The City Clerk,

City Hall, Halifax, N.S.

Dear Sir:

I am preparing a book of true stories of Nova Scotia. One of them concerns a Mrs. Sarah Croker, who committed suicide at Halifax in May 1936, and was buried in Camp Hill Cemetery.

I believe the Salvation Army conducted the burial, and as she willed them a considerable sum of money I presume they put up a headstone.

Do your records show exactly where Mrs. Croker was buried, and if there is a headstone or monument? If you can inform me on these points I can arrange to have a photograph of the grave and stone.

With my deep appreciation,

Sincerely,

J.H.R.
