Dear Subscriber:

The New York Times has suspended publication due to a strike by the pressmen.

We are sorry for this inconvenience to you.

We will, of course, extend the expiration date of your subscription to compensate for the period we are unable to publish.

Please do not call The New York Times because we will not have personnel available to answer your calls.

For changes of address, suspension of service or cancellations to take effect as soon as possible after we resume service, please write directly to:

Mr. Chad
Mail Subscription Dept.
The New York Times
229 West 43rd Street
New York, N.Y. 10036

We appreciate your understanding during this period and sincerely hope The Times will be back with you shortly.

Very truly yours,

Frank Innelli
Mail Subscription Manager

Important:

When writing us about your order, please enclose an address label from one of your copies of The Times. It will help us act more promptly.

Dear Miss Borgese,

We appreciate your recent suggestion, but we have so much material on hand and in prospect that we do not feel we can take on the article you propose.

Thank you for your interest.

Sincerely yours,

Lewis Bergman
