The Workshop will prepare the participants to broaden involvement by engaging others in the planning effort.

Yoshi Sakamoto, director of the Japanese WOMP team and a professor of law and political science at the University of Tokyo; Saul Mendlovitz, overall director of WOMP and professor of international law at Rutgers Law School; and George Kent, professor of political science at the University of Hawaii, will be the principal discussion leaders.

A major feature of the Workshop, open to all, will be a presentation by Professor Mendlovitz on "World Order Design: The Power of Arrogance." His talk will be given at the Kennedy Theater on Monday, July 17, 1972 at 8:00 P.M. An open, informal reception will be held afterward at Jefferson Hall, directly across from the Kennedy Theater, on the University of Hawaii campus.

The Workshop is being sponsored by the World Law Fund, hosted by the East-West Center, and funded by the Institute for International Order.

Dear Mrs. Borgese:

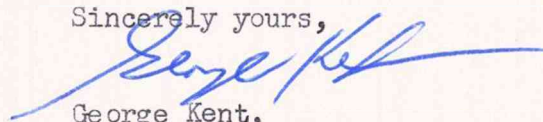

The time is surely right for launching new initiatives with respect to the administration of the oceans, and Hawaii just might be a right place. Several of us here at the University of Hawaii are trying to mobilize interest and energy on the theme. Just yesterday, President Harlan Cleveland gave a talk on the problems of control of the seas. In the Fall, I hope to focus a World Order Design Seminar on the question.

May I have a copy of the report describing the proposed ocean regime that you have developed? May I have copies of reprints of related articles, and other materials on the theme that you may have available for distribution?

We are planning a colloquium for April on the administration of the seas and seabeds, to introduce the University community to current thinking on this question. Are there some appropriate materials that I might have in multiple copies (35?) for distribution at that session?

Thank you for your help, and thank you very much for your work.

Sincerely yours,

George Kent,
Associate Professor
