

Dear Doctor

Enclosed is the letter to my relation, which you'll be pleas'd to seal, and forward to Madras with the first convenient and safe conveyance, unless you should put in there on going out, which I am afraid will not be the case. I have every reason to think it will ensure you a genteel and hospitable reception whenever you reach that place, and you'll not forget introducing such consular as may be likely to serve me.

Mr. Gordon joins in respectful complements to Mr.
Chapman and yourself, both earnestly wishing a happy and pleasant voyage to return, and that you may visit when they the Indies and the bottom of the sea with safety, and with wonder to the natives.

Mr. Gordon wishes, if you have time to spare, to write him a recommendation to some of your mercantile London, who may obtain a clerk's place for him.

I am, dear Doctor

Yours sincerely &c
