Dear Husband

I opened Witchner's letter. Thought it was to me. I am affraid Witcher is getting discouraged, and I believe his mother-in-law is trying her best to make Jennie disatis-fied, and get them back again. I think that Jennie will try to persuade Witcher to go back, too if she can, Judging from the past. but I don't believe he will if he can get along this summer making payments on his place, I wish it was so you could help him out this time.
I would if it was in my power let him have some by raising some on our place if Witchner leaves there it is hard to tell where he will go or what will be the end! you will answer his letter right away wont you? Arnie told me of your safe arrival last evening, Arnie has sent the specifications - Mrs Woodworth came yesterday morning to spend the day she walked by Sam helping her. It rained so she stayed and will be here till it clears off. we had the meeting here here. but the children up stairs didnt come down. they were developing snapshots.

Mr Killiam went yesterday morning. he told me he could get another car load if he wanted but said it wouldnt pay him to do it he wished to be remembered

To you - he referred a little to his trouble.
I told him I felt very sorry for him -

I will expect to a letter from you soon -

These are the few lines I thought I was going to write. I know you don't like <sup>to</sup> write <sup>in</sup> long long letters. <sup>in writing</sup> Truly yours,

W. Bigelow
